Widow Charges Emanuel E. Kauffman Collected $2000 on Husband's Life and Refused to Turn Over Money.

The names of seven lawyers, one of them president of the St. Louis Bar Association and five of them members of the association's committee on Unethical Practices of Law, were signed to a $2000 lawsuit filed in Circuit Court today.

While no explanation of the number of lawyers in the case was made, it was understood the filing of the suit marked an attempt by the Bar Association to curb the giving of legal advice by persons who are not lawyers.

The plaintiff in the case was Mrs. Winifred Van Hee, City Hospital cook, who sought a $2000 judgment from Emanuel E. Kauffman, said to be doing business as the Insurance Advisory Bureau in the Louderman Building.

Mrs. Van Hee recited that while her late husband was ill in City Hospital last June, she cast about for funds for herself and her child, and was "lured" to the office of the insurance bureau by a newspaper advertisement offering free advice on insurance matters.

Kauffman, she said, took over a $2000 insurance policy on her husband's life and assured her he could get disability payments on it. Her husband died in November without any disability payments forthcoming in the meantime, she alleged.

After his death, she continued, she attempted to get the policy back, but Kauffman refused to give it to her, saying he had filed with the Aetna Life Insurance Co. a claim for the full value of the policy as a result of her husband's death.

The company told her, however, the petition continued, that it already had paid the $2000 to Kauffman, and that the indemnity check had been cashed. Kauffman has failed to give her the money, she alleged.

The petition was signed by Kenneth Teasdale, president of the St. Louis Bar Association, and William H. Biggs, a member of the association. Below their names appear the signatures of Clarence T. Case, Walter L. Roos, Harry Gershenson, Frederick A. Judell and William W. Crowdus, who are listed in the petition as members of the Committee on Unethical Practices of Law.

Kauffman declined to discuss the allegations.

DIRECTED VERDICT ACQUITS CASHIER OF SCRUGGS BANK

ACTED AS AGENT IN DEALS, HIS DEFENSE

U. S. Judge Davis Says 'If Market Had Gone Up, Not Down, You'd Never Have Heard of Case.'

Henry Giessenbier, former cashier of the closed Scruggs, Vahdervoort & Barney Bank, was acquitted today, by a directed verdict, of charges of misapplying $19,700 of the bank's funds and making false entries in its books.

Federal Judge Davis, sustaining a demurrer filed by Forrest C. Donnell of defense counsel, instructed the jury that the Government, which required 14 days to present its case, had failed to prove the charges in the indictment.

Judge Davis discussed the evidence in detail after the demurrer had been argued, and concluded with the assertion that: "If the stock market had gone up, instead of down, you never would have heard of this lawsuit."

Government Charges.

The Government charged that Giessenbier had taken funds from the accounts of customers of the bank and used them in 1931 to speculate for himself on the stock market. Giessenbier's defense was that in the transactions to which the Government referred, he acted not for himself, but as agent for the bank's customers.

In his remarks to the jury, Judge Davis pointed out that one of the Government's witnesses, George C. Bauer, had testified he had a "very loose" agreement with Giessenbier concerning the manner in which his investments were to be handled, and that Giessenbier might well have believed that he had authority to buy 300 shares of a mining stock which the Government alleged he had bought without authority.

The other principal Government witnesses, members of the Boyd and Gibson families, trusted Giessenbier to even greater extent in the handling of their financial affairs, Judge Davis said, recalling their testimony that they gave Giessenbier notes and checks signed in blank. There was never any complaint from them, the Court said, as long as the transactions Giessenbier handled for them were profitable.

"How can we say," the Court added, "that for a long term of years these transactions were all right, and that then suddenly they became all wrong? Under the circumstances there is nothing for me to do but to instruct you to return a verdict of acquittal."

Teller's Testimony.

One other point in the Government's case, the testimony of William C. Eagon, teller at the Scruggs bank, that he cashed a $1400 cashier's check for Giessenbier although the cashier did not indorse it, was dismissed by Judge Davis as without value. Eagon, he pointed out, had previously made an affidavit that he did not cash such a check for Giessenbier, and under cross-examination at the trial testified that he "must have" done so.

Giessenbier was in court with his wife when the Judge ordered his acquittal. A little later he gave reporters a written statement expressing his gratitude for the support given him by his friends and attorneys.

"From the very outset of this case," the statement said, "I have declared my innocence and the outcome of this trial confirms that declaration.

GREEK NAVY MUTINEERS SEIZE FIVE WARSHIPS

ARSENAL HELD BY REBELS FOR TIME

Retaken by Government After Artillery Attack—Athens Under Martial Law—Ten Revolutionists Reported Killed.

By the Associated Press.

ATHENS, Greece, March 2.—Five Greek warships manned by rebel officers sped for the island of Crete today, closely pursued by Government aircraft and destroyers.

After the recapture of Salamis Arsenal from rebel forces, the city of Athens returned to normal life despite martial law aimed at suppression of a revolutionary movement attributed by the Government to supporters of Gen. Nicholas Plastiras, dictator for a day during a revolt in 1933. Ten revolutionists have been reported killed.

The pursuit of the fleeing warships was accompanied by artillery fire and aerial bombings. The cruiser Averoff, one of the craft manned by rebels, was, despite a direct hit, steaming at 15 knots, accompanied by the cruiser Hella and three destroyers.

Forts Ordered to Fire.

Seven bombing planes from Atoi and four Government destroyers formed the pursuit forces, while forts on the island of Crete were ordered to open fire on the rebels.

The fleeing craft were attempting to defend themselves. Some of the aircraft which flew in pursuit of the rebel vessels returned well peppered with shot.

Government flyers sighted the rebel warships at noon near the Isle of Milo in the Aegean Sea some 70 miles east of the extreme southernmost point of Greece. They directed a rain of bombs on the vessels with unknown effect.

This was followed by an offer of mediation by the Government. The rebels wanted half an hour in which to reply.

Reported Rebel Leaders.

Two former admirals in the Greek Navy, Demestichas and Kollialexi, were reported in command of the rebel craft. They formerly had high records in the navy service but were expelled from the navy on charges of having taken part in previous anti-Government plots.

There were many arrests in Athens among the forces of former Premier Eleutherios Venizelos, who is an opponent of the present Government headed by President Alexander Zaimis and Premier P. Tsaldaris, but this statesman's part in the affair was not determined.

Former Prime Minister Papanastasiou, Labor party leader, was stopped while leaving for Saloniki and held at his home in Athens. Questioned as to whether Venizelos, who was reported to have been in Crete, was in agreement with the rebels, the Minister of War said he was unable to affirm this.

Appeal to Venizelos.

Premier Tsaldaris later telegraphed an appeal to Venizelos in Crete to keep clear of the revolutionaries. There had been rumors in Athens that the rebels had intended to pick up Venizelos at Crete and proceed to Macedonia.

Tsaldaris wired to Venizelos his hope that Venizelos "will not sympathize with the crazy attempt of a few officers."

"The Government," said the Premier, "intends to do all possible to that end."

Other Government officials expressed the hope that Greek forces in Crete would remain loyal. Steps were taken, meanwhile, to court-martial those officers already caught.

The plot, which broke out amid carnival revelry at 6 p. m. yesterday, was discovered when the rebels were found to be occupying the Salamis Arsenal. A crack regiment in the Athens outskirts and also soldiers in a military school were partly involved.

The rebels were forced to abandon their position after two-hour cannon fire.

EX-JUSTICE HOLMES DISSENTS ON ILLNESS

Worry 'Lot of Damn Foolery,' He Tells Friends—Slightly Weaker Today.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—Former Associate Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes of the Supreme Court was examined by his physician shortly after noon today and found to have taken a slight turn for the worse in his fight against bronchial pneumonia.

"Mr. Holmes is a little weaker, he does not seem as lively now," Mark Howe, former secretary to the jurist, told reporters after Dr. Thomas A. Claytor, and an associate physician left the residence. "He is taking oxygen all the time and has been for a couple of days. I don't think any digitalis is being administered."

Earlier in the day, Dr. Claytor had said Mr. Holmes' condition was unchanged, and attendants reported he had spent a comfortable night.

With physicians and friends gravely concerned over his condition, Holmes characteristically gave a dissenting opinion last night. "It's a lot of damn foolery," he was quoted as saying.

His good spirits and his "kidding the nurses," encouraged those who are attending him, but: "If he were 25 years younger," said a former secretary, "I don't think there would be any question of his recovery. As it is"—— Holmes is nearing his ninety-fourth birthday.

The doctor's reports after his visits today were relayed to President Roosevelt and Chief Justice Hughes, who have asked to be kept informed of the patient's condition. Later, the Chief Justice called at the residence. Senator La Follette also called.

Four tanks of oxygen were delivered at the residence this afternoon. It was said that one tank was being used every 12 hours and that each contained 2000 pounds pressure of oxygen.

NO COMMENT BY ROOSEVELT ON HUGHES' GOLD OPINION

When Reminded of Statement About "Conscience of Sovereign" He Says He Has Quit Practice of Law.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—President Roosevelt declined to comment yesterday on that portion of Chief Justice Hughes' opinion in the Liberty bond gold clause case that "while Congress is under no duty to provide remedies through the courts, the contractual obligation exists, and despite the infirmities of procedure, remains upon the conscience of the sovereign."

At the White House press conference yesterday, it was pointed out to the President that he might be considered the keeper of the nation's conscience and for that reason might comment on the Chief Justice's statement. The reply was that the President had quit the practice of law in 1928.

Under the rules of the conference, further questioning of the President is improper if the President indicates that he does not desire to comment on a question.

'LAWRENCE OF ARABIA' QUITS AIR FORCE FOR HIS BOOKS

Takes Discharge Papers and Goes to Cottage to Continue Classical Studies.

(Copyright, 1935.)

LONDON, March 2.—Aircraftsman T. E. Shaw—really the famed "Lawrence of Arabia," took his discharge papers from the Royal Air Force yesterday and went to a tiny Dorsetshire cottage where he hopes to continue his studies in classical literature.

Sixteen years ago Col. Lawrence was acclaimed as one of the great fighters of the World War. He won the Arabs to the cause of the Allies and paved the way for Lord Allenby's defeat of the Turks. Inherently shy and bitterly disappointed by the Allies' failure to give the Arabs all he had promised them, he declined all honors and enlisted as T. E. Shaw in the air force. He worked as an ordinary enlisted man in the construction factories and spent much time at Bridlington in charge of a flotilla of targets.

England was forced to forget him until a month ago when he wrote to an old war comrade: "My time runs out in a month hence and I shall be very sorry. The work passes my time." Of his future home he said: "It is a cottage in the middle of a great heath of bracken and heather. Two rooms, no bed, no kitchen, and no drains, but a spring in the garden and a feeling of utter peace."

The unfortunates camped in the outskirts of Chungking and many died. The city provided coffins for them. A great pile of the coffins was placed on the edge of the camp, awaiting use as needed.

He followed and she sat in the machine in front of her home and discussed their differences. She got out to go in the house. Hunt called, "Goodby," and shot himself with a 38-caliber revolver belonging to his father.

8-MONTH U. S. DEFICIT PUT AT $2,249,000,000

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 2. — The Government lived $2,249,923,235 beyond its income during the first eight months of the current fiscal year which ends June 30. But at the close of business on Feb. 28, this deficit was less than that for the comparable period last year when income was $2,352,170,239 behind expenditures.

Gross income for the eight months since July 1 was $377,000,000 ahead of last year's. Expenditures were $274,000,000 larger.

General governmental costs for two-thirds of the fiscal year were $2,185,461,545 as compared with $1,826,614,865 last year. Outlays credited to emergency needs were $2,326,473,822 as against $2,411,156,615 a year ago.

The gross public debt on Feb. 28 was $28,525,994,302, or about $2,500,000,000 higher than it was last year.

MELLON DEFENSE TRYING TO EXPLAIN STOCK TRANSFERS

HEARING RECESSES OVER THE WEEKEND

Former Treasury Chief's Fortune $200,000,000 in 1931 — $68,000,000 Christmas Gift.

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., March 2.—From the same witness, two contrasting pictures are being drawn of former Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon's millions and how he managed them.

With Mellon's income tax hearing in recess over the week-end, counsel for the Government and for Mellon worked today over thousands of words of technical testimony, preparing for the coming week.

Howard M. Johnson, Mellon's financial secretary for 20 years, after a brisk re-direct examination in which his testimony brought out that Mellon's personal fortune in early December, 1931, was $200,000,000 and that what the Government called "shadow sales" of stock had nothing to do with Mellon's income affairs, was still testifying at the recess, but was expected to leave the stand soon.

The Internal Revenue Bureau is insisting before the Tax Board of Appeals that Mellon should pay $3,089,000 on his 1931 income but Mellon contends there should be a $139,000 refund for that year.

Questioning by Hogan.

Frank J. Hogan, Mellon's chief counsel, took up the questioning of Johnson where Government men left off, and attempted to draw entirely different inferences from those of the Government.

Johnson has been a witness for eight days and through it all Government counsel pointed at three big matters—the Coalesced Co., the Ascalot Co., personal holding company of Mellon's daughter, and a "joint" account held by A. W. Mellon and his brother, the late R. B. Mellon. The Government has accused Andrew W. Mellon of making "wash sales" to Coalesced and Ascalot, the holding corporation, in order to avoid income taxes.

Taking up Coalesced affairs, Hogan, by disclosing a contract between A. W., R. B. and W. L. Mellon with Coalesced to obtain a $60,000,000 issue of Union Gulf Co. bonds in 1931, attempted to show that Andrew W. Mellon himself was not the "dominant factor" in Coalesced.

The firm was reorganized late in 1931. The common stock is held by his children, Paul Mellon and Mrs. Ailsa Bruce, and Mellon holds the $20,000,000 preferred stock.

In all, it was developed in Johnson's testimony, the Mellons agreed to guarantee up to $78,000,000 the bond issue of Union Gulf, a pipe line concern. When, in 1931, securities posted for the issue depreciated, Andrew W. Mellon then went to Coalesced and entered into a contract for securities to bolster the bond security, it was testified. Through this contract Hogan attempted to show Mellon did not operate Coalesced at will. The $60,000,000 bond issue eventually was retired and every bondholder paid, Johnson said.

Hogan's examination further drew forth the statement that the Mellon children as voting stockholders of Coalesced could by paying $5 premiums on each $100 buy in the $20,000,000 preferred stock owned by their father by selling some of the concern's assets. Its surplus was listed as $41,500,000 in 1932, $71,771,000 in 1933 and $71,772,000 in 1933.

Regarding Mellon's personal fortune, Johnson mentioned the total inferentially but Hogan said later, privately, that on Dec. 1, 1931, it was reckoned at $205,000,000.

$68,000,000 in Christmas Gifts.

For Christmas of 1931, Johnson said, Mellon made gifts to his children of between $68,000,000 and $100,000,000 which helped to reduce Mellon's personal wealth to $97,000,000 at the end of that year.

It is a Government contention that much of the securities turned over were only "purported" gifts.

As for the joint account of A. W. and R. B. Mellon, Hogan got Johnson to testify that the total holdings of the brothers in that account was $20,000,000 in 1931, about $8,000,000 of which was in real estate.

Johnson said further that 193,000 shares of Pittsburgh Coal Co. common stock held by the brothers was not a voting majority of that concern, because the 400,000 shares of preferred stock also had voting power.

The Government has argued that selling 123,000 shares of common stock, A. W. Mellon would have broken up a majority control which he held with his brother and that it would have been better business to have sold both together and obtained a much higher price.

The stock, which cost Mellon $6,000,000, was sold to the Union Trust Co. for $500,000, and Mellon declared an income tax loss of more than $5,000,000 in 1931. Some months later Coalesced bought the stock for $517,000. Robert H. Jackson, chief Government counsel, charged the sale was made merely to escape income tax payments.

Johnson, as he finished the week on the stand, said Mellon made at least one sale to Union Trust at a profit—the sale in February, 1931, of 4½ per cent Bethlehem bonds on which he made and reported a gain of $1,922,631.44.

Mining Relief Project.

The creation of a $100,000,000 revolving fund to finance mining operations for relief of unemployed was approved during the day by the Senate Mines Committee in reporting out a bill by Senator Pope (Dem.), Idaho. Under the bill, the Director of the Bureau of Mines would be authorized to use the money in opening gold mines and sources of other metal snot produced in sufficient quantity in this country. Earnings of the mines would be used to maintain the revolving fund.

NEW ATTACK ON PINK SLIP LAW IN HOUSE COMMITTEE

McCormack of Massachusetts Calls Income Tax Publicity Act a "Snooping Proposition."

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—As Chairman Doughton of the House Ways and Means Committee drafted a bill to repeal the income tax publicity law, another member of that committee today termed the present law just a "snooping proposition."

Representative McCormack (Dem.), Massachusetts, reminded in a statement that publicity on tax returns was directed by Congress in 1861, repealed in 1862, re-instituted in 1909, repealed in 1910, invoked again in 1924 and again repealed in 1925.

"Instead of accomplishing any good," he said, "it was used to obtain information which served no public good, and which resulted in injury in some form to the taxpayer. There is nothing progressive in such legislation."

Doughton's bill is scheduled to be presented to the House by next Thursday.

SUBMARINE RACING TO PORT

Fire in Control Room of British Undersea Craft.

VALETTA, Malta, March 2.—The British submarine Oxley, with fire in the control room, raced for Gibraltar last night. In addition to the Oxley, the destroyers Witch and Whished were damaged in a collision during maneuvers at sea and returned to this port.

No casualties were reported. The destroyers were only slightly damaged.

FOREIGN BONDHOLDER SUES ON GOLD CLAUSE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 2.—Another gold clause case came to light today with the filing of a suit in Federal District Court by a foreign owner of 411 first terminal and unifying mortgage bonds of the St. Louis Southwestern (Cotton Belt) Railway Co.

The plaintiff, described as the Anglo-Continental Treuhand A. G. of the principality of Liechtenstein, asks for damages of $17,176 alleging that this amount is owed by the defendant on interest coupons payable Jan. 1, "in gold."

Spokesmen for the railway said the plaintiff had acquired the bonds since Congress suspended the gold payment contract in 1933, and that the bonds were never offered abroad by the railway, but sold within this country. This fact, plus the ruling of the Supreme Court absolving private borrowers from the gold contract would form the basis of the railway company's answer to the suit, it was indicated.

In meeting interest and principal payments on bonds sold abroad to bona fide foreign residents, most of the American corporations with such obligations have continued to live up to the gold contract. The Supreme Court decisions were not construed as affecting these obligations and Wall Street legal authorities expressed the opinion today that such contracts would be fulfilled in the future.

ENGLISH WOMAN WHO KILLED IMBECILE SON RELEASED

Was Convicted by Jury and Condemned to Hang But Later Was Granted Reprieve.

By the Associated Press.

MANCHESTER, England, March 2.—Mrs. May Brownhill, 62 years old, who was condemned to be hanged for killing her 30-year-old imbecile son, was released today from Strangeways prison.

She was sentenced Dec. 1. A jury after five minutes of deliberation convicted her, but recommended mercy. The judge ignored the recommendation.

George Lansbury, prominent Laborite, was one of those who was most insistent that mercy should be shown in the case. Two days after sentence was passed the Home Office informed Lansbury that there would be a reprieve.

The woman testified that she gave her son, Denis, 100 sedative tablets and turned on the gas because she feared an operation she faced might be fatal and deprive him of her care. She had nursed him for 30 years.

The release was by order of the Home Secretary.

Sulu Princess Asserts Claim.

By the Associated Press.

MANILA, March 2.—The Princess Dayang-Dayang, heiress to the kingdom of the Sultan of Sulu, has asked President Roosevelt to help her establish her claim to 14 islands off the coast of British North Borneo. One of the islets, Siamil, is the site of a Japanese fish canning factory operated under a lease granted by British authorities. American officials of the Philippines do not take the Princess' claims seriously on the ground that title to all of the islets in the Sulu Sea and around British North Borneo was settled by treaties between the Moros, Great Britain and the United States. Spain surrendered claims to the United States in 1899.

11-YEAR-OLD BOY LIKELY TO TAKE SIAMESE THRONE

Prince Ananda, a Nephew, Probable Successor to King Prajadhipok, Who Has Abdicated.

NO OFFICIAL WORD YET OF RESIGNATION

Announcement to Be Made From Bangkok After Ruler, in England, Submits His Decree.

By the Associated Press.

BANGKOK, Siam, March 2.—Prince Ananda, 11-year-old nephew of King Prajadhipok, who is abdicating, probably will be named to succeed to the throne, an authoritative source said last night. Ananda is the son of the late Prince Mahidol, who studied medicine at Harvard University under the name of Mr. Songkala.

Phya Bahol, Prime Minister and commander-in-chief of the army, and his chief lieutenant, Luang Bipul Songgram, generally determine the policies of the army, and so of the nation. The army has played an important part in Siamese revolutions and was responsible for the maintenance of internal peace in the country since seizure of power in June, 1932.

The Constitution does not specify the method of succession in the event of an abdication. It broadly states that in case the King fails to appoint someone to perform his functions the People's Assembly may act. The Assembly is authorized to name the King's successor or substitute to carry on the affairs of State.

It is learned that only five of 156 members of Parliament favored granting the King's conditions for his return at a recent private voting.

Prajadhipok, in England, Drafts Formal Abdication Decree.

By the Associated Press.

CRANLEIGH, England, March 2.—King Prajadhipok of Siam started work on his formal abdication decree last night while a phonograph in his study played American dance music. At Knowle House, the King's country mansion, M. R. Smaksman, his private secretary, said flatly the King was absolutely through.

There was little about the grounds to indicate a great change was taking place which will affect Siam's 10,000,000 persons. The King's chauffeurs were playing a spirited game of darts in the garage. An upturned canoe on the private lake indicated Queen Rambaibarni had enjoyed her customary paddle.

"The abdication will not properly be official until it is announced from Bangkok," the secretary said. "His Majesty realizes it would be a breach of England's hospitality to make any announcement here which might be construed as propaganda on his behalf. But I am not denying that he has abdicated to all intents and purposes. The delegation realized what it meant when word was received that the assembly had refused the King's conditions."

The King had strongly insisted that he could not keep the throne unless the Government recanted on the issues of the dispute.

Many months of negotiations preceded the abdication announcement, made yesterday. A delegation of Siamese held many conferences in an attempt to patch up the breach between the King, who felt his powers had been stripped from him, and the Government at Bangkok. Parliament rejected the King's conditions.

Two of the points were the King's demand for trial in an ordinary court for persons suspected of opposition to the Government instead of summary judgment at a secret trial, and his objections to provisions specifying that half of the members of the National Assembly shall be nominated by the Government.

King Said to Have Provided for $50,000 Annuity.

LONDON, March 2.—The Daily Express publishes a report from Bangkok that King Prajadhipok, before leaving Siam, paid £180,000 (about $900,000) to a London insurance company for a £10,000 ($50,000) annuity. The annuity becomes payable on the date of abdication, the Express says.

75 PCT. OF U. S. BONDS BOUGHT BY BANKS IN 1930-34

Industrial Conference Board Reports They Absorbed 8 Billions of Federal Issues in 4 Years.

GLASS ASSERTS THEY ARE FORCED TO DO IT

Says They Have to Take Securities to Sustain Previous Investments in Government Paper.

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—The banks of the country hold at least one-half of the $26,000,000,000 of interest bearing bonds that the Federal Government had outstanding last June, according to a comprehensive study just completed by the National Industrial Conference Board.

In the four-year period from June, 1930, to June, 1934, the interest-bearing debt of the Government increased $10,962,000,000, of which the banks absorbed $8,445,000,000, approximately three-fourths. This represented an increase of 190 per cent in the amount of Government obligations held by the banks, according to the Conference Board report, made public today. The board is controlled by a group of large corporations.

Glass Puts Figure Higher.

In arguing against the prevailing wage amendment to the $4,880,000,000 public works-relief bill recently, Senator Carter Glass (Dem.), Virginia, put the percentage of all Federal obligations held by the banks even higher. The conference board's figures are as of June 30, 1934, while Glass was presumably using more nearly current estimates.

"The existing outstanding indebtedness of the United States is approximately $28,000,000,000," Glass said, warning the Senate against putting an additional burden on the Treasury through adoption of the prevailing wage provision. "Listen, Senators: Of that amount $15,364,000,000 is piled up in the banking institutions of the country. Some of the banks have as much as 60 per cent of their entire assets invested in Government securities. They are prohibited, were there the demand, from coming to the aid of business activity. They hold 55 per cent of Government securities in the banks of the United States as against but 11 per cent of Great Britain's indebtedness held in the banks of Great Britain—55 per cent as against 11 per cent."

Glass maintained that the banks had been put in the position of being compelled to buy Government securities as they were offered, because it was necessary to sustain the market for Government bonds in order to protect what had become the principal asset of most banks.

"They are compelled to take them," Glass said, "in order to maintain the bond market of the United States, because it has been represented to me by competent authorities that a depreciation of 10 per cent in Government bonds would render insolvent 90 per cent of the banks of this country."

Federal Reserve Banks.

In recent months, according to the Conference Boards' survey, "practically all of the earning assets of the Federal Reserve banks have consisted of Federal obligations." The proportion of the total on Dec. 12, 1934, was 99 per cent, according to the board. On that date, Federal paper held by Federal Reserve banks amounted to $2,430,000,000, while other assets were $22,000,000.

"The Reserve banks continue to hold the reserves of member banks, but recently there has been almost no demand for rediscounts or short-term loans by member banks," says the Conference Board. "Purchases of Government securities in the open market for 1932 and 1933 as a part of an easy-credit policy account for the larger part of the increases in the amount of United States Government securities held by Federal Reserve banks from June 30, 1930, to June 30, 1934."

The board's report points out that in the three-year period from 1930 to 1933 there was a steady downward trend in total loans and investments of member banks of the Federal Reserve system, while holdings of Government securities were steadily increasing. From June 30, 1933, to June 30, 1934, there was an increase of $2,371,000,000 in total loans and investments and in the same period the holdings of Government and Government-guaranteed securities showed an increase of $2,759,000,000. Thus in June of 1934 the proportion of total loans and investments represented by Federal securities was almost three times as large as in June of 1930.

Federal securities accounted for 56.8 per cent of the investments of loan and trust companies, 57.7 per cent of the investments of national banks, and 34.7 per cent of the investments of state banks, the Conference Board reports.

500 New Deal Test Suits Pending, 258 on the NIRA, All Moving to Final Decision in Supreme Court

Attorney-General Cummings Thinks Next Ruling, on Lumber Code, May Dispose of TVA and Coal Mining Issues.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—More than 500 tests of New Deal legislation are pending in the Federal courts and, said Department of Justice officials, 258 of them involve the National Industrial Recovery Act.

The question in many of these is: "What constitutes interstate commerce?"

The NIRA is based on the commerce clause of the Constitution under which Congress regulates interstate commerce; it has been challenged on the ground that the clause does not authorize any Federal control over intrastate businesses.

Recent Adverse Decisions.

Two recent decisions have gone against the administration. United States District Judge Nields at Wilmington, Del., ruled that the collective bargaining clause of the Recovery Act was unconstitutional as applied to the Weirton Steel Co. He said the Constitution gave Congress no right to regulate manufacture. On the same day United States District Judge Dawson at Louisville, Ky., taking a similar view, granted an injunction against enforcement of the soft coal mining code.

Attorney-General Cummings says he looks for the questions in both of these cases to be settled by another case already pending in the Supreme Court. This is the Government's appeal from the decision of United District Judge Grubb at Birmingham, Ala., that the NIRA and a lumber code established under it are unconstitutional. Cummings hopes the Wilmington and Louisville cases may be combined with the Birmingham litigation, which is to be argued before the Supreme Court next month.

Three other important tests are docketed for consideration by the Supreme Court next month.

Ruling on Slum Clearance.

The first of these is a "slum clearance" action started at Louisville, Ky. Judge Dawson held there that the Government did not have the right to condemn four city blocks for which $1,628,000 in PWA funds had been made available. He held that condemnation could be exercised only for a public use and that so to take private property for a private use was unconstitutional. Attorneys have asked the court for a ruling Monday in this case.

The fate of 50 similar projects in 30 different cities may be affected by the decision.

Thousands of railroad workers are watching for a decision March 13 in another case before the Supreme Court. It is expected to decide the legality of the railroad pension act. Although this was not a New Deal measure it may provide a precedent for the administration's social security legislation.

Another case in the Supreme Court is a test of the retail motor code, initiated by a New York auto corporation.

The expiration date of NIRA is June 16.

COURT TO ANNUL TVA CONTRACT WITH ALABAMA POWER CO.

By the Associated Press.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., March 2.—Preliminary to signing a formal decree, United States District Judge W. I. Grubb said yesterday he would annul in its entirety a contract between the Tennessee Valley Authority and the Alabama Power Co. for the transfer of the power company's transmission lines in Northern Alabama.

The decree will be limited to the contract with the Alabama Power Co. and will not affect those between the TVA and the Mississippi Power Co. and the Tennessee Electric & Power Co.

The interchange agreement with the Alabama Power Co., since it was a part of the contract with that company, will fall with the decree. However, since the decree will give the TVA four months after the final appeal to make new arrangements, it is anticipated that the order will have little if any effect on contracts outside of Alabama, where the TVA now is selling current wholesale.

He held that since an "interchange" agreement through which the TVA had been selling current wholesale to municipalities and county organizations was involved in the contract, this would fall within the decree.

Under the "interchange" agreement with the Alabama Power Co., TVA current has been delivered to Tupelo, Pontotoc and the Alcorn County Association in Mississippi and to Athens, Ala., and Pulaski, Tenn.

Judge Grubb said he would hold that the TVA was entitled to Wheeler Dam, as it was built legally, and "the decree ought to provide against any disturbance of work there."

The session in his chambers was to permit attorneys for the TVA and the preferred shareholders of the Alabama Power Co., who sued to restrain the TVA's utility operations, to agree on points in the final decree.

The TVA is now operating rural lines into Lauderdale and Colbert counties, Alabama, but these are not involved in this suit.

Service to these lines may depend on the definition of "surplus" power, for Judge Grubb held, during the lengthy hearing that preceded his ruling a week ago that although the TVA could not legally enter the general business of selling power, the TVA had a right to dispose of "surplus" power. Judge Grubb had said that surplus power was that over and above the needs of performing constitutional functions of navigation, national defense and flood control.

COURT SUSTAINS USE OF PWA FUNDS AT TRENTON, MO.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 2.—United States District Judge Merrill E. Otis notified the city of Trenton, Mo., yesterday that he would throw out of court a suit for injunction against its using PWA funds for construction of a power plant.

In a memorandum opinion—one in which the court states its views and indicates to litigants the action necessary to conform—he told attorneys for Trenton that if they would enter a motion he would sustain it.

Trenton, with a PWA grant of $65,100, sought to issue bonds for $250,000 to get a loan from the PWA. The Missouri Public Service Co., owner of an electric light plant at Trenton, resisted on the ground that the PWA was unconstitutional.

The memorandum opinion stated three conclusions:

"(1) The proposed purchase by the United States of the bonds of the City of Trenton and the proposed grant to that city are within the power conferred on administrative officials by title 2 (PWA) of the National Industrial Recovery Act.

"(2) Title 2 is constitutional as against any of the attacks made upon it in this case.

"(3) Whether or not title 2 is constitutional, the plaintiff has no standing in this case to question its constitutionality."

Judge Otis' decision marked a difference of opinion between the two Federal judges of the Western District of Missouri—both Republicans. Judge Albert L. Reeves last September ruled against the City of Concordia, Mo.

In the Trenton opinion, Judge Otis followed his own ruling in a similar case arising at California, Mo.

TOBACCO CROP CONTROL TAX SET AT 33 1-3 PER CENT

WASHINGTON, March 2.—The tobacco production tax was set at 33 1-3 per cent for the 1935 crop year as Secretary of Agriculture Wallace late yesterday proclaimed the Kerr-Smith control act in effect for another year. The proclamation was issued in accordance with the results of referendums among growers, which were overwhelmingly in favor of continuance, but the tax rate had been in doubt.

Under the Kerr-Smith Act, the Secretary of Agriculture had the option of setting the tax rate anywhere between 25 per cent and 33 1-3 per cent, and the minimum was levied for 1934.

The tax is levied on all tobacco grown outside allotments. It applies to practically all important types, including flue cured, fire cured burley, dark air cured and cigar filler and binder leaf.

Revised Rules of Contract Bridge.

NEW YORK, March 2.—Revised rules for contract bridge, involving changes in scoring, will be announced by the Whist Club March 18, to go into effect April 1. Because of the date of the announcement the start of the 150-rubber match between Mr. and Mrs. Ely Culbertson and Mr. and Mrs. P. Hal Sims has been postponed a week to March 25.

JOBLESS MAY GO TO LABOR CAMPS

Chancellor Hitler Declares He May Need 15 or 20 Years to Make Germany Happy and Free.

By the Associated Press.

SAARBRUECKEN, Germany, March 2.—Nazi Germany now faces the task of making good the promises to new countrymen in the Saar Basin returned to Germany as a result of the plebiscite.

Since the plebiscite and during the campaign, the Nazis promised the Saarlanders peace, prosperity, church freedom, bread and large coal purchases.

Chancellor Hitler, who not long ago asked for five years in which to achieve his program, declared yesterday he would need 15 to 20 years to "make Germany happy and free."

As one of its major problems, Germany must pay France $59,400,000 for Saar mines turned over to the French under the Versailles Treaty. France was given these mines for damage wrought by the German army to French mines during the World War.

Wedding Rings Contributed.

Joseph Buerckel, Governor of the Saar, announced that hundreds of thousands of gold wedding rings had been sent in to help pay for the mines and that two American girls had sent $2 to a German aunt for this purpose. It is thought the people will be asked to turn in gold objects as a thanks offering. The floating of a huge patriotic loan also is anticipated. The mines are to cost $59,400,000.

Another problem, unemployment, may be solved by sending the idle into labor camps.

The disparity between Saar and Reich commodity prices will be the subject of a sweeping price supervision.

Hitler's unexpected arrival and pronouncements threw the Saarland into a frenzy of excitement. He had at first decided not to go to greet the territory's transfer, but at the last minute considered the opportunity too good to miss.

"It is quite possible," he declared, "that by this return the crisis was averted under which two great nations suffered. By this act of equity and justice the way finally has been cleared for improving our relations with France."

Parades in Berlin Last Four Hours; All Germany Celebrates.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, March 2.—Germany welcomed the Saar back to the Reich yesterday in the greatest fanfare since the Nazis seized power two years ago. The nation, from one end to the other, was on the march until well after dusk. Bands played and crowds sang Saar songs.

The biggest celebrations took place in Berlin. The city's entire population appeared to have joined storm troopers and Reichswehr (regular army) forces in tramping through the streets.

The parading columns marched for four solid hours, converging on the Lustgarten from all parts of the city. There they listened to Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler and other Nazi leaders speaking from Saarbrucken. Other cities had celebrations and parades.

Celebrations Continue.

The Saarlanders were [illegible] today, even after the departure of the Fuehrer, to quit celebrating. Rudolf Hess, Hitler's right hand man, remained to make a round of the towns and villages.

School children enjoyed a patriotic fete and another mass was scheduled for tonight with a torchlight procession.

STRAIGHT NATURAL GAS CONSIDERED BY LACLEDE

CONTRACT WITH LOUISIANA FIRM

It Would Be Necessary to Adjust This Agreement if Entire Need Could Be Met.

Feasibility of supplying St. Louis consumers with straight natural gas, instead of the present mixture of manufactured gas, natural gas and certain other gasses has been taken under consideration by the Laclede Gas Light Co., E. P. Gosling, president, told a special committee of the Board of Aldermen yesterday.

He said he would confer further with representatives of the Texas about the possibility of obtaining a natural gas supply. Both interests have proposed laying a pipe line to St. Louis with Government assistance. Gosling declared the Laclede company was interested in furnishing straight natural gas if it could be provided to obtain an adequate supply at a fair price, and would like to learn the lowest price at which it could get a supply from any source.

Adjustment Necessary.

A contract with the Mississippi River Fuel Corporation, a subsidiary of Standard Oil of New Jersey now furnishing the Laclede company's natural gas supply from Louisiana, would have to be adjusted, Gosling said, if straight natural gas was to be provided. The present contract, for a 15-year term, was made about four years ago. It was understood the contract provided that natural gas was not to be purchased by the Laclede company from any other source and that straight natural gas was not to be served.

Gosling was of the opinion that the Mississippi River Fuel Corporation would not object to adjusting the terms of the contract if it could not furnish the entire supply needed. When the pipe line had sufficient capacity and a larger supply could be obtained through it, he did not think that the Louisiana field could be depended on enough to meet the entire demand for straight natural gas.

Cost Consideration.

The price at which straight natural gas would have to be sold in order to compete with coal-gas rating was under consideration, Gosling said, pointing out that with fairly steady volume of use there would be a factor in this. He thought natural gas might be sold at the equivalent of the average, but not the lowest, price of coal. Average cost to the Laclede company for natural gas last year was 23 cents per 1000 cubic feet and it has been costing 27 cents per 1000 cubic feet to manufacture gas, but when the market is good for by-product manufactured gas, it can be bought as cheaply as natural gas is at present, Gosling stated.

He thought it made no difference to the consumer what type of gas was sold, provided the cost per unit of heating value was satisfactory. Texas interests have said that natural gas might be delivered for 20 to 25 cents per 1000 cubic feet.

Changes in Apparatus.

The principal consideration in the coming adoption of straight natural gas was the cost to the Laclede company of readjusting consumers' burning apparatus, Gosling said. He gave the cost in 1932, when natural gas was mixed with the manufactured product, as $750,000, and estimated that it would be greater under the present relative change because of the proportionately higher heating value of straight natural gas.

No change in the distribution system would be required to handle straight natural gas, he continued. Asked by City Counselor Hay if some smaller cities could pay 25 cents per 1000 cubic feet for natural gas and deliver it to consumers for less than the rates charged by the present St. Louis supply, Gosling asserted that maintenance of the distribution system was more expensive in a larger city and that the rate here amounted to 11 cents per 1000 cubic feet.

Not Ready for Decision.

Gosling said it would take some time for study before a definite statement of policy could be made by the company, but he thought he could be ready by the time the State Public Service Commission opened its hearing March 25 on the St. Louis natural gas question.

Associate City Counselor Hay asked why the Laclede company had become interested in straight natural gas although it had indicated heretofore that it was not available. Gosling replied that the company had been watching the situation, in which interest had been aroused in the city, and that it also considered the renewed fight on the smoke problem and the possibilities of it being held heating with gas.

Gas coal used by the Laclede company came from Kentucky and Virginia, chiefly from two companies which, like the Laclede company, are subsidiaries of Utilities Power & Light Corporation.

ONE CASKET FOR MAN, GIRL WHO JUMPED FROM PLANE

School Teacher and Sweetheart to Be Buried Together in Switzerland.

By the Associated Press.

BERNE, Switzerland, March 2.—Authorities pieced together the tragedy of Charles Grieder, 25 years old, a school teacher at Lausen, and his sweetheart, Mlle. Antoinette Joery, 22, who leaped to their death together from an airplane over Lausen yesterday.

Police said Grieder had been unable to produce money he had collected for the athletic association of his school and was suspended. He went to Basel where he told the story to Mlle. Joery. They went to a restaurant and drank champagne. Then they went to the airport and hired a sight-seeing plane.

Pilot Ettinger said he flew them as far as Sissach, two miles from Lausen. Just after he turned back toward Basel, he said, the plunge was made. While Grieder diverted Ettinger's attention Mlle. Joery opened the emergency door and jumped. Grieder followed her immediately.

Powerless to interfere and still control his plane, Ettinger saw them leap. Police, who went to the spot indicated by the pilot, found the bodies beside a little stream. They were placed together in a single casket.

COLLEGE FENCER RUN THROUGH CHEST IN INFORMAL MATCH

Saber Thrust of Larry Libecap Pierces Lung of Robert Zolg in Bout at Dayton, O.

By the Associated Press.

DAYTON, O., March 2.—Two college fencers engaged in an impromptu match with sabers last night and one of them, Robert Zolg, of the University of Dayton, was seriously wounded. His opponent's blade went entirely through his chest, puncturing one lung.

Zolg, with Larry Libecap of the University of Cincinnati, had gone to the Building Industries gymnasium. Libecap said acquaintances had suggested an informal bout. Both skilled—they were co-captains of the University of Dayton's fencing team in 1933—they chose sabers.

The points bent double to lessen the danger of injury, Libecap's sword apparently glanced from Zolg's arm, and in a lunge, pierced the right chest wall, emerging at the other side.

Libecap, leaving the University of Dayton, enrolled at the University of Cincinnati, where he continued his activity with the foils and mask.

PATROLMAN WHO WAS SHOT BY SON IN QUARREL OUSTED

Police Board Finds Him Guilty of Unbecoming Conduct and Unauthorized Absence.

Patrolman Charles E. Mohr of the Newstead Avenue District, who was shot in the abdomen and arm Feb. 1 by his 17-year-old son, Edward, in a quarrel at Shiloh, Ill., was dropped from the force yesterday after a hearing by the Board of Police Commissioners of charges of unbecoming conduct and unauthorized absence from the city.

Mohr said he visited his estranged wife in Shilch to give her some money, and while there slapped his son and knocked him down after rebuking him for unauthorized use of a relative's automobile. Mohr drove to St. Louis after being shot and went to De Paul Hospital for treatment.

Detective Lee Farrow, charged with drinking and disobedience of orders in failing to make a report, was also dismissed. He had been a policeman 14 years.

LIQUOR SALESMAN ENDS LIFE

The body was found by his wife, Mrs. Rose Hagemeier, and a neighbor, Thomas Barrett, 1237 Purcell avenue, who went to the garage after hearing a shot. Mrs. Hagemeier said her husband had been despondent.

39 RE-INDICTED IN $237,000 BOND THEFT IN CHICAGO

'BOSS' M'LAUGHLIN IS NAMED AGAIN

Conspiracy Defendants Also Include Harry A. Sodini, Formerly of St. Louis, and Dodridge Farrell.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 2.—John J. (Boss) McLaughlin, politician, and 38 others were re-indicted yesterday on charges of conspiracy and possession of bonds stolen in the $237,000 holdup of postal clerks in the Loop Dec. 6, 1932.

The defendants were charged with conspiring with three men since killed and four unidentified persons who were said to be the leaders in the actual robbery.

Among those named as co-conspirators were Gus Winkler, gangster who was killed in front of a North Side beer distributing plant after repeal; Edgar Lebensberger, whose mysterious death on the eve of his indictment caused politico-criminal reverberations, and the late Ted Virgilio.

Practically all the loot, including nearly $100,000 in Liberty Bonds, has since been recovered by postal inspectors and police throughout the nation.

Federal prosecutors said 20 of the defendants were in custody and search was under way for the fugitives.

Move for One Big Trial.

Virtually all had been previously indicted, but a blanket conspiracy indictment was returned yesterday in an effort to enable the Government to remove all of the defendants to the Chicago district for one trial.

Among the 81 overt acts charged in the indictments returned before Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan were allegations that the defendants held various rendezvous in Chicago, New York, Springfield, Ill., St. Louis, Kansas City, Mo., St. Paul, Dallas, Tex., and San Antonio, Tex.

The Government charged that the meetings were arranged for the purpose of disposing of stolen bonds.

Louis Fratto, an alleged former Capone henchman, was the only man indicted as one of the actual robbers.

Twenty-two of the defendants were named in a second indictment, charging conspiracy to have in their possession matter stolen from the mails.

The List of Defendants.

Alleged ringleaders named by the Government were McLaughlin, Fratto, Louis Wolfe and Gus Anders. Other defendants were:

Sam Levick, alias "Baby Doll," Chicago bondsman; Saw Labow, former Chicago druggist, now in Leavenworth penitentiary; Rocco F. J. de Grasse and Vincent de Grasse, New York City; James Weinberg, Kansas City; Julius Riseman, Dave Fishman and Maurice Fishman, Springfield; Louis C. Pettott, no address; John M. Minnec, no address; Thaddeus S. Stevens, Springfield; Al Miller, Chicago; Edgar R. Bagarozy, New York; Dominic Gentile, Robert Roberto and Bud Gentry, Chicago.

Doddridge Farrell, St. Louis; Harry A. Sodini, St. Paul (formerly of St. Louis); Ernest C. Henning, Joseph L. Vodak, Byron Carey, Clark B. Richie and Robert Palhamus, Chicago; F. E. Colvin, Kansas City; Clem Ehinger, Leon H. Winters and William H. Schultz, Kansas City; Louis B. Krilow, St. Paul; Bernard F. Spangler, Chicago; Thomas H. Baird, St. Paul; William Graves, no address; Joe Levine, Kansas City; Mrs. Edna Lovig, Chicago; Charles Joye, alias "Cherry Nose Charlie," Chicago, and Ralph Berger, Chicago.

Farrell Says He Sold Bonds for Client Who Disappeared.

Doddridge Farrell, 5376 Waterman avenue, a former broker, said today that he had explained his connection with about $9500 of the stolen bonds to postoffice inspectors. He sold the bonds at his bank for a client who disappeared after the deal. On discovery that the bonds were stolen, Farrell partly recompensed the purchasers, and resigned his position as agent for an out-of-town brokerage firm.

Harry A. Sodini formerly owned and later managed several St. Louis hotels. In the course of an inquiry into the $140,000 bond robbery of a Hannibal (Mo.) bank, it was disclosed that $5000 worth of the bonds were in his possession. He said he acquired them in a leigitimate business deal. He was summoned to appear before a grand jury at Hannibal, but left the day before he was to testify.

Postal Receipts for February.

Postal receipts in St. Louis during February totaled $733,919, a gain of 4.11 per cent over February of 1934. Postmaster Jackson said receipts of nearly every month for the last year have shown a gain in comparison with the same month of the previous year.

RICHETTI INDICTED FOR STATION KILLINGS

Fingerprints on Beer Bottle Link Him to Kansas City Machine Gun Murders.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 2.—Adam Richetti, henchman of "Pretty Boy" Floyd, and, according to the Government, the last survivor of the three gunmen who killed four officers and convict Frank Nash in a liberation plot, at the Kansas City Union Station in 1933, was indicted by the Jackson County grand jury yesterday on four counts of murder. He pleaded not guilty.

A beer bottle allegedly bearing Richetti's fingerprints was one of the exhibits taken to the grand jury. The beer, United States District Attorney Maurice Milligan believes, was served at a party at Verne C. Miller's house the night of the machine gun killings. It was alleged to have been served to Richetti by Vivian Martin, who posed here as Miller's wife.

Meeting With Miller.

Floyd and Richetti, fresh from a kidnaping and in search of new pastures, had come to Kansas City the night of June 16 and met Miller, coincidentally or soon after Mrs. Francis Nash had telephoned the former Chicago gunman that her husband was being brought here by officers for return to prison.

The two Oklahoma gangsters arrived at 6 p. m., and at 12:30 a. m., June 17, Miller telephoned Mrs. Nash at the home of Herbert Farmer in Joplin, Mo., that everything was in readiness and she would have Nash back again soon.

The indictments returned against Richetti accuse him of the murders of Kansas City Detectives William Grooms and Frank Hermanson, Police Chief Otto Reed of McAlester, Ok., and Department of Justice Agent A. Rasmond Caffrey.

Miss Mathis, who, with Mrs. Nash, pleaded guilty in Federal Court in January to charges of conspiracy to liberate Nash and was freed on probation, will be used as a witness against Richetti. She will tell for the first time W. W. Graves Jr., County Prosecuting Attorney hopes, of the plot which led to the death fo Nash and four of his captors. She is living in Chicago.

Six persons, two of them women, were convicted in Federal Court of conspiring to free Nash. Each of the women was released on probation. The men, Richard Tallman Galatas of Hot Springs and New Orleans, Louis ("Doc") Stacci of Chicago, Herbert Farmer of Joplin and Frank B. Mulloy of Kansas City received the full penalty of two years in prison and fines of $10,000. The women were Mrs. Galatas and Mrs. Farmer.

Carrying Out of Conspiracy.

The conspiracy in which they were involved was only the first act of the station killings, officers charge. The second act was the agreement among Floyd, Richetti and Miller to rescue Nash by aid of machine guns. Floyd and Richetti, officers believe, did not know Nash, but agreed to help their friend, Miller, rescue his friend, Nash.

The final act was the shooting in Union Station Plaza, which, in addition to leaving Nash and four of his captors dead, left two others wounded and a city policeman firing wildly. The policeman, Myron K. Fanning, brooded over his unfortunate part in the affair until last December. Then he ran wild and killed a fellow officer, Grant Schroeder. He is awaiting murder trial.

Floyd later was killed by officers and Miller by other gangsters.

Two Years for Harboring Gangster.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 2.—Jack Perkins, 35 years old, former Chicago race track bookmaker, was sentenced to two years in a Federal prison and fined $1000 today on his plea of guilty of harboring "Baby Face" Nelson, gangster, who was killed later by Federal agents.

WOMAN HURT TUESDAY IN AUTO COLLISION DIES

Mrs. Marion Keith, 65, Fatally Injured in Crash at Spring and Botanical.

Mrs. Marion Keith, 65 years old, a widow, 3618 Shenandoah avenue, died at City Hospital yesterday of injuries suffered Tuesday in an automobile collision at Spring and Botanical avenues.

She was riding west in Botanical avenue with Herman Bair, 3960 Tholozan avenue. The machine collided with another driven by Edwin Outman, 4338 Itaska street. Mrs. Keith suffered fractured ribs and internal injuries.

Woman Jolted From Auto Dies of Injury.

Mrs. Charles S. Turner, 41, of St. Louis County, died in a Granite City Hospital last night of a fractured skull suffered last Wednesday night when she fell out of her husband's automobile at a railroad crossing between Venice and Madison, Ill.

The door opened when the car struck a depression in the road, and Mrs. Turner was jolted out of her seat. The Turner home is at Carson and Geiger roads.

East St. Louis Boy Hit by Auto When on Way from School.

EX-CONVICT TO TESTIFY AGAINST PALS IN KILLING

Van Buren Dedmon Jr., twice-paroled Federal convict, intends to testify against the two fellow-hoodlums who helped him murder William C. Moss, East St. Louis street car motorman, in a holdup Feb. 22.

Dedmon, who was wounded by Moss, told Assistant State's Attorney Fred Bier about it yesterday at St. Elizabeth's Hospital where he was taken for an operation to remove a bullet lodged in his left hip bone.

"Those fellows are not for me," Dedmon said. "When I was shot they left me in the alley to die. And now they're trying to put this killing on me. It was Edward Balling that fired the first shot at Moss. Then John Krul fired, Moss fired back and all six of his bullets hit me. I went down and then I fired at him. I fired three times. There were six bullets hit him, so I couldn't have done it all."

The East St. Louis and Suburban Railway has employed James A Farmer, Belleville attorney, as special prosecutor in the trial of the three men.

FATHER OF 7 BOUND OVER ON LIQUOR-MAKING CHARGE

James Wallace, Cuba (Mo.) Farmer, Is Held for the Federal Grand Jury.

James Wallace, 53 years old, father of seven children, was bound over to the Federal grand jury by United States Commissioner Burke yesterday, after a preliminary hearing on charges of illicit manufacture of liquor, and failure to register and pay taxes on a still.

Crawford County deputies reported they arrested Wallace two weeks ago on his farm two miles east of Cuba, Mo., after finding there a still of 125 gallons daily capacity and 30 gallons of alcohol. Wallace did not take the stand at the hearing.

'PECULIAR' FACTS IN DEATH OF STATLER HEIRESS

Evidence Insufficient to Tell Whether It Was Accident, Suicide or Murder, Official Says.

COMMENTS ON WAY SHE WAS DRESSED

Solicitor Casts Doubt on Theory She Died of Auto Fumes While Seated in Car in Garage.

By the Associated Press.

PINEHURST, N. C., March 2.—District Solicitor Roland Pruett, after examining witnesses, pointed yesterday to "peculiar" circumstances surrounding the death here early Wednesday of Mrs. H. Bradley Davidson Jr., 22-year-old adopted daughter and heiress of the late E. M. Statler, hotel magnate.

Mrs. Davidson, a bride of Jan. 3, was found in an automobile in the garage at the Davidson's winter home, Edgewood, apparently a victim of automobile exhaust fumes—carbon monoxide.

Summing up, Pruett said the evidence was insufficient to indicate whether she was the victim of an accident, suicide or murder.

"Peculiar Situation."

"It is a peculiar situation," he said, "for a woman to go for an early morning ride with only mules, a skirt and a sweater on.

"The butler got up at 7:30 o'clock, looked in front of the home for the car and discovered that it was in the garage. He made no investigation immediately but went to the garage to wash the car and found the body. The body was still warm at the time—9:05 a. m."

Pruett said today that he had developed information apparently at variance with evidence given at the inquest.

Mrs. Davidson was first said to have died at Moore County Hospital. Pruett said he was reliably informed, however, that rigor mortis had started to set in when servants first discovered her. Also, he said, instead of being in the driver's seat the body was in a kneeling position on the running board of the automobile, the head lying across her arms on the floorboards.

Questions Gas Theory.

Pruett said one of the principal angles to be followed between now and resumption of the inquest next week, would involve the original finding of physicians that Mrs. Davidson died from carbon monoxide poisoning. He said investigation disclosed that the doors of the three-car garage had considerable clearance at the bottom, providing ventilation which caused doubt that sufficient gas would have collected from the motor to cause death.

He said he and Dr. C. C. Carpenter, of Wake Forest College, who conducted the autopsy, would undertake immediately a study of the amount of gas necessary to cause death under such circumstances.

The Coroner's inquest is in recess until Tuesday, when the husband, H. Bradley Davidson, 41, guests and servants at the home will be asked to testify. Included are Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Campaigne of New York, the Davidson's house guests.

Mrs. Davidson was buried today at Valhalla, N. Y. Her husband accompanied the body to Valhalla and Mrs. E. M. Statler and Richard Porter Davidson of Washington and the latter's wife also were there. The services were conducted by the Rev. J. Walter Hauck, of Pilgrim Presbyterian Church, New York. Burial was in the Statler plot.

WOMAN'S DEATH IN DENTIST'S CHAIR HELD TO BE ACCIDENTAL

Attributed to Gas Anesthesia and Chronic Heart Disease in Coroner's Verdict.

A Coroner's verdict of accidental death from gas anesthesia and chronic heart disease was returned today at the inquest in the case of Mrs. Helen Rutherford, 38 years old, 7110 Idaho avenue, who died yesterday in the office of Dr. James A. Power, a dentist, 421 West Schirmer street, following a tooth extraction.

Dr. Power testified that before administering the usual amount of gas he asked Mrs. Rutherford if she ever had heart trouble and she replied she had not. She was under the gas only a short time, regained consciousness, then went into a spasm and collapsed, he said. He called a physician, who pronounced her dead. Dr. Power's testimony was corroborated by a woman neighbor who was in his office at the time.

Mrs. Rutherford's husband, Jerome, an unemployed painter, testified his wife had not been seriously ill for 15 years, and had never complained of heart disease. An autopsy disclosed the heart condition. Deputy Coroner Schultz explained to him that Dr. Power apparently had done his full duty in interrogating her before giving the anesthetic.

JUDGE WITNESS FOR STATE AND ROBBER IS CONVICTED

East St. Louis Jurist Testifies That Defendant Had Admitted Crime in Plea to Him.

City Judge Cook was a State's witness instead of Judge in his court in East St. Louis yesterday, and his testimony helped convict Albert Brown, 828 North Twenty-fifth street, East St. Louis, of a robbery charge. The jury returned the verdict last night. The mandatory sentence of from one to 20 years was deferred, pending ruling on a motion for a new trial.

Brown was charged with the $35 holdup of William Rohm, a bakery truck driver, last Aug. 6. He was identified by Rohm, and offered an alibi in defense. Judge Potter Harriss of Du Quoin presided so that Judge Cook could be a witness.

Judge Cook testified that Brown admitted the Rohm robbery when he pleaded guilty of another robbery last October before Cook. Brown was allowed to withdraw the plea when he charged he had been promised probation, and later was acquitted of the charge by a jury. However, Judge Cook related, Brown testified at that trial that he thought he was pleading guilty to the Rohm robbery charge when he made his plea in the first case.

TWO SENTENCED TO 30 DAYS FOR LIQUOR LAW VIOLATION

Workhouse Terms for Negroes Arrested in Raid on Place on Clark Avenue.

Lloyd Anderson and William Freeman, Negroes, 3130 Clark avenue, were sentenced to 30 days each in the Workhouse for violation of the City liquor ordinance by Police Judge Simpson yesterday. Police testified that they raided the place and found 12 Negroes drinking. Anderson and Freeman have been indicted for violation of the Federal internal revenue act.

Martin Leonard, 1447 Blair avenue, pleaded guilty and was fined $100, which was stayed on payment of $50, for selling liquor without a City license. Detectives purchased two highballs in Leonard's tavern, The Wedge, 3516 Olive street, Oct. 13. Leonard said the place was now closed.

DR. WILLIAM G. PATTON FILES RENO DIVORCE SUIT

Former Superintendent of the St. Louis County Hospital Charges Cruelty.

RENO, Nev., March 2.—Dr. William George Patton filed suit here yesterday to divorce Emma E. Patton, 3745 Lindell boulevard, St. Louis, on ground of cruelty. They were married at Farmington, Mo., in 1914.

Dr. Patton retired as superintendent of the St. Louis County Hospital two months ago, after holding that position for two years. Engaged in Missouri politics for more than 20 years, he was an unsuccessful candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor in 1924 and again in 1932. Last summer he was an unsuccessful candidate for the Democratic nomination for Congressman.

Mrs. Patton declined to comment.

200-POUND SAFE STOLEN FROM HOME

A safe, weighing 200 pounds and containing $2100 worth of jewelry and silverware, was stolen from the residence of Samuel Stevenson, general agent for the Terminal Railroad, 3731 Shreve avenue, in the absence of the family yesterday afternoon. The burglars gained entrance by jimmying a bedroom window. Neighbors recalled seeing two strangers, who left in an automobile.

Three employes of the Conrad-Schopp Fruit Co., 1001 North Third street, were held up at 3:30 a. m. today by two men armed with revolvers, who fled with between $500 and $600. While the holdup was in progress William Petry, chauffeur for a drayage company, walked in and was forced to join the Schopp employes in a closet.

Raymond Schuemeyer, Union, Mo., and two companions were held up by two Negroes armed with knives while walking in the 2800 block of Washington boulevard last midnight. Schuemeyer was robbed of $25. His companions had no money.

JURY AWARDS ALLEGED SILICOSIS VICTIM $20,000

Verdict for Gustave Grumke, Who Sued Tavern Rock Sand Co. for $35,000.

A verdict for $20,000 damages was returned yesterday by a jury in Circuit Judge McAfee's court in favor of Gustave Grumke, 52 years old, of St. Charles, against the Tavern Rock Sand Co. for an alleged occupational disease contracted while he was employed in the company's plant near Augusta, Mo.

Grumke alleged that the firm failed to furnish respirators and other safeguards and that as a result he became afflicted with silicosis poisoning, due to breathing sand dust, which resulted in a tubercular condition. He sued for $35,000.

The corporation denied it was negligent, asserted that Grumke left its employ in July, 1926, and since had been employed by the St. Mary's Oil & Engine Co. at St. Charles. Medical testimony introduced by the plaintiff was to the effect that he suffered from silicosis poisoning, while medical evidence on the part of the defense indicated he was not so afflicted.

Russell J. Horsefield, who represented Grumke, is also attorney for a number of clients who have similar damage claims.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

The Safety Council's Position.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE editorial in the Post-Dispatch entitled "Settle the Drivers' License Dispute" reflects the wide-spread misconception regarding some phases of this much desired legislation. We refer to the type of drivers' license laws and the results obtained by them and we request the indulgence of your columns to clear up this matter, because a complete understanding of this, particularly on the part of the press, will do much to clarify the issues and explain the stand taken, at least by the St. Louis Safety Council.

The drivers' license laws to which you attribute a 31 per cent decrease in traffic mortality are those laws which include provisions for an adequate examination of the mental and physical fitness, actual test of the applicant's ability to drive safely and intelligently and also to show his knowledge of traffic laws and his understanding of his responsibilities and obligations to other users of the highways, whether they be motorists or pedestrians.

As recently as Monday, Feb. 18, A. W. Koehler, secretary of the National Conference on Street and Highway Safety, was in St. Louis in the interest of the standard drivers' license law, namely the one mentioned and developed by the many national conferences on street and highway safety. During his visit, he was author of the following statement: "The abnormal increase in motor vehicle fatalities during the past year has focused attention to the need for more effective means of dealing with the situation. Traffic authorities generally are agreed that the most important single measure that can be enacted by any state is a standard drivers' license law. The experience of the states which have such laws (he refers to the standard law which includes adequate examination) shows that fatalities have been reduced 25 per cent over a period of eight years, whereas in non-license states there has been an increase of 14 per cent. States with a sub-standard law, not including examination, have shown increases of approximately 7 per cent over the same period. Both the standard and sub-standard laws have suspension and revocation provisions."

The question is simply this: Shall we strive for a law which, at the end of eight years, if the same results are obtained in Missouri as in the standard license law states, will show a minimum annual saving of 200 lives in the State of Missouri, or shall we adopt a sub-standard drivers' license law with the same disappointing results shown in other states, and where subsequent attempts to strengthen the law by adding the examination provision have failed?

We agree this is no time for stubbornness or for pride of opinion or authorship. There should be but one consideration in this drivers' license law question, namely humanitarianism, with its attendant social and economic problems touching the welfare of the people of this State. All other interests or opinions, whether they be prejudiced, selfish or merely the result of misinformation, should receive no consideration.

PHIL H. BROCKMAN, Pres.
EDWIN A. KAYSER.
Chairman Legislative Committee, St. Louis Safety Council.

Quadricorn.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IN a recent issue of your paper, Hal Sims tries with his "Compendium of Contract Bridge Terms" to imitate Voltaire's "Theological Dictionary." Dr. Wiggam proves that a reduction of working hours invariably increases the output (not only relatively), and Mr. Ripley dips quite freely into the old Jewish prayer-book. All one needs to add in order to create a quadricorn is merely to quote Mohammed's beautiful saying in his holy Alkuran: "Wa-lahum feeha aswajon mutaharraton, wa-hum feeha haliduna" —And they (the Believers) will have there (in Paradise) superlatively purified wives, and they will live with them there from eternity to eternity.

M. LEON.

Unworthy Heirs.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

YOUR recent editorial, "Commonwealth College in Trouble," is much in order, as is the letter by Walter Diehm, chairman of the St. Louis Civil Liberties Committee, on the subject of a most drastic bill which is up for action in the Arkansas Legislature, prohibiting so much in teaching, literature, speech and free assemblage as to cause the blush of shame to rise in the faces of American citizens.

Many years ago, we were told by the various agencies of publicity that farmer-laborism, nationalism, Socialism and Communism would bring us "down to one common level," but what the reactionaries have already done to us by the bills they have supported and passed, depriving American citizens of many of our natural and constitutional rights, has already lowered us in the scale of civilization and progression.

The American people are asleep and thoroughly cowed. We are become cowards and hypocrites. When individually we are not immediately affected, we assume the silence that gives consent. We have become unworthy heirs of the American Bill of Rights!

OTTO VIERLING, M. D.

UP TO THE PEOPLE.

Thanks to a preponderance of lawyers on all the committees considering them, most of the bills proposing reform and modernization of the Missouri criminal code, one of the urgent needs of the State in its war upon crime, have been killed without any opportunity having been given the Legislature as a whole to vote on them.

There was characteristic obstructionism at a session of the House Judiciary Committee Thursday night. Thirty-three of the 34 members of this committee are lawyers. The committee had before it 17 bills proposing revision of the criminal code. It voted to report two of them favorably, and killed the remaining 15. Seven of those killed bore the indorsement of the State Bar Association.

The two bills which survived this St. Bartholomew's night were comparatively trivial. One of them, recommended by the State Bar Association, would require the fingerprinting of all persons arrested on felony charges. The other, indorsed by the Missouri Crime Prevention Bureau, would increase the terms of prosecuting attorneys from two to four years.

Among the bills slaughtered were those designed to correct bail bond abuses, to improve the cumbersome method of collecting bond forfeitures, to give trial judges discretion to refuse to admit convicted persons to bond pending appeal of certain felony cases, to place the State on an equal basis with the defense in the number of jury challenges, to give the State a better opportunity to meet insanity and alibi defenses, to give the State the same opportunity that the defense now enjoys to take depositions of witnesses in advance of a trial, and to eliminate some of the technicalities which now tend to give an advantage to the defense in criminal cases.

This was not the first time during the present session that the smell of death had exuded from a committee room in this vital matter. On Feb. 19, the House Committee on Constitutional Amendments smothered another bill designed to give the State equal right with the defense to take depositions of witnesses in advance of trial. The House Judiciary Committee gave this proposal the coup de grace Thursday night. It lies with Pompey.

This routs the reform program offered by the State Bar Association, as it destroys all hope that the antediluvian criminal procedure of Missouri can be modernized by appeals to the Legislature. Years ago, a most formal and determined effort was made to bring these reforms about. A committee of lawyers headed by the late Gov. Herbert S. Hadley prepared and submitted a reform program. Several such efforts have been made by enlightened and progressive members of the bar. On one occasion, Prof. Raymond Moley of New York was brought to Missouri for the purpose of assisting in a proposed revision of Missouri's criminal code.

The movement to bring this reform about has enjoyed every possible encouragement and co-operation from one legal quarter, while, paradoxically, it has been persistently met with the most stubborn resistance from another legal quarter. Nothing better illustrates the way in which the house of justice is divided against itself.

It is up to the people to end an intolerable state of affairs. We said last Sunday that the initiative alone offers Missouri an opportunity to put the world of law and order upon a better footing in its struggle with the underworld. If the bar associations are not by this time convinced of the futility of going up to Jefferson City with a reform program, they soon will be if they review the sorry history of this movement.

It is perfectly practicable for them to put their program before the voters of the State by means of the initiative. We said this last Sunday, before the House Judiciary Committee had thrown the reform program out.

We urge the bar associations to adopt an expedient which lies ready for use. The initiative, one of the most serviceable of modern social weapons, is designed for just such emergencies as this. If we do not avail ourselves of it, we shall have at last only ourselves to thank for our plight.

Arise, Missouri!

DRIVERS' LICENSE CLARIFICATION.

There can be no criticism of the Safety Council's desire to have Missouri adopt the best possible drivers' license law, as explained in the letter printed on this page. Full examination of all applicants is undoubtedly a more efficient method than examination of only part of the applicants. Our comment, however, was not directed toward urging an inferior method, but toward pointing out that the choice rests between one of the proposed methods and no drivers' license law. A sub-standard law, though short of the desired goal, still would improve safety conditions in the State. The danger now is that, in the limited time remaining, the contentions by advocates of the two proposals will result in another legislative failure to act. For this reason, we urge settlement of the dispute, in the hope that a statute of high standard may be enacted, but that at least the principle of drivers' licensing will be written into the statutes.

WARNING TO THE CARDINALS.

Since it is generally agreed that the Cardinals sit on top of the baseball world, monarchs of all they survey, it is essential that this marvelous baseball team should recall that pride goes before a fall.

All students of the game say the Cardinals have everything. They have the incomparable Deans, a matchless infield, a fast and hard-hitting outfield and one of the greatest of young catchers. They also have the irrepressible Pat Malone as well as the artful Bill Walker.

Seldom in the history of baseball has there been such an aggregation of talent. It puts an inferiority complex upon all opposition. Something terrible would have to happen to keep the Cardinals from winning the National League pennant this year, and something unbelievable would have to happen to keep the Deans from winning another world series. "They are pure poison," said the classical Bill Terry.

To be conceded in advance all the prizes of a great sport puts the Cardinals in a dangerous position. It is a position that caused Aristides to be banished. It invariably puts all those who enjoy it upon the defensive. Human sympathy is always with the under-dog. Meekness becomes the Cardinals. We cannot expect modesty to tie up the irrepressible Dizzy, but the rest of the Cardinals can effectively deal with public psychology by quietly and sweetly saying nothing.

After all, there is this to be said for the Cardinals: The New York teams followed for years the practice of making money the determining factor in baseball. The eminent scientist, Dr. Branch Rickey, D. H., L., J. U. D., has reversed this tradition with his famous farm plan. The Cardinals are doing no more than the old Giants and Yankees did, but instead of doing it with money, they are doing it with brains. Have we not all been taught to believe that some time, somewhere, mind would triumph over matter?

Well?

THE FACTS.

Advocates of repeal of Ordinance 31,698 are raising an uproar over dogs sold from the City Pound to the medical schools for the high purpose of advancement of science.

They attempt to lead the public to believe that such sales constitute the major incentive for the capture of dogs. They are trying to create the false impression that, if the ordinance is repealed, everyone's pet will be safe.

The best answer is the cold facts. Let us refer to the record:

In the year 1934, 18,108 dogs were officially destroyed in the City of St. Louis.

Of this number, only 1063 were sold to Washington University and St. Louis University for experimental purposes.

The remainder, 17,045 dogs, were killed by the Humane Society or in the gas chamber of the City Pound.

In other words, fewer than 6 per cent of all the dogs disposed of during 1934 were sold to the medical schools.

These figures are a matter of public record. They are on file in the office of the St. Louis Health Commissioner. They dispose once and for all of the contentions of those who are trying to persuade the Aldermen to repeal Ordinance 31,698.

The figures prove that repeal would be a negligible factor in the saving of pets.

They show that the fight for repeal is a veiled attack on scientific methods that have proved of incalculable value in the saving of human life.

Let facts, not oratory, decide the issue.

SIC TRANSIT.

Prajadhipok, "Possessor of the 24 Umbrellas, Supreme Arbiter of the Ebb and Flow of the Tides, and Brother of the Moon," has abdicated the throne of Siam.

The winds of politics turned the umbrellas inside out, the tides got out of hand and the moon went down.

HAS MUSSOLINI FORGOTTEN?

Mussolini is a strong man rejoicing in his strength. He speaks dynastically, not individually. Italy can now mobilize a mighty army of between 7,000,000 and 8,000,000, he announces, or double the size of her forces during the World War. There is method in this boasting. Italy is a Power to be reckoned with, he admonishes Europe, in all affairs of moment.

The dispatch of troops to Ethiopia has occasioned this communication. What is proposed is just a bit of spanking. If done, it will be done thoroughly. If the preparations seem to be on a major scale, let no jealous rival on the Continent be misled into thinking that the moment might be favorable for pressing any claim against Italy in military terms. Italy is quite prepared to take on any and all comers. Such is the substance of Mussolini's notification.

There was the head of another European state who felt as Mussolini feels and talked with more swaggering assurance. And he had such armies as the world had never seen, drilled and equipped and provisioned for any fortuity—"down to the last button." War was too big a term for the swift, punitive expedition. It was the end of July when the gray columns marched away. "They will be back by the turning of the leaves," was the royal pledge of the last imperial Hohenzollern.

They have never come back.

AN AMAZING GAP IN THE LAW.

In sustaining a defense demurrer at the trial of a man charged with attempted bombing, Judge Nolte said:

> The Court is not commending any act of the defendant. Suspicion points to him, but a conviction cannot be obtained on suspicion. Anyone found in possession of a bomb should be sent to prison, but there is no law to that effect.

In other words, a man can walk down Olive street with a bomb under his arm, and he is perfectly within his rights until he lights the fuse and throws it.

SENATOR TRUMAN'S FLOP.

In scores of speeches made throughout the State of Missouri, Harry S. Truman solemnly promised the people that, if elected United States Senator, he would support Mr. Roosevelt to the bitter end, save only on the bonus question. At Brookfield, Mo., on Aug. 4, 1934, for example, he listed the following as one of the chief planks of his platform:

> Support to the end for President Roosevelt in his efforts for a better social order.

Yet, on the very first important vote in the Senate with respect to the President's social program—the vote on the McCarran amendment to compel payment of the prevailing scale of wages under the $4,800,000,000 work-relief bill—Senator Truman flopped to the ranks of the President's opponents. And the McCarran amendment was carried by a single vote. Truman's vote could have saved the administration from considerable embarrassment.

It may be absurd for a candidate for public office to represent himself as a rubber stamp, but when he wins the election on that basis, the voters must find it a little disconcerting to see him breaking shot when the first covey is flushed.

TIME FOR AFFIRMATIVE ACTION.

By now, it is quite clear that Chairman Hannegan of the Democratic City Committee, also the city's paid lobbyist at Jefferson City, and Chairman Waechter of the Election Board are opposed to the Walsh bill for permanent registration.

Their opposition to the Walsh bill, they declare, is not in principle, but in detail. The time has come, however, for them either to submit a bill of their own or agree to such modification of the Walsh bill as would meet fair objections.

This session of the Legislature is waning. The public awaits affirmative action from Messrs. Hannegan and Waechter.

TODAY AND TOMORROW

By Walter Lippmann

A Mighty Blow

MANY a sincere friend of the present administration will read with profound relief the opinion of Judge Nields in the Weirton case. This feeling has nothing to do with his opinion on the company union in the Weirton plant, with the principle of collective bargaining, with the question of whether Section 7A has been faithfully obeyed in this instance. It has to do with the much greater question of what are the limits of the Federal power.

Those limits can never be fixed absolutely or defined precisely, and the nation would have not a constitution but a straitjacket if the courts were not willing to expand the Federal power to meet changing conditions. But Judge Nields has struck a mighty blow against the disposition, born of panic and distress and confusion, to forget or to deny that there are any limits to the Federal power.

I do not know whether the Supreme Court will sustain his position. I do not know whether his views as to the limits of the Federal power are too rigid and too absolute. But that the underlying meaning of the decision is sound I have no doubt whatever.

Ever since the summer of 1933, when, under the sign of the Blue Eagle, the administration entangled itself in the affairs of every plant, store, hotel and barber shop, from Maine to California, in a vain and preposterous attempt to make decisions in the infinite detail of American business, it has been clear to me that unless this centralizing tendency was halted, the New Deal would be wrecked.

* * *

What has been attempted under NRA and AAA is a mixture of good and evil. But the effort as a whole, the attempt to regulate the whole agriculture, manufacturing, transportation and commerce of the United States, was beyond the powers, the capacity and the wisdom of any central government administered by mortal men. It was bound to break down. It has broken down.

The courts will do a historic service not only to the nation as a whole but to recovery and reform, to the President and his party, if they liquidate a major part of the centralized regulation to which the New Deal has committed itself. "Our country," as Jefferson said, "is too large to have its affairs directed by a single government." That is as true today as when he wrote it.

One of the great weaknesses of the New Deal mentality has been an inability to distinguish between what it is desirable to do and what a Federal Government in a country as big as this can actually do. There are no end of people, often those with the most generous spirit, who, when they have convinced themselves that something is worth doing, regard the issue as settled. But that does not settle it. There remains always, in public affairs, the question as to whether the thing which is worth doing can in fact be done by a government composed of average men. And this question is the one question which many reformers most dislike to consider.

It is, for example, indisputable that it is desirable to do all the things which NRA proposes—to end the exploitation of labor, to establish equality of bargaining powers, to stop commercial fraud and sharp practices. But the real question posed by NRA is whether Gen. Johnson or Mr. Richberg or Miss Perkins, or the various boards, or the President, can accomplish these desirable ends. For if they cannot, if they are not able enough, if they are not wise enough, if they have not the time and energy, then the promise and the pretense and the expectation that they will do them can produce only confusion and disappointment and reaction.

In the vocabulary of statecraft, the words "should" and "ought" are inseparable from the words "can" and "will."

* * *

The great virtue of Judge Nields' opinion, assuming it is sustained, is that by closing the door to a very considerable part of NRA it will enable the administration to reduce its responsibilities, and, therefore, deal more effectively with those that remain. It has become increasingly clear that the administration is distracted and bewildered by the infinite complexity of its undertakings.

The work relief bill has made this very plain. It has shown that no one has had the time and the energy to work out its excellent principles and intentions. There have been too many other things to think about at the same time. How can the President hope to plan a five-billion-dollar works program, make decisions about automobile workers in Detroit, about cigarettes all over the country, about the merchant marine, the railroads, tariffs with Brazil and Belgium and heaven only knows what else, all in the same few weeks?

Government, as now organized, is simply unable to do so many things. And when more is undertaken than can be done, the position of officials becomes even more impossible because they have to spend so much of their time placating those who expected them to succeed. You promise the A. F. of L. that there is to be collective bargaining everywhere. You break your back trying to carry out the promise. You find that labor is not generally organized to bargain collectively. Then you break your back again explaining to labor why you have not made good the promise.

This is the sort of thing which the New Deal has been up against in a hundred different situations, and it arises out of its basic failure to stop, look and listen before biting off more than it, or anyone else, could chew.

FEDERAL GASOLINE TAX.

From the Arkansas Democrat.

LEGISLATURES of 14 states have adopted resolutions or memorials requesting Congress to drop the Federal tax on gasoline, according to the American Petroleum Industries Committee. In three additional states, one house of the Legislature has taken similar action, and approval is expected from the other.

The Federal tax never should have been levied, for the reason that it was an encroachment on the states' right to levy the tax. It was started as a state tax and should remain so. It was first imposed in Oregon in 1919 to finance a State road program. The Federal Government stayed out of the field until 1932, when it was adopted as a "temporary" tax, but, of course, was made permanent despite protests of motorists.

The original rate was 1 cent per gallon. In 1933, it was increased to 1½ cents and reduced to 1 cent in 1934, the reduction of 33 1-3 per cent in the rate resulting in a decline of only 6 per cent in revenue.

A Missouri Reform Movement

From the New York Herald Tribune.

THE National Youth Movement, under the leadership of Joseph C. Fennelly, is far from being discouraged over its defeat in the mayoralty election in Kansas City last March and by the extension of the control of "Big Tom" Pendergast's "Little Tammany" from the city to the State of Missouri in the November election. It is going right ahead with its plans to curb that power in the interest of good government.

Under the title, Future, a news weekly representing the aims and purposes of Mr. Fennelly's organization has been established. In its third issue, it attained a circulation of nearly 8000. In large type it carries the slogan, "The Youth of Today Is Not Responsible for the Present Conditions. It Is Responsible for the Conditions of the Future." This is an indirect pledge to keep up the fight against "boss rule," as represented by what has been termed the "most ruthless political machine in the country."

* * *

Mr. Pendergast, for years Democratic overlord of Kansas City, attached the party in Missouri to his chariot wheels last fall when he succeeded in putting one of his local Judges into the United States Senate. To do this, it was necessary first to carry the primaries for him against two more widely known men, with important backing, and then in the general election to defeat the Republican incumbent by more than 200,000.

Despite the discouraging outlook, Mr. Fennelly and his associates are developing their plans to destroy Pendergastism. He and his National Youth Movement are now concentrating on getting changes in State election laws which they hope will shake the boss control. They are looking forward to permanent registration law as a great improvement over what they have.

"The system," says Future, "played right into the hands of election crooks. The result was an enormous pad and wholesale illegal voting, which led directly to the tragic and disgraceful violence at the polls that marked Kansas City in the eyes of the whole country." The reference is to the mayoralty election of a year ago, when four persons were killed and many others were injured.

* * *

Pretending to be for reform in the registration system, the Pendergast city administration appointed a committee to draw up a bill for introduction in the Legislature at the present session. "It would mean," says Future, "permanent the existing registration system. Future says of the bill. The "new system" is somewhat similar to what exists here in the old Tweed days, when there was no check on colonization or repeating and no method of purging the registration lists prior to election day each year.

The system favored by the National Youth Movement would provide for fingerprints of registrants and comparisons of signatures at the time of voting. The Democratic machine in the Legislature is trying to make a jest of the serious desire for reform by suggesting all sorts of silly and hamstringing amendments. But the story is being told to the public in Future week by week.

In the end, the crusaders believe, an enlightened electorate will revolt against the Pendergast machine and destroy it. They believe that the example of the youth of Missouri will have a tonic effect throughout the country.

QUITE POSSIBLE.

From the Boston Herald.

Sometimes we can't help getting the impression that the big idea is to have the armament race and the human race end simultaneously.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON, March 2.

THE drive to repeal the publicity provision of the income tax is getting no support from the administration, although the President will sign a bill if it is passed. Privately, Treasury chieftains would like to see the "pink-slip" requirement eliminated, but the White House has given orders to keep hands off in the controversy. Senate progressives—authors of the provision—have notified administration floor leaders they will fight any attempt to legislate it off the law books. . . . Arkansas' Senator, Hattie Caraway, who hides a lively sense of humor behind her demure exterior, is reported by friends to be contemplating writing a book on her congressional experiences. If she doesn't pull her punches, the volume will make some of the best reading to emanate from Washington in a long time . . . Dr. Calvin B. Hoover, new AAA Consumers' Counsel, is an overseas veteran with battle service in two major engagements. Friends think he will find this experience useful in the strife-filled offices of the AAA.

The record-breaking peace-time War Department appropriation bill passed by the House contains some odd items of expenditure. Among them are: $750 for car fare; $46,000 for "obtaining military information;" $1100 for West Point diplomas. . . . During the debate on the measure, Kansas' Republican Frank Carlson hurled this stunning rejoinder to foes of the bill: "The purpose of war is peace" . . . Pennsylvania's blind Representative, Matthew A. Dunn, has gone Huey Long one better in redistribution of wealth. He has introduced a bill, HR 5857, limiting annual incomes to $50,000, with penalties of $100 to $5000 or five years in jail, or both . . . Publication of the fact that A. F. of L. leaders are critical of President William Green's lack of aggressiveness has had noticeable effect on him. His statements have taken on a note of marked militancy and in other ways he is displaying unwonted briskness.

Gum-Chewers.

SENATOR GEORGE W. NORRIS, 73 years old, rarely uses the electric subway cars that shuttle between the Capitol and the Senate Office Building. Says he prefers to walk. . . . Champion gum-chewers of the Senate are Clark of Missouri and Donahey of Ohio. Clark's style is more muscular, Donahey's more rapid. Sometimes Donahey chews upon a broken-two-cigar. . . . During hearings of the Senate Munitions Committee, Bethlehem Steel's President, Eugene G. Grace, saw investigator Steve Raushenbush beside Senator Nye. He turned to a friend and said, "Who's that other Senator?" . . . The Government is in the fur business and wants the world to know it. In the main entrance of the Commerce building is a show case displaying three fur-robed wax women, in latest Fifth Avenue styles. The furs are products of the Government-owned seal industry from the Government-owned Pribilof Islands near Alaska. . . . Out at Lake Flora, Wis., CCC boys have built a 1000-foot toboggan slide which was inaugurated with a 12-foot toboggan carrying 15 riders. . . . A Senator, arriving late on the floor, went to New Jersey's Moore and asked, "What is the Senate discussing?" "Nothing," was the reply. . . . When New York's red-baiting Ham Fish included the University of Washington in his list of colleges "which are hotbeds of Communism," he drew a sharp letter from Senator Schwellenbach. The junior Senator from Washington saw more than one side of the question, for he has been both State commander of the American Legion and president of the board of regents of the university.

Social Lobby.

MILLIONAIRE-OILMAN JIMMY MOFFETT is making use of an old Washington device to win favor for himself and his moribund Federal Housing Administration on Capitol Hill. He is giving a series of bountifully provisioned stag parties for Congressional leaders. According to cloakroom reports he is making progress in impressing the "boys." . . . . Thousands of letters are being received by members of Congress from their home states and districts attacking the holding corporation bill. The flood of mail is so patently an organized campaign that Chairman Sam Rayburn of the House Interstate Commerce Committee, which is considering the measure, is having a quiet investigation made to ascertain what utility and banking interests are behind it. . . . For the second time in the last six months, the Bureau of Investigation of the Justice Department has excluded the statistics of the Kansas City police department from its monthly reports on crime conditions in American cities. Reason is that K. C. police are controlled by Boss Pendergast's notorious political machine and Federal authorities do not trust its figures. . . . After listening to a protracted debate on immigration between Texas' raucous Tom Blanton and Tammany's Sam Dickstein, a member of the House remarked: "I'm still undecided which is worse, to let down the bars and allow more Dicksteins to come in, or to keep the bars up and raise more home-grown Blantons."

Senate Schoolboy.

THE prayer with which the Senate opens after adjournment is taken down in shorthand by Government reporters. . . . Stuck off in a corner by themselves like three misbehaving schoolboys, Senators Moore of New Jersey, Schwellenbach of Washington and Burke of Nebraska amuse themselves watching the show. The Senate's slow motion amazes them. During debate on the McCarran amendment, Schwellenbach bet Burke a cigar that the matter would not come to a vote before 4 o'clock. He thought he would be safe, but he lost. The vote was taken at 3:59½, he says. Burke got the cigar—— The Bureau of Investigation finds that both robbery and burglary—especially robbery—have a seasonal trend, with the high points appearing in the first and fourth quarters of the year. . . . In answer to a question from Munitions Investigating Senator Bone as to why the Government laid the keels of 97 previously contracted destroyers after the armistice was signed, Bethlehem Steel's president, Eugene G. Grace said, "Please don't ask me to interpret the policies of our Navy Department, my dear fellow."

NRA Strategy.

THE real reason Roosevelt made no recommendation for changes in the Industrial Recovery Act, in the opinion of many Senators, is because he would like to see it renewed for another two years without revision. Left-wing Senators point out that by dumping, revision of the law into the lap of Congress, the controversy can be so prolonged that in the end, weary legislators will yield to mere extension of the present NRA . . . . Highlight of the dedication ceremonies of the new Labor Department Building, presided over by Miss Frances Perkins, was the solo, "Let Me Call You Sweetheart," sung by James C. Quinn, secretary-treasurer of the New York Building Trades Council. . . . Following his visit to Washington to demand of the A. F. of L. executive council the ouster of aged Mike Tighe as president of the Amalgamated Association of Steel, Iron & Tin Workers, the leader of the insurgent rank-and-filers, Mel Moore was fired from his steel plant job. The Steel Labor Relations Board has taken up the case to see if Tighe had any connection with Moore's dismissal.

Louisiana Legislature Adjourns Sine Die After Completing Action on Made-to-Order Measures.

STATE SENATOR ASSAILS KINGFISH

In Speech From Floor, Says He Is 'Foxy Politician, Drunk With Power' — Latter Replies.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—Senator McKellar, chairman of the Postoffice Committee, said today the committee in executive session Monday would consider the resolution and charges submitted against Postmaster-General Farley by Senator Long (Dem.), Louisiana. McKellar said no procedure had been planned, but that the committee would give consideraton to all of Long's statements.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BATON ROUGE, La., March 2.—The Louisiana Legislature adjourned sine die today after completing passage of 24 bills dictated by United States Senator Huey P. Long. The special session, the fourth in seven months, was held with State militiamen on guard.

Long prepared to go to New Orleans and said he would leave for Washington tonight.

The force of National Guardsmen on duty at the Capitol was doubled at last night's session, and troops patrolled the corridors and the entrances to the House and Senate as the Legislature convened today. State police in plain clothes passed through the crowd of spectators.

Gen. L. F. Guerre, commanding officer in the martial law area, who also is superintendent of the State police, denied that the increased vigilance was the result of discovery of a new plot to assassinate Long.

"We just want to take every precaution," he declared. A report persisted, however, that another attempt against Long's life had been discovered by State police.

Senator's Attack on Long.

A flareup occurred in the Senate last night when a Senator made a personal attack on Long, and the Kingfish arranged a short recess and answered him from the Senate rostrum.

Senator W. Scott Heywood, who was elected by the Long forces and broke from the machine before the December special session, surprised his colleagues with a bitter attack on Long and his administration.

The Kingfish, walking into the chamber soon after Heywood started his speech, took a chair at the press table. Listening a moment, he summoned Waldo Dugas of Lafayette, one of his supporters, and whispered to him.

"I consider him nothing but a foxy politician, drunk with power and ruthless," Heywood shouted.

"State Needs New Deal."

"As long as he can control and apparently does control more than a majority of the Legislature, no member of the Legislature can get any bill passed if it is even the best bill in the hopper unless he punches the button to suit Senator Long. In my opinion the State needs a new deal, and dictatorial laws as have been passed should be repealed so as to take away from one man the right to run the whole State for his own political benefit," he declared.

"I do not believe in mob violence, however, and do not think it will be necessary. History tells us that there has been an end put to all dictators and I firmly believe Senator Long's political dictatorship will be limited in time to come."

Heywood declared Long "even curses the Governor, more than I have ever heard a Negro curse, and I have heard him do this with my own ears."

Dugas then rose and requested a recess to allow Long to speak "as we have heard a one-sided speech on a matter which seems to be controversial." The Senate agreed without objection.

Long's Speech in Reply.

Long, who has been constantly on the floor of the Senate and the House during the session and who took charge of both committee hearings on his bills, made his first talk to the legislators as a group.

Pointing out that Heywood had said that he had no further political aspirations, the Kingfish declared that "I was going to tell you that he wouldn't have any more."

"A man is not a dictator when he is given a commission from the people and carries it out," Long told the Senate. "I was once a dictator for a short time in a small area in this State. I undertook to name a State Senator the people didn't want to elect, none other than Mr. Heywood.

"There is what we call in this country gratitude—the Senator exercises it one way and I do another.

"I named him a Colonel on my staff and gave him that honor; when he was about to be defeated I called John Fournet (who was elected a Justice of the State Supreme Court by the Long machine several months ago) and asked him to go with Mr. Heywood throughout the district; and as a result of every means and every effort we seated him. He is the only man who made a personal attack on me—the man we made a Colonel, the man who sits here by virtue of the work I did for him. That's his way of returning gratitude."

Long continued his excoriation.

"He'll Not Run Again."

"He tells you he heard remarks made to me and has heard conversations between me and the Governor. That's the gentleman who holds his seat as a result of proclaiming his love and loyalty to Huey Long. He'll not run again. There was a man like him named Paul Cyr—go find him today."

Long referred to former Lieutenant-Governor Cyr, who was elected to office on the Long ticket, and who turned against Long, then Governor, during the 1929 impeachment proceedings.

"I would rather carry a snake in my bosom along a river bank in flood time than have such a character as that," Long asserted. "He says he has no political ambition. I hope he will change his mind. I hope he will submit his candidacy once more to the people and we'll show him how good his judgment is."

Mrs. Charlotte Abrahams Gains Decision on Appeal; Estate Almost Gone.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 2.—Charlotte Fixel Abrahams' long fight for recognition as the common law widow of Abraham L. Erlanger, theatrical producer, ended in victory yesterday when the Appellate division of the Supreme Court unanimously upheld the decision of former Surrogate John P. O'Brien, later Mayor of New York. Mrs. Abrahams, 50 years old, is now the wife of a clothing merchant.

The Appellate division studied the decision of Surrogate O'Brien, which was accompanied by the longest opinion in legal history, running to 134,000 words, printed on parchment, illuminated in gold and bound in vellum. The case was one of the longest and most complicated in the history of Surrogate's court.

Although the Erlanger estate was estimated at $20,000,000, appraisal showed less than a tenth of that in assets. Loans, mortgages and depreciated properties cut deeply into the fortune.

The decision vindicating her status thus means little to Mrs. Abrahams in dollars and cents. The available cash of the estate is estimated to be $300,000, Mrs. Abrahams being entitled to a third of the income. The income at present is said to be little or nothing.

C. D. HOLMES, INVENTOR, DIES

Developed Motor for Submarine Chasers During World War.

By the Associated Press.

MYSTIC, Conn., March 2.—Charles Denison Holmes, 64 years old, inventor, died Thursday night, 14 days after a long-forgotten war service to the United States Government had been recognized by President Roosevelt.

Mr. Holmes, who developed a compact, powerful motor for submarine chasers, received the President's letter Feb. 14, in which the chief executive said, "I feel that it is fitting that I should express to you the thanks of this Government, as well as my own." In 1918 Mr. Holmes, at severe cost to his eyesight and health, developed the eight-cylinder engine capable of 250 horsepower. The mechanism was perfected, but the armistice halted production.

PIANIST HENRI DEERING PLAYS WITH SYMPHONY

Brahms Concerto in D Minor Performed on St. Louis Orchestra Program.

By THOMAS B. SHERMAN.

HENRI DEERING, the American pianist, played the Brahms piano concerto in D Minor yesterday afternoon with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Vladimir Golschmann. It was Mr. Deering's first professional appearance in St. Louis for about six years and his first engagement with the orchestra since the fall of 1926. The increasing diversity and importance of the radio, however, has made it possible for St. Louisans to hear Mr. Deering many times during this interlude in both solo and chamber music recitals.

So, while it is not possible to speak of Mr. Deering as one who has reappeared after a long absence, it is still pertinent to note that he has increased his artistic stature since his last performances here. Always a musician of excellent taste and solid attainments, he has now entered into a maturer phase of his development. The Brahms concerto was not only cleanly articulated and well proportioned but registered the performer's conviction of its importance and his sympathetic awareness of its strength and its lofty sentiment. This sentiment — this combination of tenderness and gravity—was particularly convincing in Mr. Deering's performance because it was expressed as the outward manifestation of an emotion that had proceeded from great depths. And it was those depths that yielded the demoniac fury and rude force that are also so amply evident in this concerto.

A Monument to Brahms.

This composition, in fact, is not just a typical creation of a young and immature Brahms. For all of its incidental crudeness and occasional opacity, it is one of the great monuments to Brahms. It is perhaps a monument to the Brahms that died young for its air of challenge, its nervous thrust, its forthrightness and its general atmosphere of being concerned with momentous events lend support to the hypothesis that Brahms might have and could have developed along the lines laid down by Beethoven in the Ninth Symphony and the last quartets.

This concerto, of course, is no more a successor to the Ninth Symphony than the Brahms C Minor Symphony, but its resemblances are much more striking. The premonitory opening with its jagged melody, made from a broken chord, sounding over a pedal D, inevitably causes the same nervous reflexes as the opening of the Ninth.

But leaving behind all comparisons—not very profitable at best—it is interesting to note that the storm and strife of the concerto is expressed almost entirely by the orchestra while the piano is chiefly concerned with exposing the opposing elements, the gentler side of the music. This duality of functions was ably carried out by both orchestra and soloist in yesterday's performance. The opening measures were a little stiff, but after that Mr. Golschmann and the orchestra threw themselves into the fray with all the necessary spirit and abandon.

Basic rhythms, tempo and dynamics seemed essentially right both for piano and orchestra. The second movement, with its synthesis of the romantic Schumann and the romantic Chopin plus a stabilizing touch of Brahmsian somberness, was played by Mr. Deering with both emotion and poise, and the orchestra reinforced effectively this affecting mood of quiet ecstasy.

Conductor and the Orchestra.

The first part of the program did not reveal Mr. Golschmann at his best either as a program maker or as a conductor. The "Souvenirs de Brazil," by Darius Milhaud, and the "Iberia" suite of Albeniz in an arrangement by Enrique Arbos took the bloom off each other and the Suite in F by Roussel, which might have been a splendid counterpoise for a number with more weight, only made that part of the program all the more diffuse.

The performance of the orchestra was quite satisfactory in both the Roussel and Milhaud numbers but lacked precision and balance throughout the "Iberia" suite. Moreover the "Evocacion" was a literal and objective statement of fact rather than an atmospheric conjuring up of the spirit of a whole country. The first requisite of such a nostalgic evocation in music would be—one is inclined to think—a more comfortable tempo than Mr. Golschmann took. These pieces have a great natural appeal, however, and the audience gave a sustained demonstration of its approval after the conclusion of "Triana."

WILD DUCKS' PLIGHT CRITICAL, EXPERT SAYS

'Question Not Shooting but Whether We Shall Have Any Birds at All.'

Wild ducks in the United States today face their worst crisis, Dr. Harry C. Oberholser, chief of the research staff of the United States Biogolical Survey, told 200 duck hunters last night at a meeting at the Racquet Club.

"It is not a question of whether we shall have duck shooting," Dr. Oberholser said, "but if we shall have any ducks at all.

"We've got to do something and do it right now. One more bad season, or at the most, two, might see the practical extinction of several important species of our ducks. We have been killing too many in the past few years. The number killed has been greater than the number produced."

Question as to Closed Season.

Dr. Oberholser was asked at the close of his address whether the Biological Survey favors a closed season. "We don't know what a closed season would do," he replied. "It might lower the duck population; it might increase it greatly. We don't know. Nobody knows. For instance, we thought that the shortened season last year would increase the violations. But it didn't. I was all over the Middle West during the season and there was not as much violation as usual. And we had expected five times as much."

Dr. Oberholser cited the case of the wood duck as an instance of the benefit that may accrue from a closed season. "Fifteen years ago they told us the wood duck was doomed. They said it would be extinct in another year or so; that the closed season would do no good. We declared one anyway and now, the wood duck is definitely saved. The population of this, the most beautiful duck in America, is increasing every year.

"I can assure you that the Biological Survey is not opposed to duck hunters, nor to duck hunting clubs. And that what we want to do is to perform the greatest good with the least disturbance possible."

Major Menaces to Birds.

The four major menaces to waterfowl, Dr. Oberholser said, are natural enemies, of which the greatest is the crow; the duck sickness, which started in the shallow waters of the West, where thrive the microscopic plants that cause the illness; oil pollution on the oceans where sea ducks become covered with the sticky discharge of steamers and can no longer fly; and illegal trapping and over-shooting.

Of the last, he said: "We're going to break that up if it takes 10 years. That's dangerous work because the poachers are desperate men. But we are going to stop it just the same.

"Conservation to some people's minds means simply hoarding, but to my mind it is making the best use and the widest use of everything out of doors for the best welfare of the human race. It won't do to put this matter off 10 years. We must do something and we must do it now.

"Posterity will hold us responsible for what we do in 1935."

St. Louis Organizations to Circulate Pledge Cards in Churches in Campaign.

Plans to centralize the efforts of St. Louis Catholic organizations toward relief of the political situation of the church in Mexico were announced yesterday by the Rev. William F. Mullally, director of the St. Louis Archdiocesan Confederation for the Defense of Religious Liberty in Mexico.

FORMER AUSTRIAN DIPLOMAT ON TRIAL FOR CONSPIRACY

Arrested After Nazis Announced He Had Taken Place of Dollfuss.

By the Associated Press.

VIENNA, March 2.—"King Anton" Rintelen, former Austrian Minister to Rome, pleaded not guilty today to charges of complicity in the putsch last July which was to have made him Chancellor. His trial began today.

Psychiatrists testified that Rintelen "is unable to remember clearly." They said his memory of last summer's events was obviously unclear. The proceedings accordingly were adjourned until Monday.

The prosecuting attorney said Rintelen, who looked very old and frail, as an extraordinarily clever intriguer who fell victim to his own excessive caution—"he hesitated till he was lost."

Life imprisonment is the heaviest penalty that may be imposed if Rintelen is convicted.

The accused was Minister to Italy at the time of the putsch, but at the moment was in a Vienna hotel. The Nazis announced over a captured Government radio that Chancellar Englebert Dollfuss had resigned and that Rintelen had taken his place. Rintelen failed to appear and later was arrested.

Exactly what happened to him on that July 25 has not been announced. It was variously reported that he had been shot resisting arrest and that he had attempted suicide.

HOOVER SENDS MESSAGE TO MID-WEST REPUBLICANS

Says Party Has Mission to Preserve Liberty From Regimentation.

By the Associated Press.

LINCOLN, Neb., March 2.—Two members of the Hoover administration took part in a meeting of Republican chieftains from Nebraska, Iowa, Kansas and Missouri here yesterday.

They were Samuel R. McKelvie, who was a member of the Hoover Farm Board, and Arthur M. Hyde, former Secretary of Agriculture. Hyde, addressing the gathering which considered plans for the 1936 campaign, asserted "the road to progress lies along the same route we have come."

Applause greeted the reading of a telegram from former President Hoover. The telegram said:

"I would be glad indeed if you would give my greetings to the meeting of Republicans in Lincoln. The Midwest gave the Republican party to the nation with a great mission of human liberty. The party has a renewed mission of human liberty today as high and vital as that of two generations ago. It is a mission which must preserve liberty from both economic oppression and governmental regimentation. The voice of the Midwest should be raised again."

COMMERCE CHAMBER ON BANKING PROPOSALS

Demands Safeguards to Protect Federal Reserve From "Political Domination."

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—The board of directors of the Cnamber of Commerce of the United States demanded yesterday that safeguards be taken against possible "political domination" of the nation's banking system.

The board, working on a series of statements in connection with legislative proposals before Congress, said that American business "must ask that time be granted for thorough consideration" of changes in the Federal Reserve System proposed in the pending omnibus banking bill.

"There must be rigid resistance," the board said, "to proposals of a harmful nature and to well meant efforts to divert the system from its proper course. In particular, the country must weigh carefully the adequacy of safeguards against the political domination of the Federal Reserve Board, the reserve banks and the member banks, and against undue centralization of credit control."

Proposal on Cotton Loans.

The board also made public a recommendation by a special committee that Government loans on cotton should be on a basis below the current or reasonably expected open market price. This committee urged serious consideration of a plan whereby all cotton would be sold on the basis of world prices, but that, in order to protect the American standard of living, benefit payments from processing taxes would be made to the cotton producer on only that percentage of the crop used domestically.

Another committe report asked substantial changes in the pending social security bill which would protect voluntary plans and permit greater freedom of State action.

"If immediate consideration by the Federal Government," this committee said, "is considered imperative, it should be confined to legislation that would be moderate in cost and in scope of coverage, that would aid the states in performing their own social welfare functions, without encroaching upon their jurisdiction, and that would tend to lessen future need for citizens to rely upon public assistance.

Favors Gradual Development.

"It is essential . . . to preserve the greatest possible latitude for employes and the states to undertake further experimentation with a view to the gradual development of the most satisfactory unemployment benefit plans."

J. F. T. O'Connor, Comptroller of the Currency, told the House Banking Committee yesterday that he was opposed to the provision in the pending bill eliminating double liability of national bank stockholders unless there was a requirement for the creation of new reserves.

"By eliminating double liability for stockholders in all national banks," he said, "you tremendously weaken the banking structure, and therefore banks should be required to build up out of their profits some substantial fund to go into their surplus."

STOCKS CALM AS STERLING SLUMPS AND GOLD JUMPS

Silver Price Also Advances —Even Metals Lose Their Buoyant Tone of the Previous Session — Market Somewhat Irregular.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 2.—The stock market was notably calm today in the face of another slump in sterling and a jump in London gold and silver prices. Even the metals lost their buoyant tone of the previous session and were only moderately higher. Fluctuations elsewhere were generally narrow. The close was somewhat irregular. Transfers approximated 260,000 shares.

The pound dropped some 3 cents to around $4.78, the lowest level since October, 1933. At the same time the British gold rate was lifted 9½ pence to 146 shillings 10½ pence an ounce (equivalent to $35.37), a new record peak. The English spot silver price also shot up to 27 pence an ounce, the highest since October, 1928. In New York silver hoisted 1 cent to 57⅞ cents an ounce, also a new top in nearly seven years. European gold currencies naturally exhibited strength against the pound and dollar.

While some brokerage quarters interpreted the gyrations of the precious metals and foreign exchanges as an indication that further inflationary steps might have to be taken by the New Deal administration, conservative banking quarters and many stock traders were not so sure.

Most foreign observers were not particularly excited over the situation.

Commodities were as apathetic as stocks, grains and cotton holding to a restricted groove during the greater part of the business day. Bonds were mixed.

Some Gainers.

There were scattered share gainers of substantial amounts. Columbia Carbon got up more than 3 and American Crystal Sugar preferred stepped up 2. Among others, fractionally to around a point better, were Home Stake, Cerro de Pasco, American Smelting, Howe Sound, American Sugar Refining, Douglas Aircraft, Westinghouse and General Electric. Losers of as much were included Liggett & Myers "B," Coca-Cola, Union Pacific, Santa Fe, New York Central, Chrysler, American Can, Bethlehem Steel, Consolidated Gas and Western Union. Such issues as U. S. Steel, American Telephone, General Motors and National Distillers were virtually unchanged.

Sterling Off 4c at $4.77½.

Wheat closed ⅛ to ¾ of a cent a bushel lower and corn was off ½ to up ⅜. Oats, rye and barley were off ⅛ to ⅝ firmer. At Winnipeg wheat was unchanged to up ⅛. Cotton was unchanged to 15 cents a bale lower.

In later dealings sterling failed to recover and ended with a loss of 4 cents at $4.77½. The French franc held a gain of .01⅞ of a cent at 6.67 cents. Belgas, Swiss francs and guilders improved .01 to .06 of a cent. Canadian dollars declined 5-32 of a cent to 99.62½ cents.

Overnight Developments.

Markets kept a weather eye on the labor situation in the automobile industry.

The statement of Federal Judge Grubb of Birmingham, Alabama that he will cancel a contract between the Tennessee Valley authority and the Alabama Power Company for the transfer of the utility's transmission lines in North Alabama attracted attention in Wall Street.

SHARP SLUMP IN STERLING; GOLD AT NEW HIGH RECORD

Exchange Rate Down About 8 Cents in Two Days — Gold Worth $35.37 an Ounce in Terms of U. S. Dollar.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 2.—Wall Street intently watched the decline of the pound sterling today, hoping the vicious circle of competitive currency depreciation was not to be resumed.

Reports in London financial circles late in the day that the British equalization fund had at last stepped in to support the pound was favorably received.

The pound dipped 4 cents in New York to $4.77½, the lowest since October of 1933, and to a new low in Paris under 72 francs.

This decline has taken the British currency down some 16 cents in terms of the dollar, since the first of the year, and should it continue far enough, a number of Wall Street experts thought it would once more have a decidedly depressing influence upon American commodity prices, as its decline did three and four years ago.

Financial circles who had hoped the time was approaching for a restoration of international monetary stability were disappointed. The recent steadiness of the pound around its old parity with the dollar at $4.86⅝ had led to hopes that stability might be restored at that level.

The sag in the pound the past several days has been attributed in Wall Street to withdrawal of short term balances from London, prompted by less favorable economic and political news from that capital, but the British equalization fund is thought to have been willing to see the pound decline, and taken no action to bolster it.

Some Wall Street foreign exchange experts suggested that the pound might be permitted, experimentally, to decline until it was discovered what the reaction of American and Continental European authorities would be. There is no doubt here that England would like to see a lower pound, as a stimulus to its export trade.

Causes Suggested.

Some usually informed quarters in Wall Street said that for the moment the drop in sterling should not be regarded as any more than a flurry in the foreign exchange market. Such a flurry, it was said, might have been expected in view of the collapse of the pepper, shellac and tin pools in London, and the consequent heated discussions in the House of Commons.

Should the decline in sterling mark the beginning of a trend, it was explained, then a serious new development has appeared in world economic affairs. But it was thought too early to tell. Some were inclined to attach considerable significance to the remarks of Chancellor Chamberlain in the House of Commons Thursday, when he said England was not yet ready to discuss stabilization. It was suggested that this might indicate determination to reduce the pound to a lower level.

Most Wall Street foreign exchange circles doubted that the sag in sterling could be interpreted as a possible indicator of early stabilization. While some suggested that the American authorities might be willing to see the pound somewhat lower, it was doubted that the British had any word from Washington that they might reduce the pound, then find the United States ready to talk stabilization.

One leading economist suggested that the British had taken the United States unawares by picking a time to let the pound decline when the American Treasury, faced with large refunding operations, would not like to cut the dollar in retaliation.

Some quarters in Wall Street deplored the decline in the pound at this time on the theory that it would be likely to increase pressure for monetary action from inflationist groups in this country.

Silver Highest Since 1928.

Bar silver, which enjoys several relatively free markets, continued to advance around the world, reaching the highest price in New York since 1928. At 57⅞ cents an ounce, the New York price was up a full cent from yesterday, and more than double its depression low of 24¼ cents. Its average above 62 cents, in 1919 $1.11, and in 1914 just under 55 cents.

The rise in silver was attributed in the New York market to speculative buying in several centers, including London and the Far East. Some experts said the decline in the British pound, and the rise in the London gold price was probably a minor influence on the world price of silver. It was pointed out that the takings of the United States Treasury had probably removed much of the floating supply of the metal, making the market particularly responsive to speculative and other demand.

The New York price of 57⅞ cents is for foreign silver, and reflects the world price. Since December of 1933, the Treasury has been paying 65½ cents for all newly mined silver from American mines, and last August the Treasury nationalized all stocks of silver in this country not needed for commercial purposes.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, March 2.—The British Government has stepped in with its exchange equalization fund, it was reported in financial circles late today, to put a halt to the sensational slump in the pound sterling.

The pound continued its sharp decline, touching 4.77¾, a low record since October, 1928, during the half-day trading. Meanwhile the price of bar gold in terms of sterling went to a record high for the second successive day.

An advance of a shilling 9½ pence brought gold to 146 shillings, 10½ pence, or $35.37, in terms of the American dollar. An amount valued at £362,000 ($1,743,482.50) was sold at the record price.

The pound closed at $4.79¾ after sinking as low as $4.78. The close represented a loss of about 8 cents in two days. In terms of French gold francs the pound sank from 72.30 to 71.64.

Spot silver spurted to 27 pence, the highest since Oct. 9, 1928.

The "city" was taking the continued sterling drop calmly and brokers did not allow the situation to interfere with their Saturday afternoon golf.

Generally the weakness was blamed on the fact the continent was still "talking the pound down" which was supported by the fact business on the foreign exchange market today was very small, with the British stabilization fund intervening only just before the close.

The "city" was more preoccupied with the international than the national effects of the fall of sterling. One of the main questions was whether President Franklin D. Roosevelt would further devalue the dollar in order to keep pace. These queries—not where sterling is falling to—were chiefly on the minds of London financial experts.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, March 2.—The United States dollar closed at 15.00 francs (6.666 cents to the franc) today, dropping from its opening price of 15.03 francs (6.663 cents) along with the pound sterling in an excited trading session. Yesterday's dollar close was 15.05 francs (6.643 cents).

Sterling dropped to 71.80 francs to the pound from 72.30.

BERLIN, March 2.—The United States dollar sold today at 2.468 marks (40.51 cents to the mark) as compared to yesterday's quotation of 2.471 marks (40.47 cents).

SHANGHAI, March 2.—The Chinese dollar continued to climb in value today, registering 2.48 to the United States dollar. The bankers expected a still further upward swing in local currency.

Comment on Business.

ST. LOUIS AND DISTRICT—Retail sales failed to gain during week, but remained 10 per cent above 1934 total. Wholesale orders declined, volume falling below last year; many retailers throughout territory withholding purchases due to late Easter. Industrial operations well maintained; wearing apparel manufacturers continued active; shoe output about 20 per cent ahead of last season. Mining activity in tri-state region depressed. Prices remained firm. New peak set for hog quotations.

BALTIMORE — Despite slight hesitation in distribution during week, there was no indication of relaxation of consumer demand; retail sales in nearly all lines above last year. Wholesale volume expanding at satisfactory pace as spring buying advanced. Factory employment 7 to 10 per cent above comparative 1934 figures, with payrolls up 6 to 12 per cent.

CHICAGO—Although hampered by frequent snows and cloudy weather, retail sales continued to hold above last year's level. Wholesale volume noticeably slower with orders in some lines under those for the comparative week of February, 1934; wholesale orders for the year to date still ahead of 1934 figures. Manufacturing operations expanding steadily, with employment and payrolls higher than a year ago. Automobile sales still gaining rapidly, and February building permits will exceed last year's.

CLEVELAND—More than a seasonal falling off in retail trade from high level of month ago; gain for February over 1934 total will amount to only a small percentage. Buying in wholesale markets active, with volume rising steadily. Industrial activity still exceeding last year's rate, despite unsettlement caused by labor disputes. Steel output up 2 points to 79 per cent of capacity. Manufacturers' sales of automobile parts running as high as 75 per cent ahead of year ago; increased costs, however, were curtailing profits.

DETROIT—Although considered satisfactory, retail sales were somewhat slowerd during this week; total 7 to 8 per cent above 1934 figures. Increase in wholesale volume more pronounced as spring buying started in earnest. Rising trend of industrial operations unchecked; a week's output of automobiles at 82,000 units, marked new high for 1935. February production estimated at 375,000 cars and trucks, while March production was set at 40,000, the highest for any month since April, 1930.

INDIANAPOLIS—Demand for retail merchandise only fair during week, but volume of sales was approximately 5 to 10 per cent ahead of last year. General business conditions thus far in 1935 making better showing than for any year since 1931, although trend in some lines has been irregular. Most noteworthy improvement reported for coal, steel and textile production. Furniture output under last year; activity in the Indiana limestone district declined to a new low level.

KANSAS CITY—Tornadoes, blizzards, deep snow and blinding dust storms hampered trade operations during week. Retail sales, however, gained moderately and will lift total for month above that of February, 1934. Wholesale buying starting to increase, following slowness during most of the month, orders in most lines slightly behind last year. Best reports being received from country districts.

LOUISVILLE—While retail sales in some lines slowed up during the past two weeks, volume continued above that of year ago, with general trend of business satisfactory. Wholesalers reported both volume and profits ahead of corresponding 1934 period. Bank clearings still maintained at a high level and further increases were recorded for carloadings. Expansion of industrial operations unchecked.

PITTSBURGH — Unfavorable weather conditions prevented any substantial increase in distribution for week, but in both the retail and wholesale division volume was being maintained above last year. Largest gain in wholesale orders reported for dry goods and shoes; men's and women's wearing apparel still moving slowly. Industrial operations down slightly; steel production off 2 points to about 37 per cent of capacity. Demand for plate glass continued strong; output about 80 per cent larger than year ago; sanitary and heating equipment lines up 20 per cent.

TOLEDO—Gain in retail sales narrowed during week; total only slightly above last year. Spring buying lifting wholesale volume steadily; good demand for shoes, but orders for dry goods decreased. Automobile parts factories made largest shipments for any week this year, despite the holiday, with the gain over 1934 figures amounting to 12 per cent. Production of safety glass on full schedules; sales of container glass in excess of last year. Further gains in employment reported for week.

YOUNGSTOWN—Retail trade accelerated by favorable weather and stronger demand for spring merchandise. With wholesalers, commitments becoming larger from week to week, as spring orders were being placed in larger volume. Total number of employed held steady, despite lower schedules at some steel mills. Operations of district steel mills started week at 56 per cent of capacity, a lowering of two points. For the corresponding week in 1934, operations were at 53 per cent of capacity, in 1933 at 14 per cent, in 1932 at 23 per cent and in 1931 at 50 per cent.

FEW IMPORTANT CHANGES IN BONDS AT NEW YORK

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 2.—Trading in the bond market today brought few important changes in values. For the general run of low-priced rails and other low-priced classes, the prices established today represented a generally full retention late of the recovery which followed their slump early in the week.

The U. S. Government list, which yesterday showed considerable life on a rising trend, had a much reduced following and with the exception of one or two Treasury loans, dealings were decidedly small, with late prices a shade easier.

In the utility division, Columbia Gas & Electric 5s were a strong feature.

The majority of Treasury issues were down 1-32d to 5-32ds of a point late. There was a fair amount of activity in the 4¼-3¼s around 105.2. Home Loan and Federal Farm issues were unchanged to 5-32ds lower late.

A further sharp decline in the rate of sterling exchange was accompanied by a drop at one period of 1½ points in British Government 5½s, which sold at 112. Other foreign loans were steady to firm at one time.

FIGHT TO OUST PAPE AS G. O. P. CHAIRMAN FAILS

City Committee in Secret Ballot Defeats Proposal for Reorganization, 28 to 21.

OUTCOME LEAVES FACTIONAL SPLIT

Opposition Group Sought to Replace Present Leader With Peter Anderson of First Ward.

An effort to oust Fred W. Pape as chairman of the Republican City Committee was defeated last night, but left a factional split which will be reflected in the campaign for the nomination for president of the Board of Aldermen in next Friday's primary.

The attempt was made by an element dissatisfied with Pape's leadership, which sought to make Peter Anderson, First Ward Committeeman, the chairman.

With some possible variation, Pape's supporters in the committee will favor nomination of William Maffitt Bates for aldermanic president, while Anderson's followers will be for Louis J. Reidel for the nomination.

Secret Vote on Reorganization.

With seven of the 56 committee members absent, a motion to take up reorganization was defeated, 28 to 21, in a secret ballot. Pape asserted that six of the seven absentees would have supported him, but the Reidel-Anderson forces also claimed most of the absent members. The latter group tried to postpone action until after the primade counter claims of strength.

Committeeman John J. Hurley, who had presented a petition signed by 25 members, calling for the meeting for reorganization, moved to defer the question. Pape ruled the motion out of order. Hurley appealed from the ruling, but the meeting sustained Pape by vocal vote, 25 to 24. Reidel asserted today that many of the members who voted against Pape on this question were backing him and represented wards with a substantial Republican vote. Backers of Bates made counter slaims of strength.

No Discussion at Meeting.

Pape, who thought Reidel would not be supported in the primary by all of the anti-Pape members, was insistent on settling the reorganization question last night, but when he called for discussion there was none. Twenty-two of Pape's opponents in the committee held a caucus at dinner at the American Hotel before the meeting.

Whether a new effort to oust Pape may be made has not been decided by Anderson's adherents. It could not be done before the primary. Pape's faction asserted that William Sacks and Charles L. Moore, a Republican member of the Election Board, had been backing the movement to unseat Pape. It would require 30 votes to oust him. Dissatisfaction among a so-called younger element of Republicans with Pape has been fostered by failure of the party in last November's election and a feeling that the prospect in the coming city election was gloomy.

COLUMBIA CAN CO. SOLD TO THE CONTINENTAL CO.

St. Louis Factory Changes Hands for Cash but Terms Are Not Announced.

Sale of the Columbia Can Co., 5221 Natural Bridge avenue, to the Continental Can Co. of New York was announced today by Emil J. Westerbeck, president of the Columbia company.

The Columbia company, capitalized at $750,000, was founded in 1902 by the late Fred L. Westerbeck, father of Emil Westerbeck. Previously Fred Westerbeck had operated the Mound City Can Co., which he established in 1876 and later sold to the American Can Co.

The Continental Can Co. is capitalized at $35,000,000 and is one of the major companies in the industry. It has plants throughout the country, one of them at National City, Ill.

CHOMA, Northern Rhodesia, March 2.—Hundreds of native police armed with torches plunged through the dense lion-infested bush country until dawn today, futilely searching for Margaret, Lady Young and Dr. J. Kirby, forced down in their airplane. Lady Young is the wife of Northern Rhodesia's Governor.

Motor searching parties set out at daybreak, led by the young husband of the aviatrix, Sir Hubert Young. Railroad employes, reinforced by 200 natives, deployed in fanshape through the wild region where the crash is thought to have occurred.

Lady Young and Kirby took off from Livingston for Lusaka, 300 miles away, Thursday. The Governor's wife was convalescing from an attack of influenza. The plane apparently was forced down soon after the takeoff because the trip could have been completed in about three hours.

Death of Two in Remote Village Reported—Australian Church Worker Killed.

By the Associated Press.

CHANGTEH, Hunan Prov., China, March 2.—Two British missionaries, R. A. Bosshardt and A. Hayman, captured by Communists in Kweichow Province last October, have been executed, according to Chinese reports reaching missionaries here.

A Chinese asserted he saw the bodies of the two missionaries lying in the street in the village of Feng Chiangkan, 10 miles west of Tayung in Northwestern Hunan Province.

He reported the alleged execution occurred Christmas day and said the incident had not been reported sooner because of the remoteness of the village and the difficulty of penetrating Red Army lines.

(Mission headquarters at Shanghai have received no word of the executions.)

The eye-witness declared that Bosshardt and Hayman were killed along with other captives after the time limit specified in the ransom demands had expired. The plea of the two missionaries for extension of time was fruitless.

No direct word has been received from Bosshardt and Hayman by the China Inland Mission since early last December, when they wrote what may have been their last letter.

Hayman, a native of New Zealand, and Bosshardt were captured Oct. 1 while returning to their remote stations from Kweiyang, Kweichow province.

Mrs. Hayman, Mrs. Bosshardt and Miss Grace Emblem, formerly of Altoona, Pa., who were members of the captured party, were released shortly to carry ransom demands. The Communists asked for 500,000 Mexican dollars (about $138,500).

Occasional reports said the missionaries had been seen during an enforced journey northward with the fleeing Red Army.

Australian Missionary Killed; Searchers Fail to Find Wife.

SIAN, Shensi Province, China, March 2.—The killing of the Rev. S. C. Frenchan, missing inland mission worker, was reported by Chinese soldiers today and missionary searchers gave up hope of finding his wife, a London woman, who set out a week ago on foot from Nankiang.

The death of Frenchan, a young Australian, was reported by troops from Nankiang, seat of his mission. The reports were confirmed by two British missionaries who set out to search for Mrs. Frenchan and who telegraphed that they had received the reports of Nankiang soldiers.

The two Englishmen arrived at Feghsien, Western Shensi, after a fruitless search in the mountain areas of Central China. They found no trace of the young wife. They wired that the soldiers had no details of the killing of Mr. Frenchan. They said the Reds in Southern Shensi were entirely surrounded by Nationalist troops.

Two American missionaries, Miss R. V. Thompson of Nevada, Ia., and Miss Alma Artibey of Chicago, who also had been missing for several days, arrived safely at Fensiang, the mission at that city telegraphed.

NEW YORK, March 2.—Richard B. Harrison, Negro actor playing the part of "De Lawd" in "The Green Pastures," collapsed from a heart attack in his dressing room this afternoon. He was taken to a hospital. Harrison is 70 years old.

MRS. ROOSEVELT TALKS ON WOMAN OF TODAY

Place Still in Home, Which Is No Longer Four Walls, She Says Over Radio.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, speaking last night in a radio advertising program, said that woman's place was in the home. But, she added, the home is no longer encompassed by four walls. Her conclusion was that woman must have her own life and live it, if she is to develop efficiently the art of living and to make the world a more agreeable place for everyone.

The 15-minute advertising program, heard here on Station KMOX at 7 p. m., was sponsored by an Ohio shoe company. The President's wife was introduced with the statement that payment for her part in the broadcast, and in others to follow on later Friday evenings, would be made not to her, but to the American Friends' Service Committee.

Mrs. Roosevelt's talk was termed "A Press Conference," and consisted of answers to questions read by Mrs. Genevieve Forbes Herrick and another woman questioner.

"Amazon Stage Not Reached."

"Some think," Mrs. Roosevelt said, "that we already have a woman's world. But I would not say that we have yet reached the Amazon stage. It is still easier for men to do certain things than it is for women. Man still uses the old slogan, 'woman's place is in the home.'"

"Do you think it is?" she was asked. She told, in reply, of an editorial she had read, which said it was all very well for women to interest themselves in outside matters, but that the work of women outside the home was negligible, in comparison with the importance of woman's activity in the home. The editorial maintained that "the normal woman puts home first," and that her most lasting satisfactions were gained in this way.

Woman Who Doesn't Marry.

"But what about the woman who doesn't fall in love and marry, or who for any reason has to earn her own living?" was the next query.

"It sometimes seems," Mrs. Roosevelt said, "that more mothers, and younger brothers and sisters, are supported by women relatives than by men. Men marry and have their own families to provide for, while girls are held by a sense of responsibility to remain with those needing their help. Often, in this way, they satisfy at least partially their craving for home and the inborn maternal instinct. The time is likely to come when such a woman will find herself alone, and this may likewise happen to a married woman. It is here that some outside interest may serve as a help to a woman when her older dependents die and the younger ones leave her.

"Then it is well for women to keep up some outside interest?"

"Yes, for even a woman who does her own housework has a certain amount of time to keep her mind alert. Always, church and charity work have been open to women. Now, civic work and interest in government are almost more important than charity, as they deal with basic social conditions. Now that woman has the vote, a responsibility rests on her in these matters, and all training will be of value."

Women in Business.

The next question was as to women's qualifications as business executives, and Mrs. Roosevelt said that successful women were to be found in almost all business and professional lines. "The career woman," she added, "is not always what is called the man's type, but may be extremely feminine."

Asked as to women in the creative arts, the speaker replied that their creative ability had been shown in literature and the drama, while in other fields, such as painting and sculpture, their success had been less marked, perhaps because of past restrictions. There are not many great woman preachers, she remarked, though women are supposed to be the world's readiest talkers. In social service and in education, she said, they stand beside men, these occupations bringing out both the maternal and the paternal instinct.

In politics and public office, Mrs. Roosevelt said in reply to the next question, women for a time followed the instructions of men more versed in such matters. Now, she said, woman is gaining a free hand, and is becoming an independent influence in politics. "We are nearing, not a woman's world, but real equality between men and women."

The questions and Mrs. Roosevelt's answers took about 10 minutes, and the rest of the time was given to shoe publicity, by an announcer, and to details of an advertised prize contest.

BALEARIC FORTIFICATION PLANS

Proposal in Spain to Spend $69,000,000 on Islands.

By the Associated Press.

MADRID, March 2.—The Cabinet began study yesterday of plans calling for the expenditure of 500,000,000 pesetas (about $69,000,000) to modernize the Balearic Islands' defenses, deepen harbors to accommodate modern fighting ships, establish naval and air bases and equip them with fast ships and planes.

Because of their position in the Mediterranean, the islands might be valuable to any power planning to attack Marseilles, the southern part of France, Gibraltar, Northern Africa, or Spain. The defense plans center about Port Mahon, Minorca, and Pollensa, Mallorca, both favorite spots of American tourists.

ALDERMEN AGAINST TRAFFIC CASE "FIXING"

In Resolution Support Mayor's Campaign to Reduce Auto Fatalities.

"Fixing" of Police Court charges against traffic code offenders was condemned yesterday by the Board of Aldermen which adopted unanimously a resolution supporting Mayor Dickmann's campaign to reduce traffic accidents and fatalities.

The board requested that all traffic charges be tried on their merits, where defendants do not choose to plead guilty in court, or, in minor cases, by paying fines at the Traffic Violations Bureau.

Alderman Terry (Dem.), author of the resolution, said traffic accidents had increased so much that an emergency confronted the city.

The resolution concluded:

"The members of the Board of Aldermen hereby commend the policy and efforts of the Mayor and the enforcement officials, and pledge our whole-hearted support to all efforts in the direction of a better enforcement and observance of traffic regulations. We appeal to all officials and to all citizens to recognize and consider all traffic regulations as measures adopted for the safety of the people and the protection and preservation of human life.

"We further appeal to them to dispose of all cases of traffic violation upon their merits, and recognize the right of no citizen to have his case disposed of as a political or personal favor. We recognize that the greatest favor that can be extended to our constituents is to make the lives of our men, women and little children safe upon our streets."

Aldermen Golden, Kralemann and Schwartz were absent.

By a vote of 15 to 11, the Board of Aldermen requested the Board of Estimate and Apportionment to appropriate $1000 for expenses of the special aldermanic natural gas committee on a proposed trip to Washington. Chairman Scott of the special committee, offering the resolution, said the purpose was to impress the city's sincerity on PWA Administrator Ickes and other Federal officials, in the effort to have natural gas piped here from Texas.

Alderman Waldeman (Rep.) objected because of the municipal deficit and said the committee might "get lost in the shuffle at Washington." Terry said weeks of effort would be required, and that St. Louis' representatives in Congress should be asked to undertake it. Those opposing the trip in the vote were: President Neun and Aldermen Eilers, Reinhardt and Waldman (Reps.), and Aldermen Collins, Gummels, Hennerich, Hoeflinger, O'Toole, Petersen and Terry (Dems.).

A complaint was received by the Aldermen from the St. Louis Refrigerating & Cold Storage Co. about a proposal by the Board of Public Service to install a municipal plant for air cooling at Municipal Auditorium, instead of obtaining the refrigerating service from this company, which has an underground system of refrigerating pipes. The letter said the city plant would involve immediate expenditure of $250,000, as against expenditure of $100,000 over a period of years in preparing for use of the pipe-line refrigeration.

The company said it felt it was entitled to the contract because it paid the city 5 per cent of its gross receipts for the use of the streets for its lines. The letter was referred to the Aldermanic Auditorium Committee. Director of Public Utilities Wall has said the city proposed its own plant, in the opinion it was cheaper.

URGES USE OF ADVERTISING AS AID TO BUSINESS RECOVERY

C. C. Younggreen of Chicago Addresses C. of C. Sales Managers' Bureau.

Business is showing a steady upward trend and the intelligent use of advertising will accelerate the return of prosperity, C. C. Younggreen, past president of the Advertising Federation of America and of the International Advertising Association, said in an address to the Sales Managers' Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce at its weekly luncheon at Hotel Jefferson yesterday.

"Newspapers," he said, "are the most effective of all advertising media because they are closer to the public than any other. Most sales are made by advertising long before the salesman has succeeded in getting the customer's signature on the dotted line."

Discussing the question, "Does Selling Need Advertising?" Younggreen said advertising had done business an outstanding and constructive service in lowering sales costs, in preparing the ground for personal salesmanship and in maintaining the loyalty of the customer. This, he said, was especially important during the last few years, when many firms continued their advertising to maintain their sales.

Younggreen is widely known in merchandising and advertising circles. He is a member of Reincke, Ellis, Younggreen & Finn, Inc., Chicago.

Consent Judgment for $6000.

A consent judgment for $6000 was entered by Circuit Judge Hartmann yesterday in favor of the Republic Bag Co., 1439 North Thirteenth street, against Laclede Power and Light Co. The judgment was based on fire damage to stock and the building of the bag company July 22, 1932. It was alleged the fire was started by a bolt of lightning carried into the building over Laclede lines. The original claim was for $32,301.

EX-HEAD OF CHICAGO SANITARY BOARD INDICTED ON TAX COUNT

Howard W. Elmore Accused of Evading $51,000 Payment on $288,000 Income for 1929-30.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 2. — Howard W. Elmore, former president of the Chicago Sanitary District Board, was indicted by the Federal grand jury yesterday on charges of trying to evade payment of $51,659 in income taxes on a two-year income said to have been $288,811.

Elmore, then of former Senator Charles S. Deneen's Republican faction, headed the Sanitary Board in 1928-29. His tax schedule for 1929 showed an income of $19,731 and $180 tax paid. The Government alleged his actual income, even without the $7500 salary which was tax-exempt, totaled $199,703. For 1930 he filed a report showing a loss of $5735 and paid no tax. The Government charged that his 1930 income really was $95,107. If convicted, he would be subject to 10 years imprisonment and $20,000 fine.

Born in Greenville, Ill., Elmore came to Chicago in 1912 and earned a living selling fish and oysters until he turned to a real estate venture that made him the millionaire head of a subdividing firm, now in receivership.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, March 2.—The "Commercial Bulletin" says:

"Sales of some 10,000,000 pounds of wool are fair to predict for the transactions of the current week, taking the first four days as a basis. . . . Horses and Mules.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NATIONAL STOCKYARDS, March 2.—The horse and mule market continued to receive good support during the week and a fair commission supply of approximately 1200 head averaged steady to strong. The offering was virtually all cleared by Wednesday night.

Horses were active and good farm stock sold particularly well. Both geldings and mares received a broad inquiry and there seemed to be an unlimited demand for good young mares, more buyers being interested in these than any other class.

Virtually all types of mules maintained a steady level and strength was indicated in farm material.

Beaumont and Soldan To Meet for District Basketball Crown

By Harold Tuthill.

For the third time in the nine years that the St. Louis district high school basketball championship has been held, it will be an all-city final. Beaumont and Soldan, which have met once before in 1928, will battle tonight for the titular honors in the "A" division at Maplewood starting at 9 o'clock. The preliminary, for class "B" honors, will be between St. Charles and John Burroughs at 8 o'clock.

Faces a Real Task

C. J. P. "Pete" Reynolds, recently named coach of the Knox College football eleven, which has lost 27 consecutive games, in three years. Last season, the eleven not only did not win, but failed to score a point.

Soldan reached the final in the upper half of the bracket by nosing out the City League champion, McKinley, 20 to 15, while Beaumont overcame a determined Clayton team, 30 to 26, in the other "A" division semifinal last night. St. Charles was a better team than Ferguson by a 34 to 17 count, while John Burroughs won from its arch rival, Principia, in the "ABC" League, 23 to 12, in the semifinals of the "B" class.

Since the inception of the tournament in 1927, when Wellston won the championship, fans have been asking themselves and others, "Why doesn't a county school win the title?" No satisfactory answer to that question has ever been issued and if you cared to ask those of the 1100 who saw the semi-finals last night, they would shrug their shoulders and say that "they didn't know, maybe it's luck."

Clayton Missed Shots.

That's the kind of a game it was between Beaumont and Clayton. The Blue Jackets, which had finished tied for second in the City League race, were playing a marvelous game and had their hands full trying to stave off the Clayton attack. The Orange and Blue, showing as an aggressive a squad as ever has taken a basketball floor, was not hitting its shots and therein lay the difference.

It was an uphill battle for Coach H. K. Long's boys from Clayton and they finally managed to tie the score at 17-all, at the beginning of the third period. Then Lester Benner regained Beaumont's lead with a field goal and Bob Gerst followed a short time later with another for the Blue Jackets. After Jackie Hughes had counted for Clayton, Art Kerls matched the goal with a pair of free throws and Beaumont led going into the final seven minutes, 23 to 19.

For three minutes Clayton tried desperately to score, only to see the tries roll off the rim of the western basket. Then Beaumont got possession of the ball. From Wilson Schwenk to Homer Knox to Bob Gerst, the ball proceeded on its way to the Clayton basket. Herb Kamper was open; he received the ball on the left side of the floor, loosed the ball and it swished through the netting for a field goal.

A short time later, Kerls' follow of Kamper's try, put Beaumont ahead, 27 to 19, and the Clayton fans were about ready to abandon any hope of victory. Then with only three minutes and 45 seconds to go, Gerst took a pass from Kamper and scored again for Beaumont, giving the Jackets a 29 to 19 lead. Gerst was fouled by Norbert Litzsinger and he made the subsequent free throw good for Beaumont's last point of the contest.

The Last Gasp.

Clayton, noted for its strong finishes, attempted to square the issue, but even a free throw by Bob Soell and field goals by Bob Wylie, Litzsinger and Hughes in the last two and one-half minutes left the Orange and Blue four points short of a tie.

Soldan became the other semi-finalist by the I-don't-know-you-guess method. While the West Enders have had a well-balanced club all season, they hardly could have been considered an even bet.

BATTERYMEN OF CARDINALS BEGIN SPRING TRAINING

By J. Roy Stockton.
Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

BRADENTON, Fla., March 2.—Paul Dean and Dazzy Vance were the only pitchers absent as the Cardinal battery men gathered here today for the first workout of the spring training season. Sam Breadon announced that Paul Dean had sent word he was leaving Hot Springs today and would reach Bradenton tomorrow night. Vance resides at Homosassa and is expected to report shortly.

Catchers Virgil Davis and Bill De Lancey arrived last night and greeted Manager Frisch and his party this morning, as they stepped from their train at 8:17 o'clock. Coaches Wares and Gonzales, Pitcher Kleinke, Secretary Lloyd, Dr. Robert F. Hyland and Branch Rickey, business manager, were in Frisch's party.

Infielders Charley Gelbert and Jimmy Collins and Outfielders Gene Moore and Bob Worthington were here for an extra week of work. Collins, convalescing from an attack of scarlet fever, said he was at his normal winter weight, and expected to be at full strength for the baseball season. Gelbert had been work-

Ruth's Remarks Start Move to Increase English Star's Pay

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, March 2.—Babe Ruth, the man who did more than any other to make baseball salaries what they are today, has started a red-hot movement to improve the financial lot of England's professional athletes.

The Babe doesn't know it, but a few of his muttered remarks during his recent visit here may prove the inspiration for a new and better deal for the soccer player and the cricketer. His visit and his remarks, at least, have awakened both public and players to a realization that $40 a week is not an enormous salary.

"Forty bucks a week top pay?" ejaculated the Babe. "What a racket that is. What's chances of me buying into one of those football or cricket clubs?"

While the assembled newspaper men were not too impressed with the Babe's diplomacy, they were forced to admit that he had hit the nail somewhere near the head. Ever since, as though it had just occurred to them, they have been suggesting in print that a man like Alex James, the "Babe Ruth of soccer," might be worth a trifle more than $40 every Saturday.

That, of course, is the maximum salary a player in the British Football Association may be paid, though some of them, like James, add anywhere from 20,000 to 30,000 to the size of the crowd every time they play.

A star cricketer who works at his job 12 months of the year can make around $3000. The Babe's remarks might result in getting him a slight raise. Who knows?

WIND HANDICAPS DOGS ON SECOND DAY'S RUNNING IN TITLE EVENT

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

GRAND JUNCTION, Tenn., March 2.—The second days' running of the National championship bird dog trials paraded some top-notchers before a large and enthusiastic gallery, but it cannot be said that the dogs set any records or approached close thereto.

The weather for the work yesterday was all that could be asked, but a stiff wind came up soon after the start and it became almost impossible for the runners to locate the game accurately. Dogs that carry reputations for their exactness on game could not be sure of their birds.

The morning brace was composed of the highly rated pointer, Shanghai Express, by Richardson's Policeman, out of Retrieving Roxie, and a smooth running little setter, Sport's Peerless, by Iredell Sport, out of Lady Burgess, Henry Gilchrest handled the pointer and Dewey English directed the setter.

Wind Handicaps Dogs.

Both worked fairly well, Shanghai displaying an exceedingly tactful handling of the game in the high winds. The rangy pointer could have been more stylish and staunch on point, but he could not have been much more careful. Most of the birds found on this run were located by an approaching dog, with the scent struck from a considerable distance, due to the high wind.

Shanghai found six bevies, and pointed three times on single birds, but made a few errors that did not help his total. He made only one unproductive point, but ran into another, and fell for the scent of a cotton tail. His race was hardly one of championship calibre, but he made a very good showing.

The setter, Sports Peerless, ran high, wide and handsome, but failed as far as ringing up points on game was concerned. He managed to get in one fell handled single but the game flushed on the only good point he made out of three. He proved that he was a smooth runner.

Dogs Run Off Course.

The afternoon brace which paraded the present national champion Noria's Annie, Queen of the Teagle kennels, paired with a setter, Dawn Breeze, furnished a little more field trial work, but less game by the dogs.

This race got under way with both dogs running from the course and out of sight of the judges. Annie was soon located, however, and the gallery moved on without Dawn Breeze, which did not show up for judgment until the time was nearly two-thirds gone. When he did show up the setter went right to work and had two finds, within the first five minutes. His record for the afternoon showed two finds, one of which he handled well on wing and shot. He also had one single. Ray Smith handled him.

Norias Annie, handled by the veteran Charley Harris, ran a very good race, but her effort did not compare favorably with her work of last year. In this stake the little black and white female pointer started well and finished strong but had a lapse during her heat that was filled with inactivity. Annie did not look like the Annie of old and the keeper of the Robert W. Bingham cup, on which Annie's name is inscribed, might be singing tonight, "Annie don't live here any more." But with all jokes aside, Annie's race may have attracted the judges for she made no mistakes. The consensus is that this year's winner of this important stake is yet to run.

Boy, 11, Struck By Baseball, Dies

Clayton Misses Chance at Beaumont Basket

Wiley (No. 15) fails in an attempt to shoot a basket from close up in last night's District Tourney semifinal at Maplewood High School's gymnasium. The other players are Soell, Benner and Schwenk. Beaumont won, 30 to 26, and will play Soldan for the title.

CHANCE SUN, WIDENER ACE, EARLY CHOICE FOR THE RACE

By the Associated Press.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., March 2.—Chance Sun, the outstanding two-year-old of 1934, and a score of other leading stake winners as juveniles were among 110 thoroughbreds nominated today for a try May 4 at the country's greatest horse race.

The list is somewhat smaller than in recent years, but it contains practically every one of the nation's three-year-olds that has been conceded a chance to become the 1935 Kentucky Derby winner.

In numbers and in class, the East bids fair to furnish the winner this season, but almost every section of the country has a representative or two, including California, Florida, Indiana, Tennessee and Texas. The 110 nominees, out of which some 10 to 20 will be chosen to start after the next two months of gruelling training, ran all told 1424 times as two-year-olds. Their combined score was 200 victories, 167 seconds and 124 thirds, for total money earnings of the princely sum of $468,191.

Chance Sun Won $83,985.

Chance Sun, which topped the list last year with $83,985 winnings, will be the sole dependence this year of Joseph E. Widener to win the $40,000 added Kentucky classic. He rules as winter book favorite and recently was quoted at 6 to 1, about the shortest "future" odds in a generation.

Among other outstanding contestants are Psychic Bid, Plat Eye, Try Sympathy, St. Bernard, Wise Prince, Sailor Beware, Brannon, Omaha, Blackbirder, Boxthorn, Vicaress, Esposa, Commonwealth, Polish Beau, Special Agent, Sound Advice, Roman Soldier, Pitter Pat, Gallant Prince, Good Flavor and the Calumet Farm's great filly, Nellie Flag.

William Woodward leads the nominators for the sixty-first Derby with seven. His list includes such likely performers as Omaha, Gallant Prince, Pitter Pat and Vicaress, the first two sons of his Gallant Fox, which won the 1930 Derby.

The Calumet farm has six nominees, the only outstanding one being Nellie Flag whose $57,240 winnings last year came second to the total turned in by Chance Sun. Four other owners, Alfred G. Vanderbilt, Mrs. Dodge Sloane, Willis Sharpe Kilmer and Mrs. F. C. Mars, each named four. The Vanderbilt and Milky Way Farm eligibles based on their two-year-old records contain no outstanding prospects. Mrs. Sloane's Brookmeade Stable which sent the great English bred Cavalcade to victory in last year's Derby, has at least two good chances this year in Special Agent and Psychic Bid. Try Sympathy is Kilmer's best bet this far ahead of the race.

Bradley Nominates Two.

Plat Eye and Sailor Beware, two colts which ranked among the better two-year-olds last year, along with Up and Up, a chestnut gelding, will represent Mrs. Payne Whitney's Greentree Stable which sent the immortal Twenty Grand out in 1931 to set a new record of 2:01 4-5 for the mile and a quarter.

Gomez Signs 2-Year Contract With Yanks; Salary to Be $20,000

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 2.—Vernon (Lefty) Gomez, leading pitcher of the American League last season, signed a two-year contract with the New York Yankees today at a salary of $20,000 per season, an increase of $6500 over the $13,500 he was paid last year.

Gomez, who returned from a world tour yesterday with a demand that he be paid $27,000 for this year's work, thereby becoming the first Yankee holdout, accepted the club's terms this afternoon after sleeping over a counter proposition made last night by Ed Barrow, Yankee business manager.

The club first offered him a renewal of the 1934 contract calling for $13,500—the same figure the lean southpaw has received since 1932.

Gomez said he is well satisfied with the new agreement, and will leave with Mrs. Gomez, the former June O'Dea of musical comedy fame, tomorrow, for the Yankee training camp at St. Petersburg, Fla.

With the departure of Babe Ruth to the Boston Braves, Gomez now shares honors with Lou Gehrig, hard-hitting first sacker, as the ranking salaried players with the Yanks. Gehrig last week signed a new one-year contract believed to call for $30,000.

Score at end of first half—Collinsville, 11; Alton, 9. Referee—Duncan.

Granite City High School's basketball team gained the 1934-35 championship in the Madison-St. Clair High School Conference last night by defeating Madison, 38 to 30, at Madison. The game, along with Collinsville's 20 to 17 victory over Alton and Belleville's defeat by East St. Louis, 37 to 25, officially ended the East Side league's schedule for the season.

Madison's green and white clad players gave the Happy Warriors a scare before the Granite City offense started to click in the last two minutes of play. With the score tied at 30-all, Dameron, Granite City guard, registered a field goal to put Granite City in front. Padgett, Parker and Beeler followed with field goals to give the Warriors the victory.

Play in the first quarter was rather even, with the quarter ending 9 to 8 in favor of Granite City. The second quarter saw Beeler rate the tipoff over Cain on every play and during that quarter the victors counted 10 points to the losers' four. Beeler gained the tip over Cain throughout the entire game. In the closing half Cain made no attempt to outjump the lanky Warrior center.

Madison's real threat came in the early minutes of the third quarter as they tallied a total of 11 points to forge ahead for the first time in the game before Granite's offense registered a point. At the end of the third quarter Madison maintained a four-point advantage, the score standing 27 to 23 in their favor.

Claude Beeler goes down on record as the high individual scoring ace for the East Side circuit this season as his eight points brought his total to 128 for the year. Ray Cain, Madison pivot man, was next in line to Beeler with 116 points. Beeler, however, did not prove the main gun in Madison's defeat last night, as Willard Padgett, Warrior guard, played his usual fine defensive game and collected six field goals and a charity toss for 13 points.

Day, Bilyeu and Cain were the scoring stars for the losers, as they netted 22 of the losers' points. Phillips and Skinner were the other two players to contribute to Madison's scoring with four apiece.

Collinsville's victory over Alton gave them second place in the final standings, while East St. Louis finished the season in fourth place with six victories and as many defeats. Wood River was third place team, with Madison fifth. Alton sixth and Belleville in the cellar berth.

BATTERYMEN OF CARDS BEGIN SPRING WORK

Gelbert Surprises.

"He can sprint and do everything else that I can do," Collins told the writer. "He fooled me. He wore me out running around the park."

"My leg is in fine condition," Gelbert said. "I played handball during the winter and did a lot of skating. I was afraid the skating would be too much for me, being such a strain on the ankles, but my legs stood up fine. I'm confident that I am fit for full-time major-league duty."

Gelbert said the wound in his left leg, just above the ankle, was "practically healed." He recently underwent a skin-graft operation and he was told that the wound probably would heal and then reopen from time to time, pending permanent healing.

Two Drills Today.

Manager Frisch wasted no time ordering a workout and the boys were instructed to be at the ball park at 10 o'clock, with a second session scheduled for this afternoon.

Dizzy Dean, criticised in many quarters for recently putting the blast on Babe Ruth, is sticking to his guns.

"I meant every word I said," Dizzy said this morning. "I have no objection to Babe's being in the league. The thing that burned me up was the fact that he was coming over and knocking McKechnie out of a job. If that doesn't happen, it's all right with me."

Catcher Bob O'Farrell will report Tuesday.

Mongo in the Money.

Van Lingle Mungo, Brooklyn pitcher, owns a South Carolina farm and has $25,000 in the bank, he told his employers when told of his 1935 salary figures.

Bostic Captures "Joe Louis Trophy" as the Best Boxer In Negro Title Tournament

By W. J. McGoogan.

There was no new Joe Louis discovered in the Negro city-wide amateur boxing tournament at the Coliseum last night but at least two of the boys showed enough that they likely will be included in the team which will represent St. Louis in the National A. A. U. tournament at the Arena next month.

Leonard Bostic, tall, rangy light-heavyweight champion who won the Joe Louis award for the outstanding performance of the tournament, and Bill Henly, lightweight title holder, are those whose performances were sufficiently impressing to give them a crack at a national title, according to Benny Kessler, chairman of the Ozark A. A. U. Boxing Committee.

Also Monroe Harrison, heavyweight, who stepped to the unlimited class title with two technical knockouts and ran Bostic a close second for the Louis Trophy, probably will box at the Arena. He fought in the tournament here last year in the 175-pound class and lost his first-round match, but has improved since that time.

Bostic Knocks Out Henry.

Bostic's victory in the final resulted from a knockout over Thomas Henry in the first round. He sent Henry to the floor for a nine count; then Henry, after regaining his feet, was not alert enough to see another right hand whistling at him. The blow landed right on his chin and the lights went out—for Henry.

Henly fought an uphill battle to win the 135-pound crown from Dave Riley. Henly was on the floor in the second round twice for counts of five, and several other times when he bobbed up without a count. He seemed a sure loser as he walked to his corner at the end of the session, but he came out battling in the final round.

He sent Riley reeling with rights and lefts and finally just as the bell rang, ending the fight, he crashed Riley to the floor and would have scored a knockout if there had been time for the referee to count.

Boxers Refuse to Fight.

Neither of Harrison's opponents cared to mix it with him and gave him little chance to show what he could do. In the semifinal match, Roy Watson covered his head with his arms and hands, giving Harrison nothing to punch. In the second round, Al Neist, referee, finally stopped the bout and gave Harrison a technical knockout.

And in the final the same thing happened when Russell Thomas refused to come out of his shell. Thomas, rather short and stocky, appeared to be a foe who could give Harrison an argument, but he refused to do so. He covered up and the fight was stopped in the second.

There were five knockouts and six technical knockout during the 24-bout program, which was witnessed by a crowd of 2671. Receipts were $1027.25; Federal tax, $69.15; State, $52.30; city, $50.36.

Ambers Beats Fuller, May Get Title Bout With Ross

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 2.—As a consequence of blowing down the latest obstacle in his path to lightweight fistic fame, Lou Ambers, the youthful "Herkimer Hurricane," today has a clear claim to a match with Barney Ross, king of the 135-pounders, so far as the official boxing family of New York is concerned.

Rated the No. 1 championship contender in this state sometime ago, Ambers made the solemn commissioners of the fistic game look very good indeed by the thorough, convincing manner in which he plastered rugged Sammy Fuller of Boston in 15 brisk rounds in Madison Square Garden last night. Ambers failed to show sufficient punching power to dislodge the chunky Boston Italian from his feet but the flashy up-state boxer had his opponent dizzy from a two-fisted fire, from start to finish.

Ambers, on the Associated Press score-sheet, took 12 rounds—all except the third, seventh and fifteenth—and satisfied a crowd of 10,000 that he is one of the best lightweight prospects developed in years, despite the fact he is only 20 years old and has had less than 50 professional fights. Last night's match was only his second appearance in a main go at the Garden.

Ambers will be offered a match with Tony Canzoneri, former holder of the lightweight title, but may refuse it in preference to waiting for an outdoor match with Ross for the title. The Garden, which has Ambers under contract, wants to pair Lou with Tony March 22 or 29. The offer may be too attractive for Ambers and his handlers to turn down, especially as they are confident Canzoneri can be taken by the "Hurricane."

Ambers weathered a stormy last round in whipping Fuller, who rallied unexpectedly in the fifteenth to rock Lou with several robust right handers and open a gash under the youngster's left eye. Up to that point, however, Ambers had an overwhelming margin on points, piled up through the busy use of his whip-like left and a right-cross that had Sammy baffled, beaten and in retreat most of the time. Fuller made it interesting for the first half dozen rounds but thereafter was outspeeded, outboxed and outsmarted by his young rival.

The card drew a "gate" of $19,015.

BEAUMONT OPPOSES SOLDAN QUINTET IN DISTRICT MEET FINAL

to defeat the city champion. However, that's exactly what Soldan did.

Due largely to the sharpshooting of Ray January, "all-star" forward, Soldan jumped into an 11 to 2 lead at the quarter. Try as McKinley might, the Goldbugs never quite got around to meeting Soldan on even terms. The best McKinley could do was to trail, 16 to 15, after three-quarters. Then John Stacey and Carl Steimnitz counted field goals for Soldan and that's all the scoring that was done in the last seven minutes.

Ferguson, which was considered by many not strong enough to reach the semi-finals, made a battle of it for two periods with St. Charles, but then Ramsey Lammers and John Schneider began banging away at the basket in a fashion that had Ferguson gasping. From an advantage of 18 to 11 at the half, which was maintained, 22 to 15, after three quarters, the Pirates put on a fourth-quarter storm of 12 points that swamped Ferguson.

Ferguson's Aces.

Chief in Ferguson's attack were Dave Owen, center, with eight points and Lawrence Bohne with six points.

After trailing, 5 to 4, after two periods, Burroughs donned the comeback role which smothered Principia. George Sisler Jr., with four field goals, was the shining light in Burroughs' victory, while A. Trimp was high for Principia with three of the four goals from scrimmage.

Notes of the Tournament.

Beaumont and Soldan will represent St. Louis in the state tournament to be held at Columbia, March 14-16. At that time, the other 14 regional winners will assemble at the home of Missouri University.

Playing without its captain, Ben Kleg, who had a sprained right ankle, Soldan looked as good against McKinley as it has at any time this season. With Kleg out, Carl Steinmetz, a guard, was moved to forward and Ben Kleyman took Steinmitz' place.

Soldan tried sleepers, which to the few unitiated means forwards camped under the basket, in the last two periods with varying degrees of success.

Opposing Systems.

Against the fast-traveling Beaumont squad, Clayton used a man-to-man defense, while the Blue Jackets adopted the zone defense. The fact that Beaumont won the game is not an indication that one style is better than the other, because the Suburban representatives were rimming a lot of their shots.

Beaumont will meet good teams in the finals at Columbia, but it is doubtful that the Blue Jackets will play many better than Clayton. Big, fast and aggressive, Clayton looked like one of the top-ranking teams, even in defeat. The way in which the Orange and Blue ran its block plays would have done credit to a collegiate team.

Orchids for fine playing in the "A" semifinals should go to Ray January and Ben Kleyman of Soldan, to Wilson "Bud" Schwenk and Herb Kamper of Beaumont and to Jackie Hughes and Norbert Litzsinger of Clayton. Charles "Mickey" Russell and Gene Globig starred in the McKinley lineup.

15 DRIVERS ENTERED IN MIDGET AUTO RACE

George Chitwood, whose quartet of midget racers were turned down for competition at the Arena last week for failing to meet requirements, will be in the opening lineup for time trials at the Oakland avenue track next Tuesday night with two cars which have been remodeled according to accepted specifications.

The receipt of the two entries from the Topeka (Kan.) driver raises to 15 the list of drivers who have signified their intentions of being on hand for the fifth program next week. Thirteen drivers who have scored points towards the Southwestern Championship, here, have already sent in signed entry blanks. They are headed by Marshall Lewis, who is leading the procession with 329½ points.

Embarrassing Moments

It will be remembered that when David Copperfield dropped in on Aunt Betsy out of a clear sky she appealed to Mr. Dick for advice as what to do with him. Mr. Dick rose to the occasion and said: "Have him measured for a suit of clothes."

Bill McKechnie is in much the same predicament in regard to Babe Ruth. He doesn't know what to do with him. Our suggestion would be to have him measured for a new uniform.

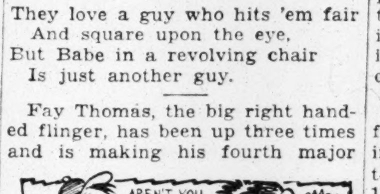

Bill himself says that Babe isn't worth a nickel to anybody outside a uniform. That being the case, a new set of spangles is indicated.

As Bobbie Might Say.

THE idol of the baseball fan
In spangles must perform.
It's not the mufti makes the man,
It is the uniform.

They love a guy who hits 'em fair
And square upon the eye,
But Babe in a revolving chair
Is just another guy.

Fay Thomas, the big right handed flinger, has been up three times and is making his fourth major league bow with the Browns. It just goes to show that you can't keep a good man down. Looks like first division.

Don Tranger, the man who can play the saxophone and clarinet and do a Russian dance simultaneously, is our notion of the world's greatest triple threat.

The Cardinals entrained for Florida Thursday night. By the Cardinals we mean Frankie Frisch and three rookie pitchers. How times have changed!

Casey Stengel says that Linus Frey is twice the shortstop that he was last year. Well, you can't have too many good shortstops.

Benny Leonard says the boxing game lacks color. It takes color to attract the long green and it takes long green to keep you out of the red.

When they assemble a troupe of trained seals and have the "champion" defending his title two or three times a week and never losing, the glove industry will horn into the important money and pay dividends.

Babe Ruth celebrated his transfer to the Boston Braves by drinking the first glass of beer he had taken in Col. Ruppert's brewery in 15 years. Well, that's all right, too, as long as he didn't cry in it.

It is rumored that the Giants will train in Panama next year. However, keep it under your hat.

The departure of Babe Ruth will mean a shift in the Yankees' batting order and a shift in the opposition's outfield.

A headline states that Zeze Bonura is adamant. That's okay as long as it doesn't go to his head.

Bill Bonthron says that his next race at Princeton on June 15 will be his last, but he hopes he'll be first.

WORLD RECORD IN FIRST EVENT OF I. C. 4-A. MEET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 2.—Big Henry Dreyer of Rhode Island State, today bettered all existing records for the 35-pound weight throw indoors and out as he tossed the big iron ball 57 feet 9 inches to win the opening event of the Intercollegiate A. A. A. A. indoor track and field championships.

Baker Five Plays St. Clair Tonight In Ozark Tourney

Four more games are scheduled for tonight in the Ozark A. A. U. basketball tournament, with the Hi-Pointe five and the Ayers Oilers of Luray, Mo., and the Bakers and the St. Clair (Mo.) five playing in the most interesting games.

On the north court, the Mordie Wolfs play the Medics at 8 o'clock and the Hi-Pointe-Ayers game follows an hour later. On the south court, the Ralston Purina five meets the Young Democrats at 8 o'clock, with the Bakers-St. Clair game following on hour later.

Last night the St. Louis Pabs defeated the Fouke five, 30—9; the Belleville (Ill.) Gaerdners eliminated the Hermann (Mo.) team, 42—28, and the Golubs won from Third Baptist's squad, 22—16.

Fouke led the Pabs, 7—6, at one time, but the Pabs held the Foukes without a score in the second half while piling up 22 points.

BLACK HAWKS STAR OUT OF LINEUP FOR WEEK

350 Track Stars Will Compete in K.C.A.C. Carnival

KANSAS CITY, March 2.—The Glenn Cunningham-Glen Dawson rivalry, with a comparative newcomer in the running to make it a triangular affair, will be renewed tonight on the flat oval in Convention Hall.

The two durable middle-distance aces from Kansas and Oklahoma together with Elton Brown of the Kansas City Athletic Club, will match strides at 1000 yards in the headliner event of the revived K. C. A. A. indoor track and field carnival.

Although Cunningham is the odds-on favorite in his first indoor appearance here since he spiked his way to fame, Dawson has beaten him once and the length of the race is closer to Brown's favorite distance, the half mile.

The event takes the place of the cancelled dual between Cunningham and Indiana's Chuck Hornbostel at the three-quarters of a mile.

Brown, one of the best half-milers turned out by Dr. Garfield Weede of the Pittsburg, Kan., Teachers' College, has become a favorite on the Eastern indoor circuit after winning the 880-yard specials at the Millrose and Seton Hall games.

Louis to Box Barry.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 2.—Joe Louis, dusky Detroit Negro who hopes some day to jar Max Baer loose from his crown, began training yesterday for his 10-round bout next Friday with "Red" Barry, Washington (D. C.) battler.

MILWAUKEE CLUB WILL USE HEAVY FORWARD LINE IN CENTRAL BATTLE

Nash Returns to Marre Club for Soccer Cup Game

BENNY NASH, recovered from broken bone in his right foot, suffered the third week of this season, will return to his inside left position when the Marre club faces the Curry eleven in a national soccer cup match at Pittsburgh tomorrow.

Gene McAuliffe, regular outside left, will be unable to accompany the team and Dinty Moore will pair with Nash, Manager Tom Palmer announced today. The winner of this game will oppose the Chicago Wieboldts in a Western semifinal.

By Dent McSkimming.

The "heaviest forward line in the United States, every member of which can shoot a ball just like 'Big Bertha' Billy Gonsalves," writes Bill Cummings, former treasurer of the United States Football Association and veteran soccer observer, as he summarizes the Vienna club of Milwaukee that opposes the Centrals in a Western semifinal cup game here, Sunday.

"Heine Kaercher, the center forward, played here in Chicago for many years," writes Cummings, "and he was with the New York German team that toured Central Europe in 1931. He never hesitates on his shots; scored four goals in beating Chicago's Lawndale Rangers. Mueller, in goal, is another star of the club, very able and confident, a big man. However, in my opinion, he comes out of his citadel entirely too far and too often.

Playing His 18th Season.

"Another interesting figure is Bob "Farmer" DePratt, left halfback, who is in his eighteenth year of professional soccer. He played here as a forward with Olympia, Harvey, Joliet and even with Pete Harris' Kenosha club. Always dangerous and one of the hardest men to shake off a ball I have ever seen here."

This club will be hard to beat if it gets in the first goal, Cummings adds. That's what happened against Sparta. "I look for a good game, but the Centrals should win by a comfortable margin," he writes.

John Kane, halfback, and Bob Gregg, fullback, are eager to get into the game and if Hebberger's crippled foot gives him any trouble he probably will be relieved.

Muny Finals Begin.

Juniors and seniors will open their Municipal soccer championship finals at Fairground Park, tomorrow. In the opening game, the Spanish Caballeros (Gentlemen, if you please) meet Holy Rosary in the Junior final, and in the second, the champion Alpen Braus oppose the Irish Village. Starting time in the first is 1:30 p. m. and in the Senior game 3 p. m.

Thus far, the elimination series has been very formful and if the contenders continue to play as they have in early rounds, the Alpen Braus should come out on top in two straight games but the Village may give them a hard fight.

Table Tennis Meet Opens.

The Industrial Y. M. C. A. table tennis tournament begins this afternoon at 1:30 o'clock at the St. Louis Table Tennis Club. John Toedtman is defending champion in the singles and also in the doubles, with William Bauer as his partner.

110 Three-Year-Olds Are Nominated for the Derby

ley's Idle Hour Farm, which holds the record for four Derby victories, will have two good contestants in Boxthorn and Big Gawk.

Mrs. John D. Hertz of Chicago, named two colts, Our Reigh and Count Arthur, both sired by the great Reigh Count, her winner in 1928. Our Reigh's dam is Anita Peabody, greatest filly of the year that Reigh Count splashed through the mud to Derby fame.

There are four imported thoroughbreds, Kilmer's Hilltown and North Wales II; Mrs. Thomas H. Somerville's Veldschoen and William Ryan's Wildfire. For the first time in many years one of the nominations is yet unnamed, a colt by Pharamond II out of Romance, nominated by Hal Price Headley to run with his Bee Line.

The colts as usual far outnumber the others named, there being 73 of them to 28 geldings and nine fillies.

VASHON HIGH QUINTET BEATS LINCOLN FIVE

The Vashon High School basketball team which claims the Missouri Negro State High School championship ran its victories to 11 straight when it defeated the Lincoln High School team of East St. Louis in a hard-fought battle last night in the gymnasium of the Pine Street Y. M. C. A. The score was 32 to 27.

At the end of the half both teams stood tied at 19-all and the second half was a nip and tuck affair until Parker and Crattic broke through with some accurate shots to score 13 points within 50 seconds of the sound of the final whistle.

Next week Vashion is scheduled to play in the All-Missouri State Negro High School tournament at Jefferson City. Kermit Wheeler is basketball coach at Vashon while A. M. Jackson conditions the Lincoln High team.

Tiger Five Upsets Jayhawks, 23-21

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., March 2.—The Kansas Jayhawkers' hopes of winning the Big Six conference basketball title for the fifth consecutive time were given a severe setback here last night at the hands of the University of Missouri. The Tigers won 23 to 21. Missouri led at the half, 13 to 7.

Ray Ebling, star forward and high scorer of the Big Six loop, was held scoreless by the guarding of Capt. Duke Jorgensen, Missouri guard.

In order to annex their fifth conference title in a row, Kansas must now win its three remaining games, unless Iowa State, the other contender, is defeated in its final game by Kansas State.

Londos Is Set Down By New York Board

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 2. JIM LONDOS, generally recognized as the heavyweight wrestling champion of the world, yesterday was suspended indefinitely by the New York State Athletic Commission.

The suspension was in line with the recent action of the California commission, which set Londos down for failure to go through with a match last Wednesday.

CAMPBELL FAILS TO SET RECORD IN AUTO TRIALS

By the Associated Press.

DAYTONA BEACH SPEEDWAY, Fla., March 2.—Sir Malcolm Campbell failed to hit 200 miles an hour on his south run down the Beach today as he resumed his efforts to break his own 272.108 mile an hour automobile speed record. His time through the measured mile was 118.186 miles an hour.

After over an hour's delay, he started Bluebird on its way shortly after noon. Got away to a swift start, but was bumping as he shot through the middle measured mile, half way between the ends of the 11½-mile course. His time for that mile was 19.13 seconds as compared with the 12 seconds flat he hoped for eventually, and a speed of 300 miles an hour.

Checking over their figures, the timers found that he had clicked off the mile between points three and four, two miles before he reached the middle mile, in 233.463 miles an hour, before he hit rough stretches and slowed down.

This was still far short of the record, but stands as the fastest mile for the run south. His best mile north would have to be up around 350 to challenge the record.

As Sir Malcolm stood beside his car while the mechanics worked, he said he would start the north run as soon as possible.

"The beach isn't bad at all," he said. "I make another run south if everything goes well on the return trip."

He started the return trip at 12:41 p. m.

Handball Finalists.

Ed Gerdes and Jack Britt will play for the championship of the Young Men's division of the Chamber of Commerce handball tournament this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the Downtown Y. M. C. A. courts. Gerdes eliminated Jules Neuman, 21-11, 20-22, 21-20 and Britt put out Herb Buschart, 21-18, 21-14, in semifinal round games played yesterday.

Arkansas Five Wins.

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., March 2.—Arkansas' rangy Razorbacks, until two weeks ago undefeated leaders of the Southwest Conference, clung to titular hopes by turning back the Texas Aggies in a thriller here last night, 45 to 41.

GHNOULY BEATS ALCANTER, WINS THE STATE TITLE

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 2.—Punching viciously with a right uppercut, Joe Ghnouly of St. Louis, gave Joey Alcanter, Kansas City Mexican, an artistic 10-round boxing lesson here last night in the semi-windup of a boxing card.

The bout was designed as a Missouri State Lightweight Championship affair and Ghnouly won the crown by the unanimous vote of the judges and referee.

Ghnouly soon solved Alcanter's crouching style and time after time sent his right uppercut to the Mexican boy's jaw. Body blows weakened Alcanter in the fourth and seventh round and in the final canto, the new State champion staggered his foe with right swings to the head.

HALL TO PLAY GRANT FOR TENNIS HONORS

By the Associated Press.

HAMILTON, Bermuda, March 2.—Two old stand-bys in tournament tennis, J. Gilbert Hall of South Orange, N. J., and Bryan Grant of Atlanta, will meet for the Bermuda singles championship today.

Both scored in straight sets in the semifinal round, Hall eliminating Robert (Lefty) Bryan of Chattanooga, 6—3, 6—2, 6—4, and Grant winning just as handily from R. D. Murray of Montreal, 6—2, 6—4, 6—2. Bryan, upset conqueror of Berkeley Bell in the quarter-finals, found Hall's terrific service too potent a weapon to handle adequately and Murray was no match for the agile Grant.

The women's championship lay between Mme. Sylvia Henrotin of France and Mrs. Dorothy Andrus of Stamford, Conn. Mme. Henrotin reached the final by a surprise conquest of Jane Sharp of Pasadena, Cal., United States indoor champion, 6—2, 4—6, 7—5, while Mrs. Andrus was putting out Mrs. John Van Ryn of Philadelphia, 6—3, 5—7, 6—3.

GROUND OWNERS GET HOTEL AND THEATER

The American Annex Hotel and the Grand Opera House, at Sixth and Market streets, were turned back last midnight to the owners of the ground on which they were built, the Cella and Tate interests surrendering the long-term lease they had on the properties.

The lease was in the name of the Middleton Theater Co., organized by the late Louis A. Cella and the late Frank R. Tate. The ground is owned by the heirs of T. S. Rutherfurd, who will take over operation of the hotel. The theater has been closed for several years.

Under the terms of the lease, entered into in 1910 for 105 years, the Middleton Theater Co. built the 11-story hotel and reconstructed the theater at a total cost of about $650,000. The lease required the Middleton company to pay all taxes and an annual rental of $16,000 to the Rutherfurd heirs, who are about 15 grandchildren.

William H. Killoren, attorney for both parties in the transaction, said the rent had been paid until this year when Charles J. Cella, manager of the Cella estate, entered into the negotiations that resulted in the termination of the lease. One year's taxes are delinquent, Killoren said, and a special street widening assessment is in litigation.

Operation of the hotel will be under the direction of F. A. MacKenzie, husband of one of the Rutherfurd heirs. There are no definite plans for the Grand Opera House.

About Housekeeping.
Fresh Fish.
String Beans and Fresh Peas.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE.
(Copyright, 1935.)

MIAMI, Fla., March 2.

WHEN the Government has solved all other problems, will it concentrate for a moment on the amount that women pay to feed their children? It is a magnificent thing to "raise the cost of products" if you do not overdo it, or go in the wrong direction. The wrong direction is followed when the man who does the producing, raising vegetables, picking fruit, milking cows, feeding hogs, gets a minimum price and the consumer pays a maximum price after the "product" has been handled a few times.

Making the consumer pay too much is not going to help anybody in the United States, not retailers. And making the consumer pay a great deal too much is the present tendency.

Consider for a moment Tom Newman, who used to be a fishing guide here in Miami. He would take his fishing boat, tie up alongside the big Mellon yacht from Pittsburgh and stay there for a month at a time showing prosperity how to catch fish.

He saved his money, stopped being a guide, built an ice plant, ran it, charging low prices. The big company didn't like this, bought him out, then he had enough to live.

To keep busy and have a place to meet his old fishing friends, he started a little fish shop. His strange ideas about the fish business caused his shop to double in size almost immediately.

He found that kingfish bought from his fishermen friends for 4 cents a pound were sold by dealers for 40 cents a pound. When he suggested cutting the price the dealers said: "Shucks, they won't buy any more fish anyhow if you cut the price. You might as well make a good profit. A profit of 36 cents on an investment of 4 cents might be called 'a good profit.'"

Mr. Newman said to the fish dealers: "I am going to sell fish cheaper and sell more. Workmen don't buy any fish. You cannot expect it when they can buy meat for 15 cents a pound and we charge them 40 cents a pound for fish that costs you 4 cents a pound."

Instead of selling kingfish for 40 cents a pound, Mr. Newman sold it for 10 cents a pound. Fishermen got 4 cents, handling cost only 2 cents. The fishing boats came right up to the back of the Newman fish shop. That left 4 cents for Mr. Newman, just what the fishermen got. And said he, "about right."

In a short time he was selling 30,000 pounds of fish a week more than had been sold in the whole of Miami before he cut prices. He cut other fish prices in proportion. Now he has 87 fishing boats working for him, and the fishermen are busy all the time, for they can sell all they catch.

They used to be idle half the time, being told when they brought in a load: "Don't go out again until we tell you, we have sold these." That gave the fish a chance to get rather old while dealers held up prices.

Presently the representative of Armour came around asking "What are you doing? Our sales of meat are cut [illegible] in half."

Workers were buying fresh fish at 10 cents a pound, eating less meat. What is done in Miami can be done in New York or Chicago, Los Angeles, San Francisco, wherever fish can be had for the trouble of [illegible] them and docking close to a big market. That would mean more work for fishermen, more [illegible] turnover for retailers, more and fresher fish with [illegible] for the consumer.

Here [illegible] on top of a huge basket of green string beans reads: "Stringless string beans, three pounds for 10 cents," and, beside that, another of bulging peas in the pod with a sign, "Fresh peas, three pounds for 25 cents."

AS THE CROW FLIES

By E. L. Meyer

THE focal point of the Fascist-patrioteer attack on radicalism in colleges shifted during the past week to Commonwealth College, Mena, Ark., and to the University of Wisconsin, hoisting the campus flags, respectively, of the shovel and the boiled shirt.

Commonwealth College is a tiny institution, struggling along without State aid or endowments. The students, originally housed in tents, earn most of all of their fees and board by working on the college farm or part time in other industries. There is no chapel, no chancellor. And no football stadium, which in itself gives the institution a sinister aura.

E. L. MEYER.

Several years ago I knew the director of the college, Lucien Koch. He was at that time a Socialist. Whether he has veered leftward since then I do not know, and it does not matter.

What does matter is that the Arkansas Legislature is coming down on Commonwealth College like a ton of brick on a red ant. A committee of the Legislature found the college is teaching "anarchy, free love, labor agitation, atheism and other crimes." And the Legislature will be asked to outlaw the college as a menace to the sovereign State of Arkansas and all the states of the Union.

A Crumbling Stone.

ALL that a reasonable person can deduce is that if the ton of brick can be demolished by a red ant, then there is something powdery and rotten in the ton of brick and its annihilation will mean small loss. For it will eventually disintegrate without the impact of the red ant.

Just as fantastic is the current hullaballoo in Wisconsin, where a committee of the State Senate was appointed last week to study "Communism and other perverse subjects" at the University of Wisconsin.

Hallelujah! Dr. Glenn Frank, president of the University of Wisconsin, is a former assistant of Billy Sunday, Bible-banger. He has advanced by easy and loquacious stages from the sawdust trail of evangelism to the stardust trail of Hoover Republicanism, and his eye is no longer cocked so much on a stair that is golden as on a house that is white. He is, Mr. Legislator, clean as the hound's tooth and the elephant's tusk.

The University of Wisconsin inherited from the days of the elder La Follette a tradition of liberalism of which it can still boast in a scattering of courses given by younger instructors. The higher-up, the inner shriners, are for the most part solid, aging citizens interested in their bonds and bungalows, in timid reforms and textbook royalties. The dust of decorum lies over the campus.

For 19 years I lived in the Latin Quarter of the University of Wisconsin and knew most of the faculty at close range. I know not a single one of them who belonged to the Communist party. A few of the younger members were sympathizers," voicing their views in hushed tones, but checking themselves in the classrooms lest report of their heresy be carried to the standpat-controlled Legislature, ever ready to smell a rat in a rosebush.

A Sign of Ferment.

AMONG the students, however, there is a growing number of radicals, the only sign of fermenting life on a rapidly stagnating campus. They prefer, oddly, to discuss the pressing problems of Fascism, pacifism and war, Communism, etc., rather than the junior prom and the latest stupendous basketball victory.

If these debaters, thrashing out issues on public rostrums, constitute a menace to the great Commonwealth of Wisconsin, then the menace lies in the weakness, injustice, ineptitude and vulnerability of the great commonwealth, not in the strength of a handful of radical students, most of whom hunger in hall bedrooms.

Nonsensical as the present thrusts at academic freedom in Wisconsin and Arkansas may be, they should be fought with vigor. They are a prelude to attacks on a wider front, which may result in God knows what regimentation and throttling of minority views.

I smell castor oil in Rome.
I smell books burning in Berlin.

THE Postoffice Department has announced that first day cover service on March 15 at the Washington postoffice will be available only for the blocks of four stamps of the ungummed imperforate series. The only stamps not available in blocks of four are the 1 and 3 cent Century of Progress special sheets, 3-cent Byrd special sheet, 1 and 3 cent National Parks special sheets. These souvenir sheets will be available only in the complete layout unsevered.

Collectors desiring first day covers may send five covers self-addressed for each of the 15 varieties which will be available to the Postmaster at Washington, D. The stamps which are available for first day cover service are the 10 denominations of the National Park series, the flat plate Mother's Day, Wisconsin Tercentenary, 16-cent Special Airmail, Little America and Newburgh. The Postoffice Department will affix no more than one block to each cover. The Postoffice Department has placed an original order for 5000 of the uncut sheets of each denomination in addition to 250,000 blocks of each denomination. It is not expected that this amount will meet the demands but additional amounts are available on short notice. The postage required for dispatching a special mailing tube containing one uncut sheet will be 18 cents and a further allowance of 3 cents should be made for each additional sheet. Registration fee is also required on shipments of stamps. These rates can be obtained from local postoffices.

Pink Important in Spring Styles — Gabardine for Suits and Shoes.

By Sylvia

THE "pink of perfection" is becoming a fashion phrase now that the dainty bonbon tint is of such moment in spring styles. You can see this emphasized in every collection of frocks whether designed for street or for dancing. A pink pique vestee adds the smart finish to a navy blue street frock while a fluffy ruff of pink net does as much for a black taffeta formal.

A throat that is swathed in frills of white mousseline is a fashionable one this season. You can take your choice of many different furbelows, but you can't go wrong in choosing one that stands up around the neck as well as falling down around the shoulders. Narrow picoted ruffles supply the upstanding feature while wider ones flare out in all directions. Deep cuffs follow the same arrangement.

You may not want to be so quaint as to appear in a complete blue gabardine costume, but if you do, don't hesitate. This old-fashioned material is returning with a determination to make up for lost time. Besides being used for some attractive suits and dresses it appears for bags and shoes. A swanky ensemble consists of a square bag of gabardine that is trimmed with calfskin and high cut oxfords combining the fabric and leather.

Chamois suede is the aristocrat of the spring leathers. You might go so far as to select it for shoes, but if you're not this daring select it for bag and for gloves. Among the most stunning bags is a square model that introduces a clever monogram disc. This is of gold colored metal attached to a leather cord and twisted around a flat suede button to serve as a fastening.

A brass railing enclosing the leather of a bag is a sign of the spring season. You will see many different versions of the rail type of bag, most of them quite large and square of shape. A gay example is of that soft and supple leather in a shade of vivid red. It has a very square metal clasp to hold a monogram. Equally attractive is a navy glove calf bag, oval in shape but protected by the same polished metal edging.

If a topcoat fails to match the shade or fabric of your suit, this shouldn't cause you any worry. In fact, it should be a cause for celebration. The latest idea in costume suits concerns the difference in appearance of the coat and the short-jacketed suit. When one is of a plain colored fabric, the other is a plaid or check. Shades and stylings are numerous, but the fashionable coat leaves a few inches at the bottom for the skirt to show.

Designers of pajamas are taking no chances on anyone overlooking the seasonal features of their newest models. They have adorned novelty cotton ensembles with gay spring flowers. Tulip designs seem to be preferred and are appliqued on the front of smock-like jackets. A coat of green and white checked crepe proves a successful background for the colorful blossoms. Trousers that complete this outfit are of solid colored green crepe.

The flower applique theme also is influencing spring handkerchief trends. Here dark green and other deep tones are predominating. Sometimes an easily recognized tulip pattern appears, but more often the posy is so modern that it could not be named. The white handkerchief which has bright color contrasts is featured extensively in the St. Louis store displays. Polka dotted patterns in various colors contribute a new note to some white linen surfaces.

When pressing woolens and using a damp rag be sure to wring the rag out of warm water, not cold. Cold water will only cool the iron more quickly and make a longer job of it.

Various Ways For Preparing Gelatin Dishes

By Gladys T. Lang

Dear Mrs. Lang:

COULD you please publish a number of different ways of using and serving gelatin? My reason for asking for this is the following: It appears that some of the rarer nervous and muscular weaknesses have been much helped if the sufferers took rather larger quantities of gelatin in their daily ration. More recently it has been found that certain types of headache are often benefited by the same regime. Always it is difficult to make patients stick to a diet unless we provide variety in appearance and taste. In your recipes could you also list some with very little sugar, or cream, and others with more of these? I should think especially of salads and desserts. Thanking you in advance for your help. A PHYSICIAN.

Jellied Rose Bouillon.

One No. 2 can of tomatoes.
One small stalk of celery.
Four cloves.
One small bay leaf.

Simmer all together for 40 minutes, then strain through a napkin. To this add one can of bouillon or consomme, with salt and pepper to taste. Soak two tablespoons of gelatin for each quart of bouillon in a little cold water, then dissolve in the hot bouillon. Add two tablespoons of sherry (optional). Allow to cool, then place in refrigerator until ready to serve. If needed in a hurry, place in a pan of cracked ice.

Artichoke Mold.

Dice one large can of artichoke bottoms. Soak one large tablespoon of gelatin in one-fourth cup of cold water, then dissolve in two cups of hot consomme. Add the juice of one lemon, two tablespoons of tomato catsup, two tablespoons of taragon vinegar, one teaspoon of sugar, salt and pepper to taste. Cool. Fill lightly buttered individual molds nearly full of the diced artichokes and when consomme mixture begins to congeal, pour it into molds. Cut slices of chicken or tongue the size of bottom of molds, and on each, unmold the jellied artichokes, when set. Garnish with watercress and with this pass both French and mayonnaise dressing.

Golden Salad.

In a saucepan, heat one cup of water and one cup of pineapple juice, the juice of one lemon and one-half teaspoon of salt. When boiling, remove from fire, dissolve one envelope of gelatin, which has been soaking in a very little cold water and stir until dissolved. Cool slightly, and when about to set add one and a half cups of ground or grated carrots, and one cup of crushed and drained pineapple. Pour into individual molds which have been rinsed in cold water and place in refrigerator. Unmold on shredded lettuce and cover with mayonnaise to which a little cream has been added.

Tongue, Ham and Egg Aspic.

Boil three pints of clear stock, bouillon or two cans of bouillon and one of water, with one-half onion sliced, three branches of celery, a few sprigs of parsley, until the vegetables are tender. Strain through a fine sieve over two tablespoons of gelatin which has been soaked in a little cold water, stirring until the gelatin is dissolved.

In round egg poachers, cook desired number of eggs in boiling salted water until the whites are set. Drain thoroughly and set aside to cool. In lightly buttered muffin tins place the eggs with the yolk side down. Cut rounds of tongue or ham the size of the egg and place it on top, then fill with the aspic. Allow to chill. Cut around edges and unmold. Serve on lettuce and cover with taragon Hollandaise.

Surprise Salad.

Mash two cream cheeses and season highly and form into balls the size of marbles. Peel and seed one pound of fresh grapes, or if not in season, balls of honeydew melon or canned and seeded white cherries. Squeeze one cup of lime juice. Soak two tablespoons of gelatin in one-fourth cup of cold water five minutes. Pour over the gelatin one and a half cups of boiling water and one-half cup sugar and stir until the gelatin is dissolved. When it begins to cool, add the lime juice. Set in refrigerator to slightly thicken, then fold in carefully the cheese balls and fruit. Fill cold rinsed mold. When set, unmold on platter and garnish with hearts of lettuce. For the dressing use mayonnaise which has been thinned with a little cream, add two tablespoons of sugar and one tablespoon of vinegar.

Orange Jelly and Avocado Salad.

Make an orange jelly by soaking two level tablespoons of gelatin in one-half cup of cold water and dissolve in one-half cup of boiling water. Stir this into two cups of orange juice, one-fourth cup of lemon juice and from one-fourth to one-third cup of sugar. Mix well and pour into cold rinsed individual molds and allow to set. Unmold and surround with slices of Avocado pears. Serve with a thin French dressing.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, March 1.

DICK POWELL, who has had private aspirations to become an opera singer for months and months, will get his wish—in the movies. He plays an opera star in "Broadway Gondolier," the next Warner Brothers modern musical. Joan Blondell, whose musical appearances have always been with Monsieur Powell, is the femme lead and her role is that of a radio manager.

Edward Small is up and at 'em again. He doesn't make many pictures but when he does make a picture the best is none too good. He has just signed Bruce Cabot for "Let 'Em Have It," his particular version of the Federal war on crime. Richard Arlen, Virginia Bruce and Alice Brady have already been lined up so you see this is no piker cast.

The Clive Brooks who have been away from Hollywood for nearly a year, are back in town again. The Brooks, whose close friends are Ronald Colman, Mrs. Elsie Torrence and the English colony, have been given a royal welcome home. Clive has a deal on with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and several other offers and they will take a house and settle down to the Hollywood life again. That brilliant young woman lawyer, Fanny Holtzman, comes into town Monday for a ten days' visit. She represented Princess Irma Youssopouff in her famous lawsuit against Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and won. The whisper is that Fanny will go into a conference with the MGM executives and talk over the final settlement of the Youssopouff case with them.

Chatter in Hollywood: The mysterious gold bracelet on Rochelle Hudson's left arm has been explained. It was placed on her wrist by Buddy Eichelberger, wealthy young Los Angeles socialite before he took the boat for New York several weeks ago. Saturday Rochelle will take the train for New York, ostensibly on a vacation, but her friends say really to see Buddy, who was recently divorced from Honore Higgins, Los Angeles heiress. Talk is that Francis Lederer has been in a confab with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer relative to his playing Johann Strauss. Jake Shubert is in town visiting movie studios; maybe he is looking for talent or maybe planning to come into the movies. Roy Del Ruth put his John Hancock on a contract to direct "Broadway Melody of 1935" for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. "Gold-Diggers of 1935" opens in New Orleans during Mardi Gras week.

Jack Doyle with a brogue that you could cut with a knife, lunching with Judith Allen; Doyle came West to fight but he is so good looking he is listening to movie offers; Eddie Mannix celebrating his birthday in royal style; Bee Mannix who gave the party in Eddie's honor, showing originality and humor in the cake which was the size of a young monument; Norma Shearer, Irving Thalberg, Louis B Mayer, the Sam Katzs, Elizabeth Allen, and the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer crowd all on hand to help Eddie celebrate his natal day, also Mr. and Mrs. Hutzlers, socialites from the East; Carole Lombard back from 10 days in the desert where she was the guest of Gloria Swanson who has been there all season; Mary Anita Loos, Francis Lederer's big moment, in the Cecil De Mille picture, "The Crusades"; Constance Talmadge Netcher and Townsend leave Chicago April 12, going directly to Palm Springs for Easter.

IF YOU ASK My OPINION

By MARTHA CARR

Letters intended for this column must be addressed to Martha Carr at the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Mrs. Carr will answer all questions of general interest but, of course, cannot give advice on matters of a purely legal or medical nature. Those who do not care to have their letters published may enclose an addressed and stamped envelope for personal reply.

My Dear Mrs. Carr:

I AM a widow 37 years old, rather young looking, with the exception of gray hair, which I have had since I was 18. People tell me if it were not for this I would look 20 years younger.

I have been working in an office since my husband's death, eight years ago, and have cared for my mother and father during this time. I lost my father and had quite a struggle, as my brother and sister never offered to help. My health is not good now, because of the close confinement, and I have thought of giving it up. I have a friend who has been insisting for six years that I marry him and I cannot make up my mind whether or not it would be the right thing, as he is so much older than I.

This man is a bachelor, quite hale and hearty for his age, and makes good money. He wants me to go with him to a farm; tells his friends he worships me and really acts that way. I think more of him than anyone I know, still do not care for him as I did my husband. Do you think on this account, and because of the difference in years, that I would be making a mistake? Or should I keep my job?

I have no one to care for but mother, and he has no one at all. I really need some one to help me decide.
C. B.

You will have to decide, ultimately, for yourself; since this is a matter you would hardly expect another could weigh seriously enough to govern your decision. I believe, though, that you should realize, as others have realized, that the feeling you might have later in life would not be like that of your early romance and marriage. The difference in age now would not be such a handicap, though the change from busy office life in a city to that on a farm might puzzle you in the change of interests. If you like the out-doors, the charm and peace of the country and the congeniality of this man's type of companionship, why not make the change?

Dear Mrs. Carr:

CAN you please tell me the name and address of the United States Marshal of Juneau, Alaska.
INQUISITIVE.

You can address "U. S. Marshal, Juneau, Alaska," or write Gov. John W. Troy, Juneau, for the name.

* * *

Dear Mrs. Carr:

"S. S." DIDN'T ask me the question in your column Saturday, but I'll answer for him.

I've about the same set-up to contend with that he has; only I've been going with this "poor girl" for six years. The only mistake I ever made was to tell I loved her. The feminine mind (?) seems to re-act to such confessions as follows: "Well this guy's in the bag . . . now I'll see what I can do on the side. I can always come back to him." And by the way, Mrs. Carr, my love has been strong these many years, even during the year we went steady. But girls, don't want that kind of a fellow.

Here's a tip, "S. S." Trust 'em as far as you can see 'em. After they turn the corner forget 'em. So if it hurts and keeps you awake "S. S." Well maybe I'll meet you in some all-nite coffee house. Just one thing more, "S. S." In the first sentence of this note I said I'd answer your question. I was wrong. There isn't any answer!
DANCING IN THE DARK.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I AM a stenographer, 19 years old, and the position I have doesn't keep me busy all the time. I am tired of reading so much and working cross-word puzzles, and I thought you might suggest something worth while that I could do in my leisure time. I am beginning to feel that I am wasting a lot of precious time.
M. L.

I believe I might be able to help you a good deal, if you will just give me a hint of something besides stenography that you have "always just been dying to do." Tell me if your tastes and talents are artistic, literary, scientific, athletic; in other words tell and give me some sort of little hint and I shall do my best. And send me the self-addressed, stamped envelope, because I am afraid I would not have space enough to print what I want to say in the column.

* * *

My dear Mrs. Carr:

IN my answer to Northern Italian, I'd like to say a word or two.

First of all, the Northern Italians are not all Lombards. One might as well say that all Americans or citizens of the United States are St. Louisans. She would better study up on her geography.

And may I ask, who said that Sicilians cannot choose their own mates, or can go out unchaperoned? I do admit I am of Sicilian descent. Some parents do, of course, stick to the old tradition of being chaperoned.

I may remind "Northern Italian" that some of the finest, best and richest Americans chaperone their daughters until they have reached a certain age (and these are not Sicilians).

So this correspondent should not be so "mad" at "Joseph M." and "S. S." but just mildly angry!
SICILIAN GIRL.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I AM a man well past my teen age and since recently obtaining an excellent position wish to get married. But having been unemployed for so long before getting work and living off of my parents I now feel as though I should pay my folks back for their trouble of getting me an existence while I was idle.

My folks are not rich but dad always had good work and steady, and I know that if I were to get married they could get along without my board, but would it be doing the right thing? I don't want to have any hard feelings about it but my fiancee and I have waited so long and now that we are in a position to have our happiness, we would like to take it.
"WORKING AND WAITING."

I believe if your parents are not in need, they would allow you to repay them gradually, so that you might marry now; though live simply enough to save something on this fund.

* * *

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I WANT to say to "Mother of Three" that she might have been fortunate to get a man making good wages. I wasn't, and I love him just the same. I am working with him. Remember there was a depression and many persons have used up their savings while unemployed. We are two of them. I am making my sacrifice for my future home and glad of it. Perhaps you are like "Margaret R's" father; if you have girls you will teach them to marry for money. I guess Margaret is young and can wait a couple of years, and she can consider herself lucky if she has more time to do this. But I'll say to her: Marry for love Margaret; there's nothing like it. Work hand-in-hand and I am sure you will succeed. Why wait, why not add a couple of years to happy married life? Public opinion says, "No;" your heart says, "Yes." Your father says "No." My dear, you are surrounded. So let your heart be your guide.

Discoveries In Processes Of Digestion

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

IN 1835, a youthful appearing young man, named Theodor Schwann, was assistant to the great physiologist, Johannes Muller, in Berlin. Muller was preparing his monumental "Handbook of Physiology," which remained the standard work of reference for many years, and young Schwann was making experiments in order to settle obscure points as they arose from time to time.

LOGAN CLENDENNING.

He was a very industrious young man in those days. He would pass whole days in his laboratory without even going out to eat, "surrounded by his rare books and glass vessels, retorts, vials, tubes and simple apparatus which he made himself."

He became interested in those mysterious processes of fermentation which had interested other men. Here is a solution of sugar or of fruit juice. Leave it alone and it begins to seethe. Bubbles and foam form on it. In the course of time it is changed to alcohol or vinegar. What causes this? Schwann showed long before Pasteur that it is due to the presence of yeast.

It was natural that from such an experiment he should become interested in another form of chemical change—the change that occurs in food during digestion. Two years before, William Beaumont, the American, showed on his patient with a hole in his stomach that if you put a piece of meat in the stomach, it would be dissolved away in the course of time, leaving only a gelatinous sticky liquid. What made this change? The gastric juice, obviously, but what was in the gastric juice to do it?

Beaumont knew that there was hydrochloric acid in the stomach juice, but hydrochloric acid alone added to meat in a test tube would not create the change, while whole gastric juice would.

Young Schwann proved that the other substance was a ferment, to which he gave the name "pepsin." So this year is the hundredth anniversary of our knowledge of pepsin.

Perhaps he got the name from the old word "dyspepsia" (which, according to the Oxford Dictionary, has been in the English language since 1657). The prefix dys in any medical word means painful (dysentery) and the rest of the word which gave origin to pepsin is from the Greek peptein—"to cook" or "to digest."

These discoveries—of Beaumont's and Schwann's—started great interest in digestive diseases, knowledge of which up to that time had been in a very much mixed-up state. An impetus was given to this by the first description, one or two years later, of ulcer of the stomach by the French physician with the unpronounceable name of Cruvelhier. Until this time, any bleeding from the stomach or prolonged distress was attributed to cancer, but Cruvelhier showed that these symptoms could be produced by a simple round ulcer.

It seems difficult to believe that it was so comparatively a short time ago that we have been able to treat stomach disorders in the light of an intelligent knowledge of the physiology and chemistry involved. When sodium bicarbonate and other alkalis in concentrated form replaced mineral waters, and when, in 1867, Kussmaul introduced the stomach pump, and a few years later abdominal surgery was sufficiently perfected to be called as an aid, the dyspeptic patient entered a new sphere. We may profitably spend a week on this hundredth anniversary of the discovery of pepsin on that subject.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Six pamphlets by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a 3-cent stamp to Dr. Logan Clendenning, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Potted Pigeons

A great delicacy for the formal dinner. Allow one bird for each service. Stuff with a mixture of cooked rice highly seasoned with salt, celery salt, a piece of bay leaf, minced onion, chopped parsley and melted butter. Truss the pigeons, sprinkle with salt and brush over with vegetable oil. Sear quickly in a very hot oven until browned, then transfer to a casserole. Pour over the drippings from the pan and half cover the birds with seasoned stock. Cover dish and bake slowly for one hour. Remove the birds, thicken the gravy with a little browned flour and season with tart currant jelly.

MARRIAGE IN LITTLE ITALY

MARRIAGES ARE ARRANGED BY THE PARENTS

By Marguerite Martyn

THE affairs of Angelo Lodotto, aged 18, who came into conflict with the law for having one wife too many and blithely blamed his mother for his plight, afforded one of those rare glimpses into different standards of civilization existing side by side in an American city. You can step over certain thoroughfares any day, Franklin avenue, for instance, and find yourself in foreign preserves, in a little patch of Italy, this time, where old-world codes of conduct still hold sway. Marriages are arranged by parents except in cases of elopements we sometimes hear of, where the bridegroom steals the bride, with or without her co-operation. Women and girls do not go out alone, or if they do, are safely home by nightfall. Wives do not work except in their own homes. However low the family income, it is most deplorable when a wife has to go out to work. Belligerent males are on hand to protect their women folk against any infraction of their codes of morality, with the stilletto, if necessary, while women are thought to be subservient to their men. But are they?

Angelo Lodotto's mother arranged his marriage for him. He obediently submitted to the arrangement. A year or so before when he was still 17 he had married another girl, an Italian girl, but not of his mother's selection. Being still a minor, mother promptly had it annulled. If Angelo was so eager to marry, his mother would find a bride for him. This she did at considerable trouble and expense. She took him to visit old neighbors, the Scorfinas, who had moved to California. Arrived there, he was informed for the first time that Gracia Josie Scorfina was to be his bride. So they were married and Mother Lodotto brought them safely back to her home on Carr street. Then Angelo remembered he was in love with another girl, a girl named McNicholas. "I knew her four years; knew her from the excursion boats," he says. "I wanted a divorce. I told my mother to get me one. She didn't. So I married the girl, anyway. It's all my mother's fault."

Fast work on the part of young Mr. Lodotto. Three marriages when he is but 18. But that is not the point. The point is that though in some respects Italian youth may become Americanized rather too rapidly, in other respects the ideas of the elders in their families generally prevail.

It just happened through a chain of circumstances, a brush with the police on another suspicion that Angelo's marital difficulties came to the attention of the law and he finds himself under arrest for bigamy. Now if the law will just leave it to her, the elder Mrs. Lodotto believes she can straighten things out.

"I got him a good wife," she says. "He is just wild. He has no sense. But he is young," leaving the inference that given a little time Angelo will accept the inevitable, return to Gracia, the daughter-in-law of her choice, and all will be well to the end of their days. "If he does not," Mother Lodotto threatens, ominously, "The law can have him."

According to our own standards Angelo would be justified in jumping the traces, asserting his preferences, if not just now while he is a minor, jobless and dependent on his parents, at least when he comes of age. But by that time he may conclude there are compensations in the Italian way of doing things.

I visited in one of these Italian homes recently. I had just come from a neighboring American one. We boast of our American higher standards of living! From the standpoint of neatness, orderliness, refinements and good cheer, the contrast was all in favor of the Italian one.

The American household had seen better days. There were remnants in evidence, but the raggedest, untidiest remnants. You had to plow a path through the junk. Mother was away working. Father, kept company by several small children, cats and dogs, smoked his pipe, tilting his chair with his feet on the hearth, while the wall paper hung in streamers from the ceiling, the floor remained unscrubbed and cluttered with trash, the sink clogged up. There was a grumble about the landlord not fixing things.

The Italian family had seen worse days. They had lately been on relief but now, happily, the head of the house had got a job as a vegetable scrubber. There were the bare essentials of furniture but everything was immaculate and in order. Wooden floors had been scrubbed till they shone. Even an old woollen rug in the front room had been scrubbed till it looked bright and new. Beds were two feet deep and smoothly spread with white embroidered counterpanes and pillow shams. Curtains were white and starched. Windows were speckless.

Excavations for a building were going on across the street, yet in this three-room flat with its front door flush with the street, no dust was visible.

Superfluous ornaments which so cluttered the American home here consisted of two or three religious pictures, a crucifix, candlesticks and an enlarged photograph in a big gilt frame of a bride with veil and bouquet and groom standing stiff and dressed up.

Orderliness naturally was due to the fact that the lady of the house was at home. She has nothing to do all day but clean and cook and wash and iron and care for her children and it is no trick at all. She has time for hospitality. She spread a beautiful Italian cut work cloth place a bowl of artificial roses upon it, and produced a pot of coffee. She has time for needlework. Opening bureau drawers she displayed wedding trousseaux already begun for her three daughters, all now under six, and what is left of her own trousseau begun in Italy at the time of her birth. Everything was of fine linen trimmed with hand made lace or elaborately embroidered, white on white.

This wife had been married at 17 to the man her parents chose for her. There was wistfulness in her inquiries about my work "Sometimes I wish I were not married," she said. "I would like to be independent. But if I were not married I would not have the children. Now that I have them, I must do right by them."

If there was a shadow of discontent it was for the moment forgotten when a neighbor, having smelled the coffee, breezed in. Seven calamities, she reeled off, had befallen her seven children, one calamity per child. Tony was in the City Hospital, bitten by a dog. Margherita would have to go to the Juvenile Court. Mariano had lost his job. "Oh, I've got some gang at my house!" she exclaimed, punctuating the account of each disaster with a gale of laughter. Jovially she bustled off seemingly without a care in the world except for the spaghetti she had left cooking, whiffs of which, laden with garlic, came across the courtyard.

Another visitor was a girl who told of a fruitless job hunting round of the factories.

"Why not try housework?" I suggested. "I understand there is more of a demand for household help than any other."

"That would mean I would have to be away from home at night. My father and brothers would never allow that. An Italian girl must never sleep anywhere except under her father's roof before she is married."

"No harm would come to you if you were in a good home," I argued.

"I might know I was doing no wrong, but what would our neighbors think and say? I would lose my reputation."

"Knowing you were doing no wrong, would it make any difference what people thought and said?"

"Well, wouldn't it make a difference to you?" she asked. "Would you cut yourself off from all your friends and relations, everybody you care about and those who have known you all your life?" This girl had graduated from grammar school and had two years of high school.

We call America the melting pot. We think our ways so superior, so impressive. We suppose immigrants seeking better conditions in a new land are glad to embrace all our institutions. But is it always surprising when sometimes we find them preferring their own?

Thumbnail Reviews of New Movies

By Colvin McPherson

ALL THE KING'S HORSES—Carl Brisson, the dimpled darling who sang "Cocktails for Two," and Mary Ellis, handsome opera and stage star, kinging-and-queening somewhere in the suburbs of the continent. Bits of splendid singing, dancing and subtle humor, although not a whole lot of any. "Lightning Strikes Twice" is a mystery comedy and with one more strike on it, would be out. At the SHUBERT.

VANESSA: HER LOVE STORY—Helen Hayes and Robert Montgomery take romance over the barriers in Northern England about 50 years ago. "Society Doctor" presents Chester Morris as a brilliant young surgeon and the usual shift formations in the operating room. At LOEW'S.

LIVING ON VELVET—A top-hat and tailcoat story of how George Brent found a new interest in life after marrying Kay Francis. Well-acted and well-written, except for an obvious conclusion. "Red Morning" is a picture with authentic South Sea shots of a type to make DeMille jealous. It has something of the flavor of Conrad, something of the flavor of baked pig's hips. At the ORPHEUM.

UNDER PRESSURE—One of the "saves you—saves me" dramas for Victor McLaglen and Edmund Lowe but an eye-widener for setting, in an under-river tunnel. "She Had to Choose" so she gave him up for his own good and got him back like a boomerang. That's the second picture at the MISSOURI.

THE WHOLE TOWN'S TALKING (Second week)—Edward G. Robinson unscrambles a bad egg and a good one, taking both parts himself. Grand comedy. "Evergreen" is a passable English musical, with Jessie Matthews, a shapely somebody who dances like a million. Both pictures at the AMBASSADOR.

THE LITTLE COLONEL (Second week)—Shirley Temple shows that one touch of kin can change the whole nature of a situation. Scene, Kentucky after the Civil War. "Princess Charming" is a gold-braid English musical, with Evelyn Laye and Henry Wilcoxon. At the FOX.

Roasted Pigeons.

Wipe the pigeons quite dry. Truss them and season inside with salt, pepper and plenty of butter. Have a hot fire and baste frequently during the half hour it requires to cook them. Garnish with parsley.

Powder for Grease Spots.

Rub talcum powder over grease spots on woolen or silk. Let stand for a day or so and brush off with a clean stiff brush. This is usually very effective and there are no rings left as so often happens when liquids are applied.

A Garnish Finely fringed tips of celery make an attractive garnish for the platter of fried fish or oysters.

Should Wives Try to Remain Youngsters?

A Discussion of Changed Feminine Attitudes Toward Life.

By Elsie Robinson

"WHEN I was your age," my mother-in-law snapped contemptuously, "I had three children, did all the work in my 10-room house, helped my husband in his business and wore a cap. A white, ruffled cap. All young wives did. Wives took themselves and their position seriously—then!"

Elsie Robinson

She stopped with an angry snort. I continued to sniffle. It was 1903. I was 19, just married, and wanted but two things in all this great world—to go back to California where I could dance, and to buy eight yards of pink dimity for a ruffly dress.

Simple desires they seem now. But at that time I might as well have confessed that I was a confirmed killer with four nicks in my gun. Dancing parties and pink dimity, indeed! And I a married woman!

From which you may gather that marriage in 1903 was a plenty serious business for a young woman. A bride definitely and finally Stopped Being a Girl the moment she said "I Do." She not only stopped doing the things a girl did but she stopped dressing like a girl, thinking like a girl, desiring girlish things.

Any young married woman who tried to "stay young" and insisted on playing around was regarded as somewhat simple-minded if not downright immoral.

There were, to be sure, certain mature honors and privileges which were supposed to compensate for the sacrifice of one's youthful estate. But at no time was a married woman regarded as anything but completely and entirely a Missis.

Only 1903 to 1935—but how far we have come! Or have we?

Today the proud new bridegroom calls the Dear Little Woman "Baby" and she not only accepts the title but proceeds to live up to it. Thousands of brides air their troubles to this column in the course of every month. Nine hundred and ninety-nine out of every thousand have the same complaint—they're bored. What on earth are they to do with themselves, now that they've given up their jobs and gone to housekeeping?

Settle down and have a baby? F'revinsake, they don't want to have a baby—yet! "Why, I'm just a kid! I wouldn't know what to do with a baby. And my husband—Say, I bet Al would be mad enough to leave me if I even suggested such a thing. Besides—I've got to have some fun first. I simply couldn't take it. I'd go crazy—honest I would — being cooped up all day with a baby."

"But your mother was two years younger than you when you were born."

"Oh, yes—but that was different. She didn't want to do anything else. We modern girls aren't like that."

And it's the truth—they are different. But is that a compliment—or a slam? These pretty, gay, carefree youngsters who at 30 boast that they don't look "a day over 16" . . . these "size 16s" . . . are they a blessing or a blight?

Play girls—and delightful ones! But what is the Youth Cult doing to the home, to business? To the human race? "Too restless to stay at home" . . . "to young" to settle down and have a baby. So what?

On Broadway

By Walter Winchell

MAYBE it is an oldie, but try to stop me. A Joosh jentleman was playing auction pinochle with his pals at his house. Suddenly a kibitzer raced in and said: "Meyer, Meyer! I just came from de parlor and I seen Pincus making vit you vife kisses!"

Walter Winchell

"You're sure?" said the husband, as he took in a hand.

Turning to the other players, the husband said: "Jantlemen—diss iss pozitively de lest dill."

At the premiere of "Cross Ruff," the author, Noel Taylor, appeared in Act II as an actor. The white-tied set gave him a vigorous hand. A gal turned to a sleepy first-nighter and wanted to know why the large hello?

Incidentally.

That new play, otherwise a cemetery full of Joe Millers, gives lodging to one superb crack. A pert young thing is chattering about "my new novel coming out."

New York Is Like This.

It made some of us a little ill in the middle when we saw and heard it. It was in one of the midtown rendezvous and it was crowded. The charming Marilyn Miller and her groom breezed in merrily, in search of happiness and a table down front or any place!

Mr. Ziegfeld's leading lady and her husband selected a table for two down front. A captain begged their pardons. "I am so sorry," he explained to the toast of the town only yesterday, "but this table is reserved for Dixie Dunbar of the Winter Garden."

Eavesdropped.

The Young Thing turned to her escort in a night cave the other morning and said she wished it were June. He told her the winter air is bracing and healthful and, in New York especially, the merriest of the seasons.

"I'm not thinking of the weather," she explained, "but by June I imagine even our orchestras will be as sick of 'I Believe in Miracles' as I am."

Probably.

Noble Sissle tells of the radio ham who was trying to impress a group of his wide popularity. "Why," he said, "I even have a fan in China. He's asked me to write to him."

"Probably a stamp collector," was the squelch.

Nice Guy, Though.

One of the second-string critics has recently gone tall-hat on his friends. Some of them were wondering about it the other night.

"That guy," voiced a victim, "must think he's somebody."

Your Mother?

"Dear sir: I just heard one of those things that makes me think all chorus girls aren't gold-diggers. One of the girls in London (her name is Ruth Hilliard) was asked by an admirer there what she wanted most for a Christmas present last Christmas.

"'Can I have anything at all?' she asked her admirer, and he said, 'Yes, anything you want.' And Ruth breathlessly said, 'My mother!' And he arranged for her mother to come there to visit her. Nice girl, yes? I thought the story would please you.—This is from a mother not so fortunate."

Jerry Takes to Her New Occupation With Enthusiasm Aided by the Prospect of a Successful Business.

CHAPTER THIRTY.

THE afternoon, after they had met her at luncheon, Jerry and Miss Alden went to see Miss Prudence Allison in her office at one of the big insurance companies.

Aldie began. They had come about Miss Allison's contemplated trip abroad, she explained. She and Mrs. Brock, as it happened, were planning to start a hat and dress shop, and were going in to New York very soon to do their buying. They would like to be allowed to have in mind Miss Allison's needs for the trip and to select things they saw which she might like to include in her wardrobe.

Mrs. Brock had been abroad and spent some time in Geneva, she would know the sort of things Miss Allison would need, on shipboard, for travel in Europe and for the conference she planned to attend.

Miss Allison's plain, rugged face turned toward Jerry, her keen eyes focused on the girl. "You've got more sense than most society women, choosing an actual business woman to go into partnership with," she said bluntly. Jerry liked her, but wished that she might fall into the hands of a good barber.

"I'm awfully honored," Jerry answered, "because it was Aldie who chose me."

That gave her partner a chance to enlarge upon the marvelous taste of Mrs. Brock and the way she had been selecting clothes for her friends for years. Aldie thought there was no one in Huntington who had half Mrs. Brock's clothes sense, and considered that she was the fortunate one.

"Hm," said Miss Allison studying Jerry, who felt at once very young, giddy and useless. "What will I need in the way of clothes for the trip?" she demanded so suddenly that Jerry nearly jumped.

Jerry told her. Smart, comfortable suit for traveling. Warm coat for shipboard. Three dinner dresses and one evening gown.

Seeing opposition in the keen gray eyes, she explained that Miss Allison would wish to dress for dinner every night on shipboard and at the conference. "You don't want to wear the same dress night after night, you know."

"Hm," said Miss Allison.

"Then you will want two nice afternoon dresses for receptions and teas and dinner functions. An evening wrap. A knitted dress or two—they're lovely for shipboard."

Jerry had not the courage to say "sports clothes" to this forbidding person.

"Hats, bags and gloves for the various outfits. We do not plan to carry lingerie, but if you would like to have us get you a supply for the trip, we will be delighted."

"The selections we make for you will be the latest thing," Aldie added quickly, "and you won't have the bother of running about looking for them yourself. And you will be under no obligation to take anything you don't want. We will put any or all that do not appeal to you into our regular stock."

* * *

MISS ALLISON appraised Jerry's costume, the well cut suit still very good though no longer new, the clever little hat, set at just the right angle over beautifully cared for hair, the trim ankles and feet.

"It sounds all right," she said. "But you know, Mrs. Brock, I'd look like a drayhorse in your kind of clothes."

Jerry liked her better for that. "I can see in my mind right now some things that will be lovely on you," the younger woman replied. "Let me try." Miss Allison agreed that it would do no harm for them to assemble a wardrobe to which she was to have the right of refusal.

They departed, jubilant, with Miss Allison's sizes noted down and a list of women's needs including handkerchiefs to be filled. Miss Alden was for once more excited than Jerry.

"She won't mind the expense," she told Jerry. "This is the big event of her life. I'll bet she was at a complete loss about clothes and will take anything we bring her that is half-way decent."

"You listen to me, Aldie," Jerry said. "She'll not only take what we bring, she's going to have a good time on that trip."

It was a healthy sign that now Jerry dramatized herself again, this time as a business woman. She spoke crisply, affected a brisk gait while going about the house.

Barbara teased her about it. "You think you're going to put us out of business down at Jefferson's. I can see that. Well, wait till you find out how hard it is to part people from their money these days."

"They'll part with it to me, because if they don't, we go out of business," Jerry retorted. "You pampered daughters of luxury who loll around at Mr. Jefferson's emporium don't care a hoot who pays the interest on the mortgage as long as you get your weekly salaries."

"Weekly insult, it's called in business circles," Barbara said sweetly. "How you do show your ignorance!

BEGIN HERE TODAY:

When JERRY RICHARDS told GORDON BROCK that she would marry him, she thought, of course, that she loved him. Just before the wedding she has doubts, but it was too late then to back out. Things went swimmingly until the depression began, but Gordon showed himself then utterly unable to meet the test. Jerry realizes that the support of herself, her mother and her baby will have to fall upon her. MISS ALDEN, who headed the hat department in a Huntington shop, proposes that they go into business together, opening a hat and dress shop. They will have it in Jerry's home. Jerry is delighted, and feels that here is her chance.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

Well, have a good time in New York, anyhow, and I'll see that Susan doesn't take in any brass quarters—that's another gem from the marts of trade."

"I hate dumping her on Martha and Muzz, but now that she's older—dear me, Babs, do you realize that child is nearly two?—it's not so bad, and of course it's just for a week. If the shop goes, you'll be seeing her stroll up the avenue with a nurse in cap and ribbons following her."

"If I do, I won't speak to her!" Barbara retorted. "I always knew you'd ruin the child if you got half a chance."

"Well, don't worry, darling. I don't anticipate spoiling her with riches for anyhow a couple of years yet." Yet already in her mind Jerry was planning busily all the things she would do for Muzz and Susan and Martha when the shop got to making scads of money—and for Gordon.

* * *

NEW YORK was the tonic Jerry needed. To be sure, she and Aldie were terrifically economical, staying at a women's hotel where they shared a bedroom tinier than Jerry had ever known existed, eating mostly at Child's, walking or taking busses. But just New York itself was wine.

She had enough friends there to be taken to all the hit shows, she was entertained at dinner enough to make the meals she paid for herself of no consequence. The shops and the shopping healed completely such wounds as her spirit had suffered.

Aldie's prudence served as a needed check upon Jerry's extravagance, but between them they collected a stock that appealed to Jerry's taste and that Aldie believed would turn over quickly. Jerry wrote to Miss Allison, a piquant little note describing their progress. She wrote as she would have to Barbara, for she had decided Miss Allison was a good person.

Fun as it all was, still they could hardly wait to get back to Huntington again and arrange the shop. Miss Alden expertly sidetracked all of Jerry's ideas for opulent fittings, and in a coup that won Jerry's amazed admiration, sallied forth and bought the showcases they needed second hand. It was in these small things that genius showed itself, Jerry told her.

Indeed, it was Jerry's first realization that things could be bought second hand. When the shop was ready for business, nothing was changed outwardly but the sunroom, where neat cases now stood for the hats that were soon to come.

And then the notice that the first shipment was at the freight office, the thrill of unpacking things and arranging them in the cases. Barbara came over to help. She said she knew it was traitorous toward her employer, but how could she stay away?

"It's a good layout," she approved, when all was assembled, and Jerry felt a vast reassurance.

She needed Barbara's verdict, for now that Miss Allison's things were actually here and unpacked, Jerry viewed them with a sinking heart. At the dealers each article had seemed perfect—feminine, attractive as might be on so large a scale, cunningly designed to modify an imposing figure.

Seeing them again, Jerry was overcome by misgivings. Would Miss Allison think them extreme? Would she fall back in disgust upon the ugly tweed and similar horrors that she would pick out for herself

And they Jerry made a further discovery about human nature, one that was to be of incalculable worth to her in the business she was entering.

The Excessive Quantities in Modern Life

By The Rev. J. F. Newton

"THE trouble with the world," a reader argues, "is that there is too much of everything. It may seem strange to say so when so many people have too little of everything, but it is true.

"First of all, there are too many people and not enough wealth, work and wages to go round. Or else too many who are too selfish to share the good things of life and let others have a taste.

"Yes, too much people—crowds on crowds; life steps on life. In fact, a case of overproduction, and we have not sense enough to limit it. Wave after wave pours over us in an endless human flood.

"Too much religion, too, of the kind that is long on talk and short on deeds. Hundreds of sects split up about little realities and unrealities, when all we need is a religion of love and service.

"Too many books of second-rate value, and we read them with too jaded an appetite and a too listless attention. The wisdom of the world is in a few great books full of beauty, vision and serenity.

"Too much canned culture, too many hand-me-down philosophies, predigested and told in words of one syllable for morons. Too much sampling of the opinions of others, and too little sense. We sit in an armchair, too lazy to dream, and twiddle the radio key hunting for some jazzy, jumpy, jerky entertainment.

"Too much cheap taste, content with a thing if it is 'not bad,' forgetting that 'not bad' is not good, when we should be able to set up a gate of wisdom and raise a little homegrown culture of our own.

"Too many movies, tawdry, empty, actorish; too much cheap and glib advice telling us how to eat, how to sleep, how to make love; too much bunk psychology.

"Yes, too much blah, hokum and bunk in everything; too many folk living by their wits; too many politicians; too much noise. To cap the grouches—like me!"

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

» by WYNN «

For Sunday, March 3.

MOST worthwhile things are planned in advance, at least in their broad outlines. This is the type of day when such should be planned, perfected and begun if your motives are reasonable.

Virtue.

Giving 16 ounces for a pound isn't always honest. Such is the case when a merchant gives full weight and measure because he is afraid he will suffer at the hands of the law if he does otherwise. Honesty requires a moral motive. What we do is not the whole story—why we do it is also of much importance. Virtue is an end, not a means. Think this over a long time.

Your Year Ahead.

Your year ahead needs intellectual control of emotions, especially if you are married or in partnership. Extravagant first five months, possibly costly. Be responsible. Danger: Sept. 25-Nov. 7; Jan. 18 to March 3.

For Monday, March 4.

THERE wasn't trouble in sight; the street was clear—but he stepped into a coal hole. That's the kind of day this is. And the coal hole is: letting our feelings get away with our common sense. Especially with the opposing sex.

Something to Try.

It is extremely difficult to be honest. Not only is this true because we are dealing with people who do not instantly recognize and reward the best in others, but also because we simply don't know how to be honest. We don't always know what is honest, even if we want to do right and be right. Try to be honest for one whole day, or for an hour. Can you do it? I doubt it.

Your Year Ahead.

Your year ahead may bring problems, but it is excellent for finding out just what you really merit from man and nature. You are apt to get it. Control emotions and extravagance. Danger: Sept. 27-Nov. 9; Jan. 19-March 4.

Tomorrow.

Christopher Crow Gives the Alarm In Puddle Muddle

By Mary Graham Bonner

IT was Christopher Columbus Crow who discovered the fire. He saw the flames shooting up from the building.

"Caw, caw, caw!" he cried. "Fire! Fire! Fire!"

The ducks came rushing up from the stream that led into their pond where they had been playing, and which was only covered with ice here and there.

Tot Notch instantly did this.

The ducks got out their little fire engine and hook-and-ladder. Willy Nilly rushed out of his house, and in no time at all it seemed that Quick-Dick, the fire horse, arrived from the next village pulling a good, powerful fire engine.

Willy Nilly's first words were:

"Where is Sweet Face?"

"I'll go after him," said Rip.

"No!" said Willy Nilly, "I'll do that."

"We won't argue about it," barked Rip, as he dashed, without another barking word, into the burning building.

The thick smoke almost blinded him and his eyes watered and pained.

"Sweet Face, where are you?" barked Rip. There was no answer.

By Robert Whitcomb

TALKING about canaries, the Francis Brown—that is the name of our freighter—steams through the Canary Islands and never catches sight of one of them little yellow birds.

It was off the coast of China we first seen them, and they was all flying around a Chinese junk. We ain't had sight of land in a long time, and when we see all them little yellow birds we falls in love with them. The Chinese has them tied up with strings so they can fly a little way, and they are selling them for two-bits apiece, whether they sing or not.

Now everybody aboard ship, almost, shelled out two-bits for one of them birds. The first mate, the second mate, the quaartermaster, the bosun—yes, sir, everybody down to the stokers; even the two balonies that stokes on the night watch, Cassidy and McCarthy, as rugged a pair of harps as ever prayed for Erin's freedom.

It was funny how Cassidy and McCarthy cottons to those birds, feeding them water and bread and seeds, and even pieces of lettuce when we're in port. One day McCarthy breaks out with a big wire cage instead of the little wooden one they come in. It takes a couple of 300-pound Irishmen to go sentimental over a couple of canaries that don't weigh no more than one of their finger-nails.

Well, maybe I forgot to say them two Irishmen, even if they are the toughest things on two feet—them two guys is as thick as two peas in a pod. Like blood brothers, they was, always together and always being picked up by the harbor police drunk in some sailors' dive.

But trouble starts to come when Cassidy notices that his bird don't sing like McCarthy's. McCarthy's canary can sing with all them trills and frills and toodle-oos like you hear in a Dutch kitchen. Cassidy's hops around some in the cage, but never lets out more than a peep at a time, and it is always more or less the same peep, never up and down the scale like McCarthy's bird.

It is on the home run, when we are a week out of New York, that the skipper notices something wrong with the steam and sends down Third Officer Herbstein to see what the devil. Herbstein goes over the black gang and finally gets down to the stoke hole. What he sees is nothing else but a gosh awful fight. If you have ever seen two big, crazy Irishmen fighting you know what it is like, and not until; and I don't mean nothing against the Irish, being mostly Erin myself.

They socks each other everywhere from the solar plexus up and down, and it's a lucky break neither of them stumbles aand falls. They got blood in both eyes, and there is nothing that Herbstein can do in the way of yelling at them, and being a little half-pint himself, he ain't no referee.

Instead, he goes up and gets Smith, the bosun, 6 feet 4 if he's an inch, and tells the bosun to get his uniform on and go down.

"Now, now, what's ailing you boys?" the bosun says, as nice as you please. "What is it can make two men, fine friends like you are, fight like bloody enemies? Come now, tell a shipmate what's the trouble?"

Well, sir, them two blokes just kind of hung their heads and wouldn't say nothing, and they keeps staring at each other in that hard way, like it is to the death, and the bosun, he don't know what to do.

And to make a short story shorter, them Irishmen wouldn't say nothing until the skipper comes down and pumps them; and take it from me the skipper is a hard old bird, and knows how to scare the pants off of sailors.

Seems like McCarthy was kidding Cassidy about his canary while they was finishing up a pint they snuck aboard. Cassidy feels sore enough that his bird don't sing like McCarthy's and that starts the fight, because for a positive fact McCarthy's canary is one sweet singer.

So when the skipper finally got that out of them, he goes over to the birds and it seems the old man bought one of the birds himself and knows a thing or two about canaries. So, with the whole gang looking on, the skipper lays it into them two harps.

"It's a sorry day," the skipper says, "when two sailors aboard my own ship don't know the difference between the two sexes. In other words, there is such a thing, like the Bible says, as male and female, and what these birds is singing about is that they are in different cages. As captain of this here boat, therefore, I am going to marry these two little mites here and now, and put the female in with the male, where she belongs. And no more funny business out of you men."

Let's EXPLORE Your MIND

See Whether His Opinions Agree With Your Own

1. —The amazing fact is brought out by life insurance statistics that there are more than twice as many fatal accidents to children under 5 as to those between 5 and 15! The figures show that small children are especially liable to death from scalds and burns. Next in frequency comes automobile accidents, suffocation in bed, drowning, falls and poisoning. Evidently older children learn how to care for themselves better than their parents are able to do when the children are too young to care for themselves.

2. —In his book, which is the outcome of a generation of work with delinquents, entitled, "The Individual Delinquent," Dr. William Healy of Boston, says that he and his associate, Dr. Augusta Bronner, have not yet found a single moral imbecile. He adds, "When we began our work there was no point on which we expected more data. We have been constantly on the alert for a moral imbecile—that is a person intact in mental power, but devoid of moral feeling. Many cases have been brought to us as such. We have failed to find one." There are no better authorities living.

3. —H. G. Wells, in a recent brilliant essay, argues that they would and I feel inclined to agree with him. Marriage is a natural institution which was not created by law. However, after it became established, certain laws were devised to regulate some phases of it, chiefly relating to property rights. Abundant research has shown that laws have little effect on marriage, but education has profound effects.

Customs Suit the Times

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

WESTERN MINNESOTA hustled State relief when its legislators judged a beauty parade consisting of a thin cow, a hungry hoss and a starving pig.

• • •

The idea should work in all districts. Long Island will feature a breakfastless commuter chewing an understuffed frankfurter.

• • •

• • •

Transfer of Babe Ruth to Boston will stall appropriations for New England. Congress will think everybody in Boston is that fat.
